HUNTER BADLY WOUNDED BY ONE UNKNOWN

Colored Man, Shot Near Granville Ferry, In Serious Condition at V. G. Hospital.

Granville Ferry.—Hugh Fowler, a colored man, about twenty-seven years of age, was rushed by auto to Halifax, Wednesday evening to enter the hospital for surgical attention to a bullet wound received that afternoon.

Fowler and a companion, who had gone to the woods together, were seated on a log when a bullet, fired from the gun of an unknown person, entered his body under the collar bone and lodged in the flesh.

The victim of the shooting was assisted to his home, and Dr. P. F. Smith was called. At a consultation held by Dr. Smith and Dr. L. B. Braune, of Annapolis Royal, it was decided that it was expedient to send him to Halifax immediately.

It is not known why the shot was fired, but it is presumed that it was fired by someone out hunting, who mistook the man on the log for a moose or deer, both of which are now to be found on the North Mountain.

POLE IS LUCKY OBSTRUCTION

Granville Ferry.—E. C. Hall, of Bridgetown, returning from a business trip to the communities to the west of Granville Ferry Tuesday afternoon, was preparing to get another car pass his, when a nut dropped from the steering gear of his car, rendering it useless. Just at the part of the village where the accident occurred the street runs along the bank of the river, and the car was prevented from going off the bank by collision with a telephone pole which was broken by the force of the impact.

BOOTLEGGING IN KENT COUNTY

How Some American Tourists Secure Liquor Supplies.

Stories are reaching the city of a plethora of smuggled liquor in and around Buctouche, and it is said that residents of the vicinity indulging in the trade that is known as "bootlegging" are doing a rushing business.

Contraband liquors of the best quality may be had "for a song," owing to the fact that the supply is much larger than the demand, and the best whiskeys are being quoted at $2.25 per bottle.

In the matter of sales, one general store is said to eclipse all others, and the proprietor has his system regulated to a degree of unusual fitness. A tourist drives up to the store, parks his car outside, and enters. "I would like some whisky, please?" "Yes, sir, how much?" "Oh, about two cases." Certainly, sir, money please.

Whereupon the proprietor presses a small button behind the counter, the tourist leaves the store, and discovers two cases of liquor in his car. The button signalled a clerk in the cellar, who placed the booze in the car.

In this way the storekeeper is protected, because if the tourist is caught by inspectors, which happens very seldom, he cannot swear that he obtained the liquor from the storekeeper, as he did not accept it, nor did he see it taken from the store and placed in his car.

It is said that many American tourists coming to Saint John do not stay here but proceed to Moncton and beyond in order that they may obtain the liquor at reasonable prices. On the return trip, the tourists manage to arrive here about 9 or 10 o'clock in the evening, and passing through the city reach Houlton, Me., in the small hours of the morning, while it is still dark. At this hour, the International Bridge is deserted, so the motorist has no trouble in entering Maine. He proceeds for a short distance and catches the prized liquor. Returning to Houlton, he enjoys a nap, as it is necessary for him to report to the immigration and customs inspectors, and this he does by daylight. Nothing untoward is discovered in the car, and he is allowed to proceed unmolested. He gathers up the hidden liquor on the way, and goes to his home, laughing up his sleeve at the ease in which the desirable beverage is obtained.

Owing to the abundance of liquor in Kent, it is believed that stories recently circulated regarding "rum-running" along the Kennebecasis and around Renforth may be well founded on fact.—St. John Globe.

THE RIFF

The inhabitants of the Riff, although they are as simply and primitively Mohammedan in religion as the Arabs themselves, are superior to the latter in the arts of war and peace. They are easily distinguishable from their neighbors in physical appearance, being a race of blue-eyed, strong-limbed men and sturdy unvelled women—descended their leaders believe—from the Norse raiders and marauding bands of the twelfth century.

Mohammed ben Abd el-Krim, forty-two years old, Moorish lawyer, guerrilla warrior, captor in 1921 of General Navarro's entire force of twenty thousand troops, acknowledged Sultan and sovereign of the Riff and the Riffi established leader of the Riffi movement in North Africa, has nothing in common with the bandit chiefs of the nineteenth century or with the semi-savage Raisuli.

Abd-el-Krim, as he is commonly called, is the elder of two brothers, whose fortunes are intimately connected. The younger, who was educated in Madrid as an engineer and mineralogist, has been proclaimed heir apparent to the Sultanate of his brother in defiance of the tradition that only descendants of the prophet are eligible for royal power. Between them they have succeeded in giving to their cause the character of a holy war, utilizing for this purpose a white-hot intensity of fanaticism which filled the savage and semi-savage border Arabs who were attracted to the victorious Riffian leaders.

The Riff themselves, he it observed, are warlike and redoubtable enough, but in a jovial and hearty way reminiscent of the Nordic race from which they sprang, and with none of ecstatic military fervor of their allies and co-religionists.

A newspaper correspondent, Vincent Sevan by name, one of the three correspondents who have gone into the Riff since the Melilla disaster, is of the opinion that whether the Abd-el-Krim brothers have or have not exploited the fanaticism of the border Arabs the movement now has all the force of a jihad. But he is also of opinion that they have no desire to excite a general Islamic revolt which might put an end not only to Spanish rule, but even to French rule in Africa. It seems clear, however, that the Riffian leaders, while contented with nothing less than sovereign rights over the largest part of the Spanish zone, and full recognition by the powers, they are too intelligent to suppose that they can beat the French in the field, but they know also that the French will not attempt to invade their country which the French strategists consider impregnable. What they want is a recognized independence and freedom to exploit the immense iron and copper wealth of the country.

