SACRIFICED LIFE TO SAVE EXPRESS

Twentieth Century Limited
Saved by Engineer When
Freight Train Buckled

Cleveland, O., Sept. 14.—Thomas J. Sankey, of this city, engineer of the Twentieth Century Limited, on the New York Central line, lost his life in saving his train from disaster in a wreck near Painesville, about thirty miles from here. Railroad men say it was one of the most extraordinary accidents in railroad history and that it was only the courage and quickness of Sankey that saved the lives in his care. The train was speeding east a short distance from the Painesville station. On a parallel track was a freight train, a short distance ahead of the limited, also moving eastward. Suddenly the freight train buckled and several of the cars jumped the rails and toppled over into the path of the flyer. There was no time to stop clear of the freight cars. Sticking to his post, Sankey applied the brakes to his heavy train and brought it to a stop so quickly that only the shock of the settling brakes, but when they went forward to see what was the matter they found the freight train bending over the dead form of Engineer Sankey. Just how the latter was killed has not been determined, but New York Central officials in this city said they believed he must have been struck by flying timbers. The engine was slightly damaged. Another was obtained and the train proceeded. No persons were injured on

Consequently, Austria undertakes in the absence of the consent of said council, to abstain from any act which might directly or indirectly by any means whatsoever compromise her independence, particularly until her admission to the league of nations, by the participation in the affairs of another power."
