FREE ADVICE TO SICK WOMEN

Thousands Have Been Helped By Common Sense Suggestions.

Women suffering from any form of female ills are invited to communicate promptly with the woman's private correspondence department of the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established a confidential correspondence which has extended over many years and which has never been broken. Never have they published a testimonial or used a letter without the written consent of the writer, and never has the Company allowed these confidential letters to get out of their possession, as the hundreds of thousands of them in their files will attest.

Out of the vast volume of experience which they have to draw from, it is more than possible that they possess the very knowledge needed in your case. Nothing is asked in return except your good will, and their advice has helped thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, should be glad to take advantage of this generous offer of assistance. Address Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Every woman ought to have Lydia E. Pinkham's 80-page Text Book. It is not a book for general distribution, as it is too expensive. It is free and only obtainable by mail. Write for it today.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

CHINESE LADIES ARE QUITE SECLUDED IN SOCIAL WAY

It is difficult to get acquainted with Chinese families, for their custom is to keep their women and girls in seclusion, while the men and boys are brought into prominence. A gentleman's wife is never to be seen by outsiders. When he has a guest, she is never to appear, but must remain in another apartment quite out of sight. A girl baby is always a disappointment to a boy is welcomed with delight. As gentlemen never make social calls on Chinese ladies, it is difficult to form their acquaintance. Therefore, they are obliged to have to resort to ingenious ways to get acquainted with their neighbors, and many of their methods are very laughable.

One lady at Chetoo said to the writer that she was going to have a meeting at her home for Chinese ladies and naturally the writer, thinking that would be a novel experience, invited himself and said that he would be around at the appointed time, but was informed that that would be impossible owing to the fact that men were never allowed where Chinese ladies were congregated.

Then she related the trouble that she has when making their acquaintance. One of the most successful ways was to call at a house with her son, who was about six years old at the time. All would want to see the foreign boy, and the ladies of the house would come to the door and make a time over the little fellow, but they would pay no attention whatever to the lady herself. After the first burst of curiosity had passed worn off, the lady would say, "What a pretty tidy," or "What a queer chair," or anything that she could see to talk about to commence a conversation with them. "May I go in and look at that?" for they would never ask her to come in. After getting inside and admiring that particular thing, other things would attract her attention to beadmire and then she would ask if she could sit down a few minutes to rest herself, which being granted, a general conversation would be carried on about the simple things that they knew about in general. As gentlemen kept nice houses, how pretty their hair was arranged and many other things that no one knows about but those who have studied their ways.

Then they would commence to ask their visitor questions, as they gradually got used to her nice way of praising all their little tidies and hand work which they had made. They would whisper to each other, but loud enough so that all could hear the things that were uncomplimentary about her appearance; but they would say to her, "Even with all these different things that you wear, you are very pretty, and we enjoy your visit."

During all this time the little boy was being admired and talked to by first one and then the other, for, being born there, he could speak the Chinese language, and so an hour or more would pass away very pleasantly.

Then the lady would propose that she tell them a story of something that happened many hundred years ago, which would at once be agreed to, as all Chinese are fond of stories, especially something about ancient times. So she would relate some very interesting Bible story, which they would listen to in perfect silence.

They would compliment her upon her ability as a story teller and ask questions about the story and insist that she must tell them another, which she would do. One of her objects would be to have them invite her to call on them again, so that in telling the last story, when it reached a very interesting part, she would remark that she did not have time to finish, for she must hurry to her own home. Then they would insist that she return when she had the time and relate the rest of it, which she would agree to do. So arrangements would be made when she could call again to finish the story, and she was told to be sure and bring the boy.

The next call would necessitate her returning to teach them how to make some tidy or finish some needlework that she must come back to finish, and so on until a cordial friendship was established and they felt free enough to come and call on her, but on these visits not even her husband would come into the house until she had gone.

