News of New Brunswick Soldiers—
General Inspection by Lieutenant Governor of Quebec Tomorrow

Valcartier Camp, July 24—Private Thomas Bayliss of the 119th Battalion, who came from Montreal, was drowned while swimming in the Jacques Cartier river on Saturday afternoon. His body was recovered. This is the first drowning fatality at the camp.

Rumors are again flying around the camp that certain units will soon leave for overseas, and there are strong reasons to believe that it will not be long before the 182nd Battalion, C.E.F., embarks. This battalion, under Lieut.-Colonel Mercereau, is one of the best in camp, and with a little more training of an advanced nature will be ready to take its place in the firing line. The men are an especially fine lot, and their physique has attracted the attention of inspecting officers. The battalion is at present spending most of the time at drill on the plateau, and during this week it is expected that they will spend

The Man In The Street

Oh, well, they say fog is good for the ladies' complexions. . . .

But that's little consolation to the men who do not know whether or not they have a complexion. . . .

Why not submit to arbitrators the sacred right of the city engineer to fix grades in the North End streets. . . .

Judging by their demands that officers and men should receive the same rates of pension, the common council of St. John Falls must be planning to enlist in a body. . . .

If Germany can so easily clear up mysteries by reference to captured archives, why not let them capture the British archives and settle the Shakespeare-Bacon controversy. . . .

With soldiers clad in steel, fighting hand-to-hand with knives and axes, all that is needed to complete the picture is a few companies of archers with their bows and arrows. . . .

If this is to be a regular summer weather the man who bought a light suit this spring can use it on the two fine days each year until it dies of old age or gets out of fashion. . . .

What The Rattle Cost. . . .

The big five thousand dollar touring car was stalled on Bathurst avenue and the chauffeur was working painfully at its mechanism and murmuring something that sounded like "no prayers, but wear". Another chap came along in his Ford and, with the Freemasonry of the road, stopped with the usual well-meant question. . . .

"In trouble?" he asked. "No, I'm just doing this for the fun of the thing." "Can I be of any use to you?" the Ford owner persisted. "No, you can't," was the explosive answer. "Couldn't I give you a tow into town?" still urged the would-be Samaritan. "No, you couldn't," was the gruff answer. "What's that rattle you've got with you, any way?" "That rattle?" Oh, you noticed that, did you? asked the other, at last somewhat nettled. "That rattle is the jingle in my pocket of the extra forty-six hundred dollars that my car didn't cost me." . . .

Not The Same Lodge. . . .

The young chap was sent to the recruiting office on a message from his boss and, when he got there, the recruiting clerk suggested that he should sign on for overseas service. The lad had tried to enlist before, but had been rejected, and when the notices were issued, he had received one. In order to save trouble and explanations he pulled aside the sergeant and modestly concealed on his vest. But the button made no inaudible noise, the recruiting clerk evidently had had never seen one before. "Well, what's that? I don't belong to that lodge. You can't pull any stuff like that on me," said the recruiter. . . .

Unintended Philanthropy. . . .

His new car was installed in a local garage and, even if it was pouring rain on Sunday afternoon, he thought he would have a trip in the chariot. "I'll fill up with gasoline," he said, as he indicated his car to one of the helpers at the garage. . . .

The tank was filled and the new owner started out through rain and mud and enjoyed the travelling for a short time, and then turned back to the car barn. "Say, that wasn't your car you took out?" said the proprietor, as the driver came to a safe anchorage on the garage floor. . . .

And it just cost him the extra four and a half gallons of high-priced gasoline he had not used and another dollar and a half to have the car washed. . . .

The Height of Hospitality. . . .

"I struck a new one the other day," said the traveller. "I blew into a Nova Scotia hamlet about three miles smaller than a village and located the only hotel. "Can you put me up?" I asked the proprietor, after I had roused him from his nap behind the desk. . . .

"Oh, I guess so, maybe," he told me. "So I registered and then stuck around waiting for developments. . . .

"Got any one to show me to my room?" I wanted to know, when I got tired waiting. . . .

"Guess so, hey, Minnie," he said, and a little girl turned up, grabbed my hand bag and started up the stairs skyward. She only stopped when the roof wouldn't let her go any farther, and she steered me into a room that had to have a bright young Englishman, who came to Canada some ten years ago, and was for a time employed in the establishment of Manchester Robinson Allison. From here he went to Montreal, and at the outbreak of the war went from Montreal with the first contingent. He was promoted to the rank of sergeant. His only relative in Canada is a sister in Dunville, Ontario. Sergt. King was a fine looking young man of worthy character, and had made warm friends during his stay in St. John. . . .

MASCOTS OF 115TH ARE NOW IN ROCKWOOD

Bear Cubs From Lt. Col. Wedderburn's Regiment — More Seats For Park

The two young bears, mascots of the 115th Battalion, which were presented to the Park by Lieut.-Col. Wedderburn, and members of the corps have arrived at the park and are now enjoying the freedom of an extensive cage which has been constructed for them. . . .

They are a lively young pair, and their playful antics will prove of great interest to the many visitors to the park. A suitable sign or inscription is wanted giving the particulars as to their having been the mascots of this New Brunswick battalion etc. If some expert in sign writing will be good enough to offer to contribute this, such will be gratefully accepted. . . .

Com. G. Fred Fisher of the Public Works Department has managed to spare eight of the city seats or benches which he has kindly permitted to be placed in the park. They will be found on the southern shore of Lily Lake, and already have been extensively used. . . .

REUBEN C. BURPEE

The death of Reuben C. Burpee, second son of the late A. Cyrus and Arranna P. Burpee, took place on Monday in the General Public Hospital. He had been ill for some time, but the end came suddenly, and his death has proved a great shock to his relatives and friends. He was a highly respected resident of the North End, and, for several years, had been engaged as a machinist with J. F. Williamson & Company. His father-in-law was Burton, Sunbury county. One brother, George H. Burpee, of J. F. Williamson & Company, survives. The funeral will take place on Thursday afternoon from his brother's residence, 166 Bridge street, service commencing at 2:30 o'clock. . . .

FORMER ST. JOHN RUNNER WAS KILLED IN ACTION

The war news brings a feeling of sorrow to many who were interested in the athletic sports conducted in this city by the Every Day Club. One of the members of that club, and one of its distance runners was Ernest W. King, a bright young Englishman, who came to Canada some ten years ago, and was for a time employed in the establishment of Manchester Robinson Allison. From here he went to Montreal, and at the outbreak of the war went from Montreal with the first contingent. He was promoted to the rank of sergeant. His only relative in Canada is a sister in Dunville, Ontario. Sergt. King was a fine looking young man of worthy character, and had made warm friends during his stay in St. John. . . .

CONSERVATIVES AT THE HAMPTON CONVENTION

One of the striking features of the opposition convention at Hampton yesterday was the large number of Conservatives. They were there from nearly every parish, and those present named many others who were determined to do all in their power to defeat the present government. No delegates were more earnest in their desire to have a thorough house-cleaning at Fredericton. The opposition candidates therefore go into the fight with the assurance of the support of many electors who in the last provincial election worked hard for the government candidates. . . .
