The Inter-Allied Games in Paris

The Tug of War Team Will be Entirely Composed of Men from New Brunswick—Canada Will be Well Represented.

According to a late despatch from England regarding the teams to represent Canada in the inter-allied games at Paris, the tug of war team will be entirely composed of men from New Brunswick. It will be remembered that this province has made a wonderful showing in this branch of sport. At Valenciennes during the summer of 1918 the tug of war team from the 140th New Brunswick Battalion won the camp championship. This team later competed in England and was going strong until the members were drafted for France. In France many of the battalions had tug of war teams and in a great many of these men from New Brunswick and Nova Scotia predominated.

New Brunswick Has A Representative

Lieut. Maurice Rix Who Went Overseas With the 55th from Bathurst Will Row for Henley With the Canadian Four.

New Brunswick will have a representative in the Canadian four, which will row at Henley this summer. In a despatch from London the name of the four is given. Among these is Lieutenant Maurice Rix, who was formerly a private in the 55th Battalion. He enlisted from Bathurst, New Brunswick, where he was engaged with one of the lumber companies. He went to England with the 55th and was drafted to the 6th Montreal Battalion. When that unit was broken up after the Vireux show, Rix was given his commission and sent to the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles Battalion. He was with this unit during the last days of the war. He was transferred last January and was selected as a candidate for the Canadian four to compete at Henley. During the last month he has been training with the other rowers on the Thames.

Chairman Belyea Means Business

Veteran West Side Oarsman Going Ahead With Plans to Develop Rowing and Give Citizens Some Fine Racing.

J. Fred Belyea, the veteran oarsman of West St. John, is chairman of the aquatic committee in connection with the West Side Improvement League. Speaking to The Standard last night, Mr. Belyea stated that it was his intention to put on a "rowing map" again, providing he secures the support which he has no doubt he will receive. Within a week work will be commenced in the construction of four double shells which can also be rowed as singles, and when the oarsmen are trained in these boats the crews will be picked to row the four oared shells. Of the latter case of boats Mr. Belyea says there are already three that are about ready for use and he knows where the fourth can be obtained. The new double is the committee's intention to ask T. McAvity and Sons to donate the shells, and he requests to furnish the outriggers. Chairman Belyea further says that funds will be needed to carry out the plan and he is at present consulting with St. Peter's Y. M. C. A., the Y. M. C. A. and Bathurst to meet with him and obtain joint action in procuring funds. St. Peter's will look after funds in the North End, Y. M. C. A. in the city proper, the Improvement League on the western side of the harbor and Fairville in that district. Mr. Belyea has no doubt that his citizens will respond generously and will be benefited in being able to witness some excellent races.

SIR THOMAS WHITE DEFENDS GOV'T'S BUDGET PROPOSALS

Declares That of All Countries in the War Since the Beginning, Canada's Financial Condition Was the Best—Scores the Opposition for Its Senseless Position.

Ottawa, June 18.—Greater production, said Mr. McColg, was necessary if the high cost of living was to be reduced. He declared that the production of live stock, especially hogs, was suffering because farmers did not feel that the government would protect them against the packers. He stated that he was a strong believer in the nationalization of cold storage houses in Canada. With regard to packing houses, creameries, etc., he would have a careful eye kept on them in order to see that they did not extract unreasonable profits from the consumers. We were betraying the man who was producing and fought overseas, he stated, unless we conscripted the excessive wealth which had been made by individuals as a result of the war. The soldier's great home was in possession with a few dollars in his pocket, and if he were not careful profiteers would shortly deprive him of this hard-earned money.

The duty on agricultural implements had been so high in the past, said Mr. McColg, that comparatively few of the implements were brought into the country. Therefore production was impeded and the revenue of the country was not increased. Practically all of the implements were produced in price in a comparative short time. Sir Thomas White, following Mr. McColg, emphasized the fact that the debt of the national debt was due entirely to the war. He declared that of all nations which had been in the war since the beginning, Canada's financial condition was the best. The national debt of the Dominion at the end of the present year would be about two billion dollars, a conservative estimate. The debt of France was tremendous, and even the United States, which had been only in the war for a year and a half, was now about twenty-five billions. The per capita debt of Canada amounted to about two hundred and fifty dollars, in Australia it was over three hundred dollars.

The member for Kent (Mr. McColg) had taken the stand that the government had been remiss in collecting a share of the profits from industries which had derived benefit from the war for the year and a half was now about twenty-five billions. The member for Kent (Mr. McColg) had taken the stand that the government had been remiss in collecting a share of the profits from industries which had derived benefit from the war for the year and a half was now about twenty-five billions.

Mr. Butts, Cape Breton South, said there were many excellent features in the budget. All great public works, the argument had been built in Canada under protection. "I never knew a free trader in this country," he remarked as the house laughed, "except he was in opposition to the House."

