The Globe publishes a list of the clergy, and the ministers of the several denominations in Canada. From this it appears that there are—priests of the Catholic Church 1,275; ministers of the several Protestant sects, 3,724, and 3 Jews. Of the Protestant ministers the Methodists are the most numerous, their figure being put down at 1,176; next in number to the Methodists rank the ministers of the Anglican denomination, of whom there are 654; the Baptists come next 470—and then the Presbyterians, 467; to the Church of Scotland 188 are assigned, and the remainder are distributed amongst the other minor Protestant denominations.

THE ABSTAINER.—This is the title of a new paper published at Halifax, N.S., in the interest of Temperance. The cause is a good and holy cause, and one to which whether advocated by Protestant or by Catholic we heartily wish every success. We therefore warmly congratulate the friends of Temperance in Nova Scotia upon their new champion, and hope that they will give him every encouragement to fight the good fight manfully. The Abstainer is evidently ably edited, it is neatly printed, and may be taken and read with profit by men of all denominations.

DOMINION DIRECTORY FOR 1871.—PROVINCIAL DIRECTORY FOR THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, 1871. John Lovell, Montreal.

Great labor, and great expense have been lavished by the enterprising publisher upon these works, which have at last been given to the public, by whom they will be sure to be appreciated as they deserve. Their value to business men is incalculable; and to the tourist in Canada they will prove of great service, conveying much most valuable historical as well as statistical information. The press speaks in the highest terms of these works, and as a specimen we give the following from the Montreal Herald:—

For many years Mr. Lovell has published a Directory for the City of Montreal, which has been always noted for its correctness and for the amount of information contained in it. In 1857, extending the idea, Mr. Lovell published a Directory of Canada, which included the principal towns and villages of the two Canadas, and which was found to be extremely useful, short descriptions of each place mentioned being given, and a full and complete table of distances, &c., adding considerably to the value of the publication. Since that time no work of a similar character has been undertaken. The labor was so great and the expense so serious, that few men would have ventured to take the responsibility of entering on such a task. That task was one of no ordinary magnitude, it being no less than to obtain, in even the smallest villages in the Dominion, the names and designations of all those whose names are entitled to a place in a local Directory, and have them classified and arranged in one office and made up in one volume. Besides the Provinces now in the Dominion, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland were included—an addition to the labor of collecting information by no means slight. The amount of actual travelling involved it is difficult to estimate. Men were sent out by railway, across country by stages, wagons and sleighs, penetrating by almost untravelling roads on horseback, skirting along the coasts of the Lower St. Lawrence and the Maritime Provinces in boats and in a word, picking up information wherever and however it could be obtained. Then when that was transmitted to head quarters, began the labor of classification and of verifying the information, together with the immense amount of tedious drudgery so absolutely necessary to obtain correctness in the most minute detail. The result is to be seen in a thick volume of nearly 2,600 pages, containing the names, professions, business, &c., of the inhabitants of the cities, towns, villages and hamlets in the different Provinces, a short description of each place mentioned, a condensed history of British North America. In the former Directory were the names of 3,500 places, the present contains those of 4,914; railway and other routes are given on a very intelligible system; post offices, telegraph stations, tariffs; lists of Legislators, clergy, &c., in the various Provinces and a vast mass of well arranged statistics and general information, that will be found of great value. If the efforts of Mr. Lovell are not successful in a pecuniary point of view, it will be a source of regret, as there is not another man probably in the Dominion who would have given so ungrudging his own labor and run such serious risk of losing not only his labor but his money. The work is not merely creditable to Canada; that does not convey any meaning; it would be creditable to the enterprise of a publisher in any country. The Provincial Directories—one for each Province—are of course those which form part of the larger work, bound in a convenient size. Much of the profit of the undertaking will necessarily depend on the sale of these to make up for the loss which the publication of the Dominion Directory almost certainly involves. These will, no doubt, be widely circulated, although, for business men, the Dominion Directory would seem to be almost indispensable.

TEMPORAL POWER OF THE POPE.

On Thursday evening the 9th inst., the Rev. Father O'Brien, of Brockville, gave his promised lecture on the above subject—of so much interest at the present time—in the City Hall, on behalf of the worthiest of objects, the charities of the St. Vincent de Paul Society. Around him on the broad platform were the leading Catholic gentlemen of Kingston, and the body of the Hall was filled with the numbers and intelligence of class. This was Father O'Brien's first lecture. His sphere has been in the pulpit, and his abilities in that connection are not only well known in Kingston, but are highly thought of in New York and Montreal, where pulpits orators are often heard. His star as a preacher, is however, from the exhibition of Thursday evening, to be eclipsed by his prospective popularity as a lecturer, a line which he announces he intends to pursue with the approbation of his hearers.

