

The Weekly Monitor.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 20th, 1894.

By what has recently appeared in the columns of our contemporary we are led to believe that the members of the Town Council of our shire town must all be proponents of a somewhat exclusive type. They have not enacted a by-law which prohibits any one living outside the limits of the town from selling goods of any kind within the town, except to those who are engaged in procuring a license for doing.

Under this rule the farmer who takes a load of wood to town must either sell it to a merchant or take it to a house as a hawker and peddler before he can dispose of it. This license, it appears, will permit him to hawk and peddle his wares, but not the quarter of lamb or four quarters of mutton he may have brought with him. Before he can dispose of these he must also provide himself with a butcher's license or milk vendor's. This seems to be getting things down pretty fine,—much more, one would suppose, than the interests of the business men of the town, in whose behalf these by-laws are enacted, would seem to require. That this is the case is shown by the reasoning of one of the members of the council, who discusses the question in the last issue of our contemporary. He defends the by-law on the ground that the fee exacted is such a little one. Dividing the amount of the fee by the number of days in a year, he finds it amounts to about seven-eighths of a cent per day, and therefore, he argues, a farmer can take in his horse and cart for ten or twenty dollars, and "be has to pay to the Town Clerk the enormous sum of seven-eighths of a cent." It is really truly, then, it would appear rather a small piece of legislation on the part of the council to impose such an infinitesimal tax. But let a farmer take in such a load, and after selling it for ten or twenty dollars, tender to the town clerk seven-eighths of a cent, and he will be very likely to find that the offer will be readily accepted, and that the fee will be paid to the town clerk.

From outside the county who sold merchandise. The agent of a city firm who goes to town to house taking orders for carpets, notions and such things should, we think, be allowed to sell his goods to the town clerk. Such a tax is certainly unwise, no matter how small the fee may be. To event barriers of any kind between the people of one of our towns and the farmers of the surrounding country must certainly tend to injure the business interests of the town. So far as these barriers have any effect, they must increase the cost of the necessities of life to the people of the town, besides having a tendency to divert trade from other channels and to other places. There ought to be the freest kind of free trade between towns and country, and the men who have most to gain by such a policy are the business men of the town.

A MEETING is taking place during the present week in the city of Ottawa, which is reported to effect rather important results upon the trade of the various countries taking part in it. This is a meeting of delegates from the most important of the British colonies throughout the world, who are to discuss various matters of interest to each colony, and to the empire as a whole, principally from a commercial point of view. This is the first colonial conference since the meeting of the Imperial Conference, the various Australian colonies, New Zealand, Tasmania, Cape Colony, and the Dominion of Natal, were present. The delegates from the various colonies are, of course, taken from the ablest and most experienced of the statesmen of each country, and it is not reasonable to suppose that such high caliber men, getting together, can devise ways and means whereby commerce may be promoted between the various countries represented, and increased facilities provided for carrying it on. At the present time, they are discussing the various matters of interest to each colony, and to the empire as a whole, and to the principle of protection, and looking themselves into each other's pockets, to see how far they can get together, and to draw themselves closer together, and by such concessions as may be necessary, to promote as far as possible trade within the empire. To what extent this conference may take a practical turn and deal with some of the difficulties in the way of such a result remains to be seen. The possibilities of such a convention are certainly very great.

The trial of Ernest Wain took place in New York during the past week, and the jury, after being out for several hours, brought in a verdict of guilty of forgery in the second degree, with a very strong recommendation for clemency from the court. Under this verdict Mr. Wain should be sentenced to the penitentiary for a term not to exceed ten years, and the case will doubtless be appealed and fought over again by every means known to the legal fraternity, and as present it is difficult to tell what the termination may be, or when it will be reached. From the evidence which was made before the jury during the progress of the trial, it seems apparent that the prosecution had been undertaken more for the purpose of crushing Wain than with the object of vindicating the majesty of the law which he had broken. Had he accepted the terms offered him and left the country in the vicinity of this town, this widely known might have been obtained in his country, on the 23rd of August, 1877. Dudley was the second youngest son of his parents, and was put on exhibition when he was two years old. He has been twice to Europe, and has travelled from Maine to California, in the show business, besides being exhibited in various parts of the maritime provinces. Previous to his last illness, which was a protracted one, he weighed twenty-one pounds and his height was thirty inches. While his death will be regretted by all in this country and elsewhere, the Montreal extends its heartfelt sympathies to the sorrowing relatives and friends.

The funeral takes place this morning from the residence of his parents at 9 o'clock, when the remains will be taken to Hampton for interment.

Directors to Take a Drive. The directors of The Valley Telephone Company are to meet at Kentville on Friday next, to discuss several matters of importance in connection with the line, and also for the purpose of taking a drive over the road leading from Kentville to Canning and Port Williams, with a view of either purchasing a local line now in operation in that section of the country or of at once constructing one of their own. Another important matter respecting attention was drawn to the fact that the company will exceed one hundred and fifty miles.

Middleton's Box Factory. S. F. and W. E. Rapp, proprietors of the box factory at Middleton, are despatching great credits for the spirits of enterprise in which they have placed a new engine, boiler, pump, etc., besides other improvements, and they are also in possession of all kinds of heavy machinery, cranes, and hoists, they have no doubt facilities for turning out house furnishings of all descriptions.