Mr. Butts asked that steps should be taken to secure the release of Sydney coal steamers commandeered by the Imperial government for war purposes. Mr. Loggie (Northumberland, N. B.) expressed himself as being opposed to the McColg amendment. He would support the budget proposals of the Finance Minister as being in the best interests of the country at the present time.

HON. A. L. SIFTON AGAIN SAILS FOR ENGLAND

Expresses Faith in the Good Sense of the People and Believes Western Troubles Will be Settled Amicably.

Halifax, June 18.—Hon. A. L. Sifton arrived in the city tonight to take the steamer Olympic tomorrow for England, where he will attend the peace conference, as the chief representative of Canada, and will sign the treaties of peace with Germany and the other enemy countries. He was met by the Canadian Press and asked if he would say anything about the situation in Winnipeg, he replied: "I have just read the report in the newspapers that there is unrest and the possibility of trouble arising out of the arrest of a number of men in Winnipeg. I have had no opportunity of seeing, much less reading the evidence on which these arrests were made. Arrests are made probably every day in some portion of Canada, sometimes as it turns out afterwards, a man or men against whom there is no evidence, in connection with this matter, I have too much faith in the widespread feeling for justice and fair play among the people of Western Canada to have any doubt that they will await the result of a proper investigation before taking any extreme action."

CONCESSIONS MADE TO THE GERMANS WERE ECONOMIC

Assured a Certain Amount of Financial and Economic Assistance if They Sign the Peace Terms.

Paris, June 18.—The plan of the Allied and Associated Powers to make concessions to Germany with regard to debts and financial and economic measures, if she signed the peace terms, was deemed advisable to assure Germany a certain amount of financial and economic "working capital," without which it would be impossible for her to resume her industries or pay reparations. Among the concessions it was learned today, was to permit Germany the use for two years of thirty per cent of her merchant shipping and facilities for obtaining certain ores and other raw materials, as well as the retention of her gold reserve in order to maintain the German monetary system and foreign credits.

It was originally contemplated to include in the reply given the Germans Monday a definite and detailed statement on these concessions. For tactical reasons, however, the council determined to avoid precise advance assurances to the Germans, and thereupon made in the portion of the response devoted to reparations, a general declaration as follows: "The rebirth of German industry implies the possibility for the German people to receive supplies of food and for German manufacturers to receive necessary raw materials as well as the means of transporting them from overseas to Germany."

Added to this was a formal statement of readiness to accord these facilities to Germany in the common interests. There was considerable discussion between British and other experts as to the amount of general tonnage which should and could be placed at the disposal of Germany during the period immediately after the war to supply the urgent need of raw materials before new ships could be built. Estimates ranged between twenty-five and thirty per cent of the vessels above 1,600 tons.

It is understood that it was agreed ultimately to permit the Germans to defer delivery of a higher percentage until two years after ratification of the treaty. All vessels in this category which are present are to be surrendered ultimately. The French, also, agreed to concessions, giving the Germans the right to purchase, on favorable terms, tinplate ores obtained before the war from French and German Lorraine, which must be mixed with German low grade ore to obtain a good quality of iron and steel.

The contemplated assurances concerning raw materials from overseas, it is said, are to be of the same general nature. All the concessions will be communicated to Germany at an early date after the signing of the treaty, probably at one of the first conferences with the permanent reparations committee.

Woodes sent a circular letter to all of them to ask about the result of their efforts to find satisfactory positions. Their replies have been most encouraging. "Mental tests made on their entrance to the service and on their discharge," said Colonel Woods, "show that about two-thirds of all officers and men discharged from the army have been mentally improved by their service. As a very general rule they are more alert, their judgment is better and more rapidly formed, and their ability to handle subordinates more precise and orderly. In fact, it is hardly to be denied that the average army man is today more suited to better things than before the war."

"We are very gratified to find that fully 30 per cent of the officer applicants for employment soon obtained satisfactory positions for themselves without our aid, as answers to my letter indicate. In addition, 35 per cent more write me that they are employed, but wish better positions. The fact that a man is an honorably discharged officer is apparently of great assistance to him, and in my talks with employers they have assured me that such a man approaches very nearly their ideal for an employee."

"As demobilization continues we daily receive fresh additions to our lists. The positions that could be filled from these are numerous. A goodly number are officers of professional experience and technical training, for whom there should be no difficulty in finding employment. The student class, hitherto unemployed, also offers many recruits for positions of less importance, where self-control and orderly habits of mind are nevertheless essential."

Such little stories as these, and figures, show that the average honorably discharged officer has no difficulty whatsoever in placing himself again in civilian life. Up to date, according to a statement issued recently from the office of Colonel Woods, there have been about 104,000 officers mustered out of service who are now back in civilian life. Of these 8,900 have applied for assistance in finding employment, of whom some 30 per cent were students and had never had positions before. These officer applications have been indexed at the various district offices and in the main office at Washington, and recently Colonel
