

The interests of our Seminary at Belleville, we trust, dear brethren, still engages your deepest solicitude. We are not forgetful of the readiness with which you responded to the call for aid in the erection of the building; but, brethren, the end is not yet attained—there is much still to be done before the Seminary can go into operation. We pray there may be no insurmountable hindrance to the realization of this truly laudable design. We would reiterate our sentiments expressed to you in our Pastoral Address of last year:—"This is a noble undertaking, creditable to the church, and an honor to our land;" and also in the sentiment breathed in the Pastoral Address of the Bay of Quinte Conference of same year:—"It is a standing monument of what the few can do to promote the educational improvement of our country." "Who projected it?" it is asked. We. Who built it? You, and our and your friends. And who is to complete it? You and they, by the help of God.

Our Mission Fields afford a fund of intelligence of the most gratifying character. Increasing permanency and large accessions are there being realized. The labors of our missionaries during the past year have been crowned with spiritual success, which is very encouraging to us, and cannot fail to be satisfactory to you, that your contributions, in behalf of this enterprise, have been the means, under the Divine blessing, of accomplishing a vast amount of good. Confiding in your liberality, we have ventured to respond to some of the many calls for our ministers to extend their labors still farther into that part of our country which is young, vigorous, mighty, but now comparatively destitute. Accordingly, several new fields have been added, and laborers employed, which greatly augments our responsibility, and will require continued and increased exertion on your part to furnish the necessary means to sustain and perpetuate this promising department of our beloved Zion.

The Book Room has had an increase of business this year, and promises permanent profit. In order that this may be important to the brethren for the Sabbath School. We oblige your special attention to your responsibilities as parents! To the mortal minds, and brought to bear in training them in the Sabbath School. We observe that our schools are closed, and we would recommend you to continue the Sabbath School, and inspire us with
