Hood's Sarsaparilla

THE WEEK.

DEEP SEA RESEARCHES.

THE Austrian journal, the Reichswehr, gives an account of the Austrian deep-sea expedition, which was undertaken for six weeks in the steamship Pola, under the command of Captain Mörk. Among the staff were Joseph Luksch for physical research, Dr. Natterer for chemical, and Professors Grobben and Dr. Marenzeller for the geological section. The part of the sea selected for operation was the Sicilian-Ionian, as far as the coast of Tripoli, the Pola leaving Corfu on the 14th of August and returning to the same place on 13th September. In a distance of 1,707 sea miles 47 larger observing stations were visited, at each of which the depth of water was sounded, the temperature of the surface and of the ground water taken, and samples of water from the middle strata tested, as to the specific gravity, proportion of salt, analyses of gases, and easily decomposed organic substances. By means of photographic apparatus some interesting results were also obtained respecting the colours of the sea. The 42 soundings taken gave a maximum depth of 3,700 mètres, and it has been established that the part of deepest depression in the Ionian Sea does not lie, as has been hitherto believed, in the direction of east to west, but of north to south. Besides this, an increase of temperature was noticed towards the east, and the proportion of salts is very different in the Eastern Mediterranean from that in the Western.

It is said that the prototype of Rebecca was an American Jewess, Rebecca Gratz, who was a friend of Washington Irving. Born in 1781, she stayed in Philadelphia, and is described as a very beautiful woman throughout life. "Her eyes were of exquisite shape, large, black, and lustrous; her figure graceful, and her carriage was marked by quiet dignity-attractions which were heightened by elegant and winning manners." She was to have been married to a wealthy and prominent gentleman, but the difference of their faiths kept them apart, and the lady died single. It was on Irving's visit to Scott, in 1817, that the beautiful Jewess was described to the future writer of "Ivanhoe."

It is a mistake to try to cure catarrh by using local applications. Catarrh is not a local but a constitutional disease. It is not a disease of the man's nose, but of the man. Therefore, to effect a cure, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system, expelling the taint which causes the disease, and imparting health.

IF your house is on fire you put water on the burning timbers, not on the smoke. And if you have catarrh you should attack the disease in the blood, not in your nose. Remove the impure cause, and the local effect subsides. To do this, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, which radically and permanently cures catarrh. It also strengthens the nerves. Be sure to get only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

WHAT CURES?

EDITORIAL DIFFERENCE OF OPINION ON AN IMPORTANT SUBJECT.

What is the force that ousts disease ; and which is the most convenient apparatus for applying it? How far is the regular physician useful to us because we believe in him, and how far are his pills and powders and tonics only the material representatives of his personal influence on our health?

The regular doctors cure; the homeopathic doctors cure ; the Hahnemannites cure ; and so do the faith cures and the mind cures, and the so-called Christian scientists, and the four-dollar and a half advertising itinerants, and the patent medicine men. They all hit, and they all miss, and the great difference-one great difference-in the result is that when the regular doctors lose a patient no one grumbles, and when the irregular doctors lose one the community stands on end and howls. - Rochester Union and Advertiser.

Nature cures, but nature can be aided, hindered or defeated in the curative process. And the Commercial's contention is that it is the part of rational beings to seek and trust the advice of men of good character who have studied the human system and learned, as far as modern science lights the way, how far they can aid nature and how they can best avoid obstructing her.-Buffalo Commercial.

It is not our purpose to consider the evils that result from employing the unscrupulous, the ignorant, charlatans and quacks to prescribe for the maladies that afflict the human family. We simply declare that the physician who knows something is better than the physician who knows nothing, or very little indeed about the structure and the conditions of the human system. Of course "he does not know it all."-Rochester Morning Herald.

I have used Warner's Safe Cure and but for its timely use would have been, I verily believe, in my grave from what the doctors termed Bright's Disease.-D. F. Shriner, senior Editor Scioto Gazette, Chillicothe, Ohio, in a letter dated June 30, 1890.

Herald." "The interest is unflagging throughout. Never has Mr. Crawford done more brilliant realistic work than here. But his realism is only the case and cover for those intense feelings which, placed under no matter what humble conditions, produce the most dramatic and the most tragic situ-ations. . . This is a secret of genius, to take the most coarse and common material, the meanest surroundings, the most sordid material prospects, and out of the vehement passions which sometimes dominate all human beings to build up with these poor elements, scenes and pass-ages the dramatic and emotional power of which at once enforce atten-tion and awaken the profoundest interest."—N.
