River Benjamin Mills, April 28th. To the Editors of the Union Advocate. RESTIGOUCHE, May 1876. GENTLEMEN: -Being aware of the nterest you have always manifested in every means for suppressing public evils, and in promoting the general welfare, I would avail myself of a small space in your columns for the purpose of exposing a nuisance which has been imposing himself upon the public in this county. During the last few weeks a certain person, whose name for the present I withhold, engaged in the book-agent business, has been travelling in locality vending a volume, which be my frame was stretched to the utmost interest in Roman history as they did on the 29th ult., and Mr. John Smith guide to all young and middle-aged persons. I have seen this book, and my opinion of it is, that it is a disgrace to English literature and that it was not intended for any good; and that apart from the despicable principles of the average book-agent, the person who would thus make capital of the ignorance of his fellow men to