The lecture on "The Temporal Power of the Pope" was clear, logical, forcible, and even eloquent at times. He employed no word painting to cover parts in his arguments, but met each point plainly and lucidly, giving evidence of a thorough acquaintance with the subject, and a reliance in its truth. He proved first, that the Church was the legitimate spiritual authority; that the Sovereign Pontiff was the Vicar Apostolic of Christ, and the direct descendant of St. Peter, to whose care the infant Church was confided by our anxious Redeemer. The Church would live so long as there shone a sun—with or without temporalities. It was immovable—firm as a rock. It has the blessed Lord's sanction and blessing, and had he not said that "Heaven and earth shall pass away but my words shall not pass away" may again suffer persecution, but "Blood of the martyrs would be the seed of the Church." She would rise all the more glorious at the resurrection. He traced up the history of the temporal power; showed how the Popes in the 4th, 5th and 6th centuries had been faithful subjects of the Roman Empire in the East; how at length without its protection they became the prey of the barbarous tribes of Europe, and how at last the people rallied around them for guidance and support. This was the beginning of the Temporal Power. It was sought for and reluctantly taken, but it was a rightful inheritance, as such, as few kingdoms are. None were despoiled to obtain it, it was a free and Christian assumption. It was secured to them finally in 754, when Charlemagne of France delivered over the title deeds, which remain to this day, over 1,100 years, the only legitimate Sovereignty. He showed the ill-fate which had befallen those Kings who had attempted to violate this providential arrangement, and said the handwriting was now plain on the wall against Victor Emmanuel, the robber King. The Temporal Power was necessary to the independence of the Holy Father. Living as a subject of any temporal sovereign, he could not command the confidence and respect of the subjects of another country, especially a rival one, which his position as the spiritual head of 200,000,000 people entitled him to. He noted the sympathy shown by the English Press with the Italians, and revolution at Rome, and though he denounced revolution as contrary to the teaching of the Church, which counsels submission to law and order, Heaven's first law, he could not help contrasting it with a condemnation of similar acts on the Liffy or the Shannon. Such in brief are a few of the points made, in the lucid and forcible manner which was loudly and repeatedly applauded.

At the close Dr. Sullivan moved, and Mr. Macarow seconded, a strong vote of thanks, and each conveyed an expression of the pleasure the audience had received in this most eloquent lecture, and longed for an early return of Father O'Brien on another similar mission, as he had given some hope that this might be the case.—British White.

PRESENTATION.

(From the Peterboro Review.)

On the announcement that the Very Rev. O. Kelly, V. G., for many years the Roman Catholic Pastor at Peterborough, was about removing, his parishioners felt that his departure should be marked by some slight acknowledgement of the many services rendered by him, and expressive of the feelings entertained towards him. In accordance therewith an address and purse were proposed, and so universal the esteem in which the Reverend gentleman is held, that in the short space of two days nearly $400 were contributed thereto by his parishioners.

From the children of the Convent and Separate Schools to the oldest of his parishioners, each vied with the other in contributing to its success; and it must have been gratifying to the Reverend gentleman's feeling to have received from the children such pleasing marks as contained in their addresses and accompanying gifts, of their appreciation of his exertions and success in providing such facilities for their advancement.

The several addresses were presented on Monday evening the 23rd ult., that of the parishioners, which we publish below, being read and the purse presented by Geo. T. Leonard, Esq.

To the Very Reverend O. Kelly, V. G.

REVEREND SIR—Your parishioners have learned, with feelings of deep regret, that the tie which has bound us to you as our Pastor for the past twelve years is shortly to be severed, and that in obedience to the request of our beloved Bishop you are about to remove from our midst to occupy a more elevated position.

We cannot permit the occasion to pass without approaching you to express the feelings of sorrow with which we view the coming change, and the loss which we shall sustain by your removal, as well as our appreciation of the solicitude which you have ever displayed for the welfare of our Parish; and also, to extend to you our best wishes and prayers for your future happiness and prosperity.

When we consider the condition of your parish at the time His Lordship Bishop Horn was pleased to place you in charge, and now view the progress made during your residence among us as our Pastor, we cannot but congratulate ourselves on having had as our spiritual adviser one so eminently qualified as yourself.

You found us struggling—with but very indifferent means—to give our children the advantages of such an education as we, as Roman Catholics, considered essential to the good Catholic. You zealously guided our efforts by your advice, counsel, and assistance, and with so much success that you now have the gratification of beholding Catholic educational institutions in our midst, which are not only an honor to the Catholics of this parish but to the whole community. And while the Convent of "The Congregation de Notre Dame" in Peterboro exists, there will stand a worthy monument of your untiring zeal for the advancement of the flock of which you have had charge for the past twelve years.

