THE WHEEL OF FORTUNE

"I am sorry," was the unsatisfying answer. "I can do nothing without his Excellency's instructions, and he has gone out for a drive."

"You are to understand nothing but what I have told you, and you will remember that I have consented myself with advising you to return to your yacht."

"It was evident that no good end could be achieved by trying to addle the courtiers' wits with any responsibility for his admissions. Dick took the cue thus offered and tried another line."

"The lieutenant clasped his hands and an order appeared. "Some wine, ice and cigarettes," he commanded. He engaged Dick instantly in conversation as to the prospects of war in South Africa, and was obviously desirous not to discuss personal matters."

"After consultation with the Government avouche," he said, "I have decided to release Mr. Fenshawe, whose arrest was due to his persistent defiance of Baron Franz von Kerber's undertaking. The latter must remain in custody, and I warn you, and intend to give the same warning to all persons on board your vessel."

"His Excellency cultivated the habit of plain speaking which is an essential part of all dealings with Abyssinians. Royson did not attempt to answer him. He asked if Mr. Fenshawe would be set at liberty forthwith, and was assured that the Governor's own carriage would convey both Mr. Fenshawe and himself to the hotel within a few minutes."

"It was a singular meeting between the two. Though the yacht-owner was white with anger, he was manifestly pleased at finding Royson there."

"Ah," he said, extending his hand, "I am glad to see you. Does Miss Fenshawe know of this outrage?"

Scrofula

Makes its presence known by many signs,—glandular tumors, bunces in the neck, cutaneous eruptions, inflamed eyelids, sore ears, catarrh and wasting diseases.

When they drew near the hotel, Royson saw Irene watching the main street anxiously from the balcony. It was strange remarkable that she should be alone, but all other thoughts were swept aside by the sight of the joyous girl. But let us leave the carriage stopped at the portico and she learned that her grandfather had arrived from an opposite direction.

"Good gracious, grandpa," she said, "where have you been? I have waited here for you ever so long, wondering what had become of you."

"The Governor was such an affable person that he refused to let me go," said Mr. Fenshawe grimly. "He has detained me in the study, and I have been up stairs. I am pining for that long-deferred tea. Where is Mrs. Haxton?"

R. G. LARSEN WEDS A BOSTON COMPOSER

Miss Elsie Gertrude Phelan, the composer, was married to Robert G. Larsen, press representative for B. F. Keith, at the bride's home on Hall avenue Somerville, yesterday, by the Rev. William Condon, pastor of the First Universalist church of Somerville.

Mr. Larsen was active in Boston newspaper life for 15 years, beginning on the city staff of the Boston Herald. He was publisher of the Boston Sunday Times when it was warmly popular, and was a writer of financial topics for the Boston Financial News.

For five years he was the Boston representative of the New York Herald, during which time he wrote many articles and financial articles for the Boston Sunday papers. He was then made Sunday editor of the Boston Herald for two years ago and abandoned the newspaper business and joined the Keith-Protector interests in New York. He was assigned to the Herald's office and returned one year ago to the Keith interests here.

Miss Phelan, the daughter of Mrs. Gertrude E. Phelan, of Cambridge, is a well known composer. She has written and brought up in Cambridge, only moving to Somerville within the past year. Her compositions were accepted by music publishers. Some of her marches, according to the musical critics, rival Sousa's.

Last winter Miss Phelan gave a series of concerts at the Lyceum theatre, and the Chelsea sufferers, but decided not to go on with her concert career, but to devote all her time and talents to composing.

Immediately after the marriage the couple started on a week's honeymoon. Mr. Larsen's business necessitating his early return.

Mr. Larsen is a native of St. John, where he began his career as newspaper man. His first wife was Miss Belyea, who died a few years ago, leaving five children.

Fashion Hint for Times Readers

Chaudron colored satin of the liberty genre is the material arranged so artistically in this modified Directoire toilette. So lightweight and soft is the satin that the designer has used it in the development of the long shirred mousquetaire sleeve, a treatment quite as unusual as it is attractive.

LOCAL OPTION IN MANITOBA

The Temperance People of That Province to Wage War on the Barroom. Winnipeg, Oct. 24.—The provincial executive and the Moral and Social Reform Council of Manitoba and the Royal Templars have both held meetings since the decision of the Court of Appeal on Tuesday. There was great disappointment that the decision would prevent the vote from being taken in forty-five or forty-six municipalities, where petition had been completed in good time, but where there were no meetings of the municipal councils to receive them. It was decided that it would be unreasonable to ask the electors, who have done everything that they could to bring on a vote, to lay down their arms for another year. In both executives a resolution was unanimously adopted in favor of the legislative body preparing for the measure that would abolish the barroom, and this knock out the drinking habit. Petitions will be prepared and issued this week, and the whole province will be appealed for vigorous action. It is stated that sixteen municipalities which were moving for veto are not affected by the decision of the Court of Appeal, and that in these the vote will be taken on December 15. There will also be a vote for repeal in a number of municipalities where veto is now enforced, and it was pointed out that there was a remarkable anomaly in the law, the electors who desire to bring on a vote for veto, according to the interpretation of the Court of Appeal, must present their petitions to a regular meeting of the municipal council before the 1st of October.
