LIFE OF THE NARCISSUS.

A Plant That Teaches Us a Lesson in Patient Waiting.

Fifty weeks of saving for one or two of spending! Eleven months of living in darkness for one month of sunshine. Three hundred and fifty days as an ugly, brown, dirty bulb for fifteen days as a beautiful fragrant flower. If ever you want a lesson in patient waiting turn to the flower which is satisfied to remain obscure nearly all its life for the privilege of blooming for a few days—the narcissus.

The bulb existence of the narcissus is so much obscured that we forget all about how the flower is using it as a savings bank or a life insurance policy. What we think is a worthless, ugly clump in the earth is busy the year round storing up nourishment and strength to serve the flower during its blooming period.

If the bulb were not of a saving disposition there would be no blossoms. The flower in turn takes sunlight and oxygen and sends it into the bulb to store away for another period of blooming. It depends upon the bulb to conserve this strength, and the bulb's thrift never fails.

Don't make the mistake of calling the bulb the root. In reality the bulb is the stem of the flower, made out of a cluster of thick leaves. Planted in the earth the bulb sends down roots, which seize fast to the soil and drag the parent bulb down with them.

SPAIN'S ROYAL MAUSOLEUM.

The Escorial is Also a Palace, a Monastery and a Church.

Twenty-seven miles from Madrid on a bleak height surrounded by a sterile and gloomy wilderness stands the Escorial, one of the most remarkable buildings in Europe. It is 786 feet long and 623 feet wide, with tall towers at the angles. It comprises at once a monastery, a church, a palace and a mausoleum.

On Aug. 10, 1567, the Spaniards gained a great victory over the French at St. Quentin, and the Spanish king, Philip II., had the building erected in commemoration of the event. As the battle occurred on St. Laurence's day, he had the building designed to resemble the famous gridiron on which St. Laurence suffered martyrdom by being roasted to death.

The work was begun in 1563 and continued for more than twenty years. The building contains a vast number of treasures—paintings, sculptures, manuscripts, etc. Among them is a life size figure of Christ on the cross done in ivory by Benvenuto Cellini.

As it stands today the Escorial and its contents represent an outlay of more than $10,000,000. Here lie the bodies of all the Spanish kings since the Emperor Charles V., except Philip V. and Ferdinand VI.—Argonaut.

The Original Paul Pry.

Thomas Hill, familiarly called Tommy Hill, was, says Dr. Brewer, the original Paul Pry. It was from him also that Theodore Hook drew his character of Gilbert Gurney. Planché in his "Recollections" says of Hill: "His specialty was the accurate information he could impart on all the petty details of the domestic economy of his friends, the contents of their wardrobes, their pantries, the number of pots of preserves in their store closets and of the table napkins in their linen presses, the dates of their births and marriages, the amounts of their tradesmen's bills and whether paid weekly or quarterly. He had been on the press and was connected with the Morning Chronicle. He used to drive Matthews crazy by ferreting out his whereabouts when he left London and popping the information in some paper."

The Helmet That Fell.

Roquelaure, the deformed jester of Louis XIV., contrived to get out of many a scrape by his ready wit. One day he went to the king to ask his pardon for having struck off the helmet of one of his sentinels who had failed to give him the military salute. Louis, who knew his man, wondered that Roquelaure should crave his pardon for so venial an offense and said to him, "This is a serious matter, Roquelaure, but I will pardon you this time." It afterward turned out that the soldiers' head was in the helmet and fell with it to the ground.

The Blushing Brides.

"Why are brides generally expected to be blushing as they walk down the aisle?"
"I suppose," replied Suffron Long, glancing cautiously about and lowering his voice, "that a good many of them blush to think how they are going to subdue the lords of creation after they've safely got them."

The Way of It.

"Well," said the advertising poster man to his assistant, "we've struck a case of paradoxical luck."
"How's that?" asked the other.
"Here's a wait to our progress, and we will soon be up against it."
