DRUNKEN SON STABS HIS MOTHER.
Halifax Woman Seriously Wounded - Pair of Scissors the Weapon - Son Was Arrested.

Joseph Vaughan, aged 24 years, is locked up at the police station on the charge of stabbing his mother with a pair of scissors. Vaughan is a lame man, and is very fond of drink. He had been drinking yesterday and quarrelled with his mother because she would not give him money. This was in the morning, and the first quarrel ended with the son throwing a carving knife at his mother and hitting her in the forehead, causing a scalp wound. Mrs. Ann Vaughan, the mother of the prisoner, resides on the west side of Creighton street, a few doors north of Gerrish street, and keeps a small shop, by which she manages to support herself and her son. After throwing the knife at his mother, Vaughan went away, and did not return until the evening. He was then considerably under the influence of liquor. He again attempted to get money from his mother for the purpose of obtaining drink, but she again refused to supply him with the cash. Again another quarrel ensued, by which she managed to support a pair of scissors, rushed for his mother and plunged them into her side, between the fourth and five inches deep. Dr. Hawkins found that the point of the scissors had broken off in contact with a rib and that the wound was of a serious nature. Vaughan will come before the court Wednesday. - Halifax Mail.

The Star line steamers will not make any further attempt to get up river this season, in fact, all but the big boat of the fleet are now safely quartered at Indian town, where they will remain till next spring. The Victoria is now tied up at the Cedars, as it is expected that it will be some time before the river from that point down freezes over, particularly with the wind blowing so strong as it has during the past twenty-four hours.

$8,000 LOSS IN MORNING FIRE.

Insurance Will Amount to About $5,700

Five Buildings Burned - Three Horses Cremated - One Man Had a Narrow Escape.

About two o'clock this morning a fire that terminated destructively broke out in the Waterloo street end of the block between Peters and Paddock street. The fire is believed to have originated in the carriage stable owned by S. A. Fowler, and despite the undandy situation of the block, the cause has not yet been ascertained. Fed by an abundance of inflammable material, once under way, the fire spread with incredible rapidity and soon all the adjoining structures were in flames. The prompt sending in of the alarm from Box 12 by Policeman Sullivan, who was one of those who first discovered the fire, brought the fire department on the scene in good time, and despite the hasty situation of the burning buildings, the firemen attacked the flames from three sides in a manner that checked at once their progress.

So rapidly did the flames spread that it was only a reckoning of minutes when all contiguous buildings were in the fiery grip. Darting through the wall into the stable owned by Bradford Pylea, the flames showed a tendency to extend to the adjoining dwellings, but a couple of powerful streams arrested them. The fire had early taken its way into the carpentry establishment of John Drury & Son, and here it made great havoc. Soon the entire stock of Messrs. Drury was ruined and only by a determined effort did the firemen prevent the complete destruction of the building.

The rain and sleet storm which was raging at the time did not seem to have the effect of retarding the flames. Mounting high the flames illuminated the whole neighborhood and the lurid reflection cast from the agitated heavens could be seen for miles around. Despite the inclement weather large crowds of people were present, many of whom were watching the demolition of the buildings. The fire extended to the stable owned by O. B. Akerley and W. H. Bell, and there was some fear that it might communicate to the People's Mission. Hearing this the mission was opened and preparations made to remove the furniture. However, beyond some broken windows and a little damage from water the mission was untouched. The grocery store of John Case, adjoining the mission, was flooded and much of its stock was ruined.

By three o'clock the fire was well under control, but the engines were kept working until about four o'clock. Till late in the morning streams of water were kept turned on the ruins. The stable occupied by Mr. Akerley and Mr. Bell was early penetrated by the flames and three horses, two of them owned by Akerley and the third by Mr. Bell, were suffocated and burned to death before help could arrive. Bradford Pylea rushed through the smoke managed to reach his horse's stall with the flames licking the very headstalls. Cutting the halter he drove the horse out and himself narrowly escaped from being smothered in a mass of burning hay, which descended on him. Mr. Pylea was crushed to the floor by the falling weight, but he extricated himself by rare presence of mind. Catching the tail of one of his retreating horses he was by this means dragged from his perilous position to open air. Mr. Bell, in addition to losing two valuable horses, lost two wagons, a carriage and two sets of harness. His loss will amount to over $100, with no insurance.

S. A. Fowler's carriage barn was a roaring furnace when the conflagration was first noticed, and of all his large stock of carriages, which completely lined the lower portion of the barn, only two were saved. Another was brought out on fire, but all the rest, together with some sleighs and a considerable amount of hay, were consumed.

Mr. Fowler's loss is in the vicinity of $1,500. Hogan's livery stable was at one time threatened and all the horses were let loose. Mr. Fowler also freed his horses, but fortunately his horse stable was not touched. The horses were all recaptured later in the morning. The barn in which Mr. Beysas had his horses belongs to the Barnst estate, and will be practically a total loss. Mr. Akerley besides losing his horses, had other property burned up to the value of about $400. The damage to other buildings can hardly be estimated at present, though Mr. Fowler's is totally destroyed, but his loss is fully covered by insurance.

As far as can be ascertained the insurance on the property destroyed by this morning's fire is as follows: John Drury & Son on building, $800 in the Actus and $700 in the Canadian. W. H. Thorne & Co. $200 on barn in A. B. S. A. Fowler, contents of livery stable, $4,000 in Guardian. This makes a total insurance of $5,700. The total loss is estimated at about $8,000.

The first of the non-jury cases is The McLaughlin Carriage Co. vs. Quigg, which is an arrangement on demurrer, will come up tomorrow morning.