ANNAPOLIS COUNTY BAPTIST DISTRICT MEETING

One of the most helpful of District Meetings was held with the church at Hampton on September 21-22. Our veteran President, Rev. M. W. Brown, D.D., occupied the chair. Visiting ministers invited to seats were Rev. W. B. Crowell and Rev. H. H. Philney.

Rev. P. R. Hayden delivered a most instructive sermon on the words "Deliver us from evil," Matthew 6:13. The readings of the Authorized and Revised Versions were made the basis for considering the abstract and concrete or personal views of evil. The fact of the prayer is an assurance of God's willingness to answer and to deliver us from every evil.

Rev. D. Dron gave a thought-provoking, expository address from 2 Pet. 1:20, "Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the Scripture is of any private interpretation." The following conclusions were drawn from the text: Scripture is not human in its ultimate origin; it is a divinely given interpretation of things; all Scripture is divinely authoritative; Christians are assured of the divinity of Scripture; it revealed a truth of primary momentousness.

Rev. W. D. Wilson addressed a full house on the subject of Temperance. He pointed out that a liquor profit of $381,000 indicated conniving at violation of law. That "richness" exalteth a nation was the explanation of our attitude on the temperance question. He appealed to all to do their best for God, for home and native land. The address was informing and very much appreciated.

Routine business included appointment of denominational allotments to the churches; endorsing the license of Bro. Lindsay Graves of the Lawrencetown Church and the appointment of I. J. Whitman, Esq. of Torbrook, to represent the County at a meeting of the Annuity Committee in Halifax. Inspiring solos were sung by Mrs. Jones, Mrs. J. Marshall and Rev. H. H. Philney, while special music was rendered, most acceptably by the choir.

DEATH OF MRS. WILLARD P. SMITH

There was much sadness expressed in the community Saturday afternoon when it was learned that Mrs. Annie J. Smith, the wife of Willard P. Smith who only two days previous had returned from Nova Scotia with her husband, had passed away. The couple had been spending the season at their summer home at Deep Brook, N. S., but as Mrs. Smith was feeling well returned at an earlier date than had previously been their intention.

After their arrival by Rowley a change for the worse set in and Mrs. Smith was attended by a number of physicians, but gradually grew worse until the end came on Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Smith was a daughter of David and Emma J. McClelland, and was born in Annapolis, N. S., in 1856, her age at her demise being 59 years. On Sept. 7th, 1897 she was united in marriage to Willard P. Smith of this town, the ceremony taking place at Clementsport, N. S.

She was a lady of refinement and exemplary Christian character, and previous to her marriage was a trained nurse. She was a devoted member of the Rowley Congregational church, a great worker in the Benevolent Society and other church departments, and will be a great loss to the church and community, as she was most highly esteemed and respected by all who knew her. Besides her husband she leaves a son, Malcolm E. Smith, a recent graduate at Brown University, and who recently accepted a position as teacher in Maine. She also leaves a number of other relatives and family connections, one of whom is a niece, Miss Marion McClelland, a teacher in the Rowley Center school, besides a very large circle of friends in this village where she has made her home for over a quarter of a century. The funeral will take place at her late home on Summer street on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 to which all relatives and friends are invited. The burial will be private.—Rowley Paper.

WOMEN'S HANDICAPS

Headaches and Backaches Often Make Life Miserable.

A woman's health handicaps her almost always. She has pains and disabilities which do not afflict men. Nature does not give her a fair chance. Her blood is more often thin and poor than a man's, and she often neglects the first beginnings of ill-health. Many women who seemed destined to a life of frequent suffering have been freed entirely from their suffering through the wonderful blood-making qualities of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

What a pity women will not listen to their friends whom Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved from their misery. Whenever a woman suffers they will help her—in youth, middle-age and afterlife. Mrs. John Mitchell, of Middleville, Ont., gives her experience for the benefit of other women sufferers. She says:—"Some years ago I was so badly run down I could hardly walk around the house. I tried to do a few chores but was able to do very little. My boys and husband had to do the rest. If I started up stairs I had to go very slow or I would fall, and I was just played out when I got to the top of the stairs. My head ached terribly, and my heart would beat violently. In this deplorable condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. When I had finished six boxes I felt much better. Then I got a further supply, and by the time I had taken these I could walk anywhere without being exhausted. The headaches had disappeared and I am now perfectly well. Any woman who is run down should not hesitate to begin Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once, as I am sure from my own experience they will build her up."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cts. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

GIRLS AS GOOD AS EVER, VIEW

Auto Replacing Front Porch, That's All.

Chicago.—The modern girl is swinging merely at the other end of the pendulum on which her mother and Victorian grandmother dangled. Otherwise it's the same old psychological clock ticking out the same minutes and hours and days.

Or, as Miss Harriett Comstock, executive secretary of the Central Eleanor Club, analyzes the temperament of the working girl after years of study given to the problem, Miss Today is frank and less conventional than Miss Yesterday.

"It's an age of frankness, or fewer repressions, we're living in," she summed it up. Girl psychology hasn't changed any to my mind. "It's an age of adjustments. If a girl gets into trouble, it is lack of judgement, not her bobbed hair or short skirts. Lack of judgement, however, is not confined to girls only. We're all bewildered as to what the real things in life are because there are so many things to choose from.

"The modern girl rouges, and perhaps she's guilty of bad taste in doing it publicly, but her mother probably pinched her cheeks privately because rouge wasn't so available in her day. The psychology is the same, only the expression is different." Miss Today, as she is viewed by Miss Comstock, goes to a cabaret because the modern apartment does not afford enough room for a crowd of young people to get together; she goes on automobile rides because she hasn't any front porch to sit on; she bobs her hair but her mother went to the other extreme of wearing false hair pinned under her own.
