SAYS GOSPEL NOT A FIRE-ESCAPE FOR SIN'S CONSEQUENCE

Gipsy Declares Impossible To Climb Out of Hole and Allow Victims To Go To Devil—Must Retrace Steps To Where Wrong-Doer Lost Christ.

(By Isabel C. Armstrong.)
"My gospel isn't a fire-escape for you while it allows your victims to go to the devil," said Gipsy Smith last night in a sermon that was born of a great white throne.
Such was the ringing declaration of Gipsy Smith last night in the armchairs as he challenged his audience. "If you have parted company with Christ, in the name of God, I demand settlement. Where did you lose your Lord? God, the devil, the world, know. Where did you lose Him? If you have lost Him, you must find Him where you lost Him."
"Brother, sister, you've got to go back if you have lost Him. It won't be pleasant, but if you have got good sense, you must go back. Calvary is very exacting, the blood very decisive. It demands that your past should be looked into."

"Some of you have things in your pockets that don't belong to you. You have got to disgorge. That is the way to find Him."
Engagement.
Some of you have a letter that you never should have had. Some of you have made an engagement that you never ought to keep. You have broken a heart and ruined a life. You must find Christ where you lost it. You turned the hair of an old woman white. You must go back there.

"When the prodigal wanted to find his father again, he didn't wait for his father's chair to come after him. He arose and went back to meet him. Oh, yes, his father ran to meet him, but not until he saw his son coming.
"The boy Jesus, the father, Oh, yes, his father ran to meet him, but not until he saw his son coming. You have to get your feet in the boots and pull it out and say, 'Lord, God, that's my sin. You will get peace and joy, but first, the occasion for war must be put away.'"

With the dramatic power and sincerity of the boy Jesus, the father, Oh, yes, his father ran to meet him, but not until he saw his son coming. You have to get your feet in the boots and pull it out and say, 'Lord, God, that's my sin. You will get peace and joy, but first, the occasion for war must be put away.'"

The pictures were thoroughly enjoyed by the men and the wholesome humor depicted was by no means lost on them. Fifty slides were shown and at intervals the words of a popular song were flashed on the screen. The songs were sung lustily by the men, while the accompaniments were played on an organ by Ronald Hart, a member of the visiting party.

Another of the party, Miss M. Lucas, sang three solos, and one of them, "Dear Old Pat of Mine," was especially enjoyed by the men. This song had become their favorite, and it never failed to command rapt attention and always with much applause.

"The Lost Christ."
"The story is the story of The Lost Christ."
"You are startled by this title. Then read it for yourself when you get home."

"You ask, 'Can anyone lose Jesus?' I thought He was the finger, the silver and the son."
"You ask, 'Can anybody lose Jesus?' The standard take heed lest he fall! Mary, the holiest of women, and yet she lost Him. After I spoke on this subject at the Winona Lake conference, the preacher with the biggest salary, biggest membership, biggest salary, biggest personality of any preacher in his city wrote me, 'I have lost my Christ, but I promise you and God that I'll never trust again until I find Him. The worst hell I know is to lose Christ and try to keep up the camouflage that you have Him all the time.'"

"The sad part was that Mary had lost her Christ and didn't know it. Wasn't it a religious company from which Jesus was lost? Up to the annual assembly, conference, demonstration at Jerusalem?"

Assemblies, conferences, religious, conferences, demonstrations, if God is not heard and if He is not seen, you are standing on these grounds.
"A church member, enthusiastic worker, prominent person among the people of God, a consecrated, beautiful, refined person may lose Him. Mary was the holiest of women, and yet she lost Him. After I spoke on this subject at the Winona Lake conference, the preacher with the biggest salary, biggest membership, biggest salary, biggest personality of any preacher in his city wrote me, 'I have lost my Christ, but I promise you and God that I'll never trust again until I find Him. The worst hell I know is to lose Christ and try to keep up the camouflage that you have Him all the time.'"

"But she lost Him. What is the meaning of this? What is the drift of thought? What is he aiming at? Love, vision, prayer, worship, reverence make all the difference when you are standing on these grounds."

AMUSING SLIDES GREATLY ENJOYED BY JAIL INMATES

"Fragments from France," Bainslaine's celebrated cartoons shown by the occasion, entertained the prisoners
at the county jail last night, when a group of people under the leadership of Robert Liddle, industrial secretary of the Y. M. C. A., staged their third weekly entertainment for the inmates
of the prison.

RETURNED MISSIONARY TELLS OF WORK IN INDIA

A large audience representing the various Baptist congregations of the city, and others interested in missionary work listened to an interesting address in Egerton Street Baptist Church
last night by Miss L. Pratt, a missionary who has just returned from India,
after being there for seven years. Miss Pratt said it was very seldom that the
natives were found living alone.

A collection was taken for missionary purposes, amounting to a substantial sum. Soles were given by Miss Madeline Sharratt, Rita and Madeline North, and Mr. Jolly played a cornet solo. Rev. A. C. Bingham, pastor of the Egerton Street Baptist Church, was chairman of the evening.

Her word pictures of a missionary's
travels through different parts of India were most interesting. They never stayed at hotels, always living in tents,
which could be picked up at a moment's
notice and moved to another village.
The natives of India will never live
in isolated places, but will pitch their
huts and tents anywhere without consideration of order or streets. Miss Pratt said it was very seldom that the
natives were found living alone.

notice and moved to another village.
The natives of India will never live
in isolated places, but will pitch their
huts and tents anywhere without consideration of order or streets. Miss Pratt said it was very seldom that the
natives were found living alone.

A collection was taken for missionary purposes, amounting to a substan-