Your parishioners do not fail to perceive the progress which has been made in this Parish through your zeal and energy, but they do not require this as an illustration of your solicitude for their welfare. You have as our Pastor, by your learning, devotedness, friendship, and many acts of charity, your readiness ever to give assistance to those in need, and to guide in the path of duty those who sought your aid and advice, endeared yourself to your parishioners; and during our lives although separated from us, Vicar General Kelly shall be loved and esteemed as one for whom it will be difficult to find an equal in our regard.

While expressing our sorrow at parting with one so deservedly endeared to us, we ask you to accept the accompanying purse, the voluntary offerings of your parishioners, as a slight mark of their esteem. And that your labours in future may continue to be productive of such good results as among us, is the wish and prayer of your parishioners in Peterborough.

On behalf of the Parish of Peterboro.

JOHN R. DORIS, CONNELLY'S MCGRATH,
DENNIS KINKELA, T. COLLINS,

JOHN GIBBY, M. KENNEDY.

The following is the reply to the several addresses presented.

MY DEAR FRIENDS—I feel there is nothing more difficult than to give expression to gratitude for generous kindness, when it so far exceeds the merits of its recipient. Since you became aware of my removal from Peterboro, I have received so many beautiful addresses, accompanied with such substantial proofs of their sincerity, that I find it impossible to refer to them all in a reply which must necessarily be brief.

Your munificent gift of over $400.00, will to any one appear the very extravagance of generosity. How happy I should now feel, if I deserved it. To the ladies of the Missions, my first acknowledgements are due, for their beautiful expression and costly present. Your devotion to everything religious is proverbial. The loud tolling of your parish bell, that awakens all to their devotions, bespeaks your praises. It re-echoes at all noon, and gladdens your hearts at the sweet Ave Maria. Your organ also reminds you of your zeal; and the splendid Convent will ever record the sincerity of your piety, who contributed so much to its erection. And you, my dear children of the Convent, you are everything that your parents and myself expected you to be; your handsome gift, so homely and bestowed, shall ever be treasured in grateful remembrance.

I would be sorry, my dear boys of the Roman Catholic Separate School, if I should ever forget you. Your school-house with its little library was some years ago destroyed. However, read good books and good publications, and nothing but them. When your next library will be originated, let me know and you may calculate on my co-operation to the fullest extent of my means.

And you my dear Parishioners, on whom I depended for everything, whose address and munificence I this day so gratefully received, and which are but the repetition of many similar acts of lavish kindness and unmerited generosity, it is to be hoped you will ever continue the exercise of your zeal in the cause of God, and His Holy Church. It is the attribute of generous hearts to forgive and forget faults. You may have, for what I know, discovered many in me; forgive my faults, but do not forget me in your prayers.

Farewell, my dear friends, and may God prosper you.

OSWALD KELLY.

THE TORONTO "GLOBE" ON ANNEXATION.—The Democrat may say that the Washington Government would be more liberal if Canada were annexed, but we doubt it. Every Englishman knows the jealousy of the foreigner which is cherished by the Americans; and for more than one generation, Canadians would be foreigners at Washington, their views unrepresented, their public men despised. There is more attraction for Canadians in London than in Washington, in spite of distance. The "glories of the noble British empire" as "infectious" as compared with those of the United States. In art, literature, science, commerce, and arms, the mother country bears away the palm. In commercial legislation the United States has not yet advanced beyond the Chinese, and all her wealth and education have not yet secured to her an honest judiciary. New York journalists should get rid of Jim Fisk and Judge Barnard before they sneer at the "infectious glories" of Britain.

The Democrat has aptly likened the tie between Canada and Britain to a mother's apron string. It is slight, easily severed, but very strong in the affection which it symbolizes. We hope that it never will be cut; it certainly will not be in our day. Canada has more of the liberty of which the Democrat talks, in her present position than she could have as a part of the Republic. She is free to work out her own destiny. She is not a slave to New England or Pennsylvania manufacturers; she mixes her revenue in her own way and spends it as she pleases. She can form her own institutions, free from interference, direct or indirect. She need not fear the evil example of Indiana divorce courts, nor of the New York Legislature. She is about to have poured into her lap the riches of the great North-West territory, which would be directed southward by a hundred streams if annexation took place. There is not a single argument for annexation which will bear a moment's examination, and therefore we do not argue the question. We have merely given our Rochester neighbour a few of the motives which induce Canadians, while they willingly trade and encourage courtesies with Americans, to decline in toto a political connection with the Republic.

WHAT THE JOINT COMMISSION WILL HAVE TO DEAL WITH.—There seems to be an idea in some quarters that the powers of the Joint Commission will be much wider than the reality. For example, it is a matter of speculation whether Canada may not bring before them demands arising out of our losses and sacrifices caused by the Fenian raids. It is manifest that this is not possible, inasmuch as the terms of reference agreed upon limit the subjects to be dealt with before the Commissioners to questions arising out of the Fishery dispute, and to the decision of claims arising out of the events of the war. Whatever value our Fenian claims may possess, they will not come before this Commission.—Montreal Herald.
