FORMER EULOGIST OF UNION LIFE SAYS HE WAS DUPED AND DECEIVED; HEARING EXPECTED TO END TODAY

E.A. Rusher, Actuary of the Prudential Insurance PUBLIC OWNERSHIP Company, Tells How Proof Copy of Union Life Was Doctored Before He Saw it-Dummy Directors Did as H. Pollman Evans Directed Without Question.

Out of the concentrated evidence of the final stages of the Union Life H. Pollman Evans, the engineering mind of this, and a score of conhow it. Forman available to brop up for years an enterprise tottering steadily to a fall. For one thing he maintained a system of "dummy-directors." This was self-confessed by one of them yesterday. Further he had apparently no compunctions about hoodwinking responsible aries into commendation of the company's assets. The glowing eulogy given by E. A. Rueher, actuary of the Prudential Insurance Company of Great Britain, vanished into thin air by his own stated wish, as he dis-rest Britain, vanished into thin air by his own stated wish, as he disvered how he had been duped and deceived.

"Had I known the facts it is quite certain my reports would never are been given," he writes to the court. These reports were the back-one of the prospectus. Their authority, linked with the name of the Pruntial and blazoned from one end of the United Kingdom to the other, new investments from the pockets of the cautious British public.

Not only does Mr. Rusher state that he was blinded to the facts of the pancial condition and that his name and connection with his firm were properly used, but he makes plain that Mr. Evans was conscious of his legitimate practice. The only prospectus which he (Rusher) received as one carefully expurgated and vastly different from that which appeared. His hasty order to stop the issue when he learned of its contents was ignored till the effect was manifest. In disgust at the position in which he was placed, he resigned at once from the Prudential.

"Did you get it?"

Evans' Reply.
In the court yesterday Mr. Evans made reply:

Evans' Reply.

In the court yesterday Mr. Evans made reply:

It thinks the facts speak for themselves," seld life Evans. "It was absonitely impossible to make any changes after we received his letter. Mr. Rusher must have known that his report was going to be used that way, it seems to me childish for anyone to contend otherwise."

In his statement to the referee Mr. Rusher begins by saying that he would show that he took every reasonable precaution to prevent the introduction of the name of a company (the Prodential) which never had any connection in any sense with the Union Life. Mr. Schooling had reused the handling of it because he had given up "private" work. Further, when Evans had asked him to become consulting actuary he had refused their name used in connection with private work. Thirdly, both of these points were brought out clearly in his letters to Evans in July, 1910, when Rusher had charged him with a serious breach of faith. In one of these Evans had clearly evaded the point. To the other he had not replied.

"Fourthly," says Mr. Rusher, "the proof prospectus supplied to me differed materially from the one actually sued to the public, and I was left out when the piblic received their copies."

Where Proof Differed.

"In the proof prospectus (the only one I have ever seen) nothing is said about the Frudential, to couple it in any way with the Union. My name is not even mentioned. It is needless to say that had I seem any proof prospectus giving my connection with a surface and the point. To the other he had not replied.

Confession Said to Have Implicated Farmer Near Primrose, Neb.

ALBION, Neb.. Dec. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Hugh M. Fins, 20 years of age, arrested two days ago on suspicion of being the man who robbed the bank at Primrose, Neb., last Thursday, confessed the crime today, according to Sheriff Sutten of Greeley County.

His confession is said to have implicated Paul Carston, a farmer living six miles from Primrose, and on whose farm the officers found $3700 of the dividends in that year.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 10.—(Can. Press.)—Government ownership of telegraph and telephone lines thruout the United States is being seriously considered by President Wilson.

Conferences between the president and Postmaster-General Burleson have led to a gathering of information about the practical working of government ownership in countries where such a system is in operation. The subject will be discussed at some length in the postmaster-general's annual report, soon to be made public, the it is by no means assured that he will make any positive recommendations.

Miss Lilla Campbell, the beautiful Lady nicce of the celebrated actress, Mrs. Patrick Campbell. She bears rather a strong resemblance to her distinguished aunt,

Mrs. Campbell's present association with Mr. Arliss is particularly interesting from the fact that it was in Mrs. Campbell's company that Mr. Arliss first appeared in this country. His Cayley Drummel in "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" will be remembered as one of his brilliant interpretations.

Miss Campbell is only nineteen years f age, and made her debut on the stage only last season in a small part in "Dis-bell." That she has inherited her aunt's stage ability seems apparent in the ad-vancement that Mr. Arliss has already seen fit to give her. Miss Campbell wanted to make her own way on the stage, and no' reach recognition thru her celebrated relative, and for this reason has been reluctant to before refer to the fam