WOMAN'S WAY OF SAVING MONEY

Women often have their pet economic. A teacher who dislikes to look like the distinct type of business woman said to a New York Times writer: "My rule is never to wear the skirt of a suit without the jacket on. But if you are ready, it is as easy to have two skirts, or to meet the situation in another way. My way of saving money is to buy a good quality money. I wear what all teachers call the best suit to the schoolhouse in the morning. I have a coat hanger for my jacket and change my skirt to an old one which I keep in the locker of the school room. I wear a big white apron which covers my whole skirt in this way from being stretched out of shape and baggy at the knees. It takes only a minute to make this change and when I leave the school room I go to the washroom or exhibition, and do not have to go home, and dress again, as teachers tell me they do. I am sure I would have the energy to do this. But if you are ready, it is as easy to go up Fifth avenue as it is to go home in the car and I find that the change from work resists me just as much as going home and lying down. Besides I do not have that feeling that my days are a monotonous grind."

A woman who is the confidential secretary of the president of a big trust, has a good income, but very little time, as she often works until 7 o'clock at night and until 4 o'clock on Saturday.

"I rarely buy less than $5 worth of things," she says. "I simply haven't the time. In the end it does not cost me as much as to do things in dribs and drabs. Of course you will say that it would have the energy to do this, but I do not go near a store and I have learned to save money. Often it is cheaper to buy six cakes of soap instead of one, or a large jar of cold cream instead of several small ones. You cannot imagine how much better your work goes when you are not thinking that you must get up early to buy a tooth brush this morning tomorrow a package of pins, and so on. Of shoes I buy three or four pairs at a time; at least enough to last me through the season."

MEN DO NOT BUY AS DO THE WOMEN

It has come to be quite the custom either from a lack of realistic time or from a natural dislike for the work for men to slip the care of shopping to feminine shoulders, and whether they acknowledge it or not they feel very sure that in the majority of cases it will be well done. There may be any number of humorous arrows aimed at the bargain hunters, but usually a woman does not purchase unsatisfactory merchandise. According to statements made by buyers in the stores women are thoughtfully that they recognize very quickly whether they are all wool, cotton, silk or mercerized.

The average man goes into a store to select a necktie and if the color suits his fancy he takes it and depends upon the price asked for the quality of the material, while a woman selecting the same tie will rub it between her fingers, pull out a thread or so and ask the man what she should do. If the result is satisfactory she will ask the price, and if she considers the tie as a good value for the money as she can get at the store further up the street, she will make the purchase.

WOMEN---THE ENIGMA

"There's rummer things than women in this world," as one of Dickens' characters sagely remarked. But the average man of today would reply, "Not very many at all." For most regard women as unaccountable creatures, and with some show of reason.

A woman is a bundle of contradictions. But so is a fallacy and a lie, though in a totally different way. Therefore, he can't grasp it! Our vision is never so clear about things we can't grasp, and don't actually experience.

Men will never really understand women, too, for the simple reason that the latter do not always understand themselves.

This may sound ridiculous, but it is nevertheless true.

We often wonder why in the world we said or did some particular thing; it feels almost as if we are reviewing the act of some stranger, so utterly does it seem at variance with our own ideas.

That is not due to circumstances, surroundings or even temperament—that convenient excuse for so many fallacies—but is merely a characteristic feminine trait.

Another accusation leveled at women is their entire lack of reasoning power. That is a fallacy and a lie! They have got just as great a capacity for reasoning as man, only they don't exercise it nearly as much.

The explanation is that they are gifted with intuition, whereas a man uses logic!

They are successful nine times out of ten, but the tenth time seems in very stiff, and one-quarter pound flour and one-half cup whipped cream. Mix all well, pour into a buttered pan and bake in a hot oven five minutes. Fold it on a plate with a filling of cider apple sauce (boiled thick), and glaze with sugar and serve.

Baked Tomatoes. Wash and without peeling snugly fit in granite baking pan six or seven medium sized tomatoes. Put over these some olive oil, drippings or butter, and start to cook in moderate oven. When a little soft sprinkle over parsley, garlic and green peppers chopped very fine. Baste all the while so flavor goes through them and to prevent burning. Remove to top of stove and soak 10 or 15 minutes. In the meantime sprinkle over them three or four rolled crackers. Baste until ready to serve.

Huntington Patties. Repeat patty cases made of puff paste and fill with the following mixture: Clean and parboil a sweetbread and cut in cubes. Melt two table-spoons butter, add three table-spoons flour and pour on gradually while stirring constantly one cup chicken stock. Repeat sweetbread in the sauce and add a fourth of a cup heavy cream and one teaspoon beef extract. Season with salt and paprika.—San Francisco Call.
