

CHAPTER XXI.

War-Chief's Speech to the King and Queen—Louis Philippe
in an Indian Village.

AFTER the Ioways had finished their provincial tour in England, I accompanied them to Paris, and had the honour of presenting them to His Majesty Louis Philippe and the Queen, in the Palace of the Tuileries, when most of the other members of the royal family were present.

His Majesty, in the most free and familiar manner (which showed them he had been accustomed to the modes and feelings of Indians), conversed with the chiefs, and said to Jeffrey, the interpreter, "Tell these good people that the Queen and I are glad to see them; that I have been in many of the wigwams of the Indians in America when I was a young man, and they treated me everywhere with kindness, and that I love them for it.

"Tell them I was amongst the Senecas, near Buffalo, and the Oneidas; that I slept in the wigwams of the chiefs; that I was amongst the Shawanos and the Delawares on the Ohio; and also
