CALVARY'S ORCHARD

THREE TREES PLANTED WHICH BORE VERY DIVERSE FRUIT.

THE REDEMPTION OF THE RACE.

The Tree on the Right Bore Poison, That on the Left Bitter Aloes, and the One in the Middle Apples of Love-A Strange Grove in the Opinion of Rev. Dr. Talmage.

Washington, Sept. 9 .- The famous paintings in the picture galleries of Munich seem to have suggested the topic of this discourse, which Dr. Talmage sends from the quaint Bavarian town, but the theme which inspired the painters awakens in the afraid. great preacher thoughts of the redemption of the human race, which was the supreme design of that scene of suffering and death. The text is Luke xxiii, 33, "There they crucified him and the malefactors, one on the right hand and the other on the left."

Just outside of Jerusalem is a swell of ground, toward which a crowd are ascending, for it is the day of execu-tion. What a mighty assemblage! Some for curiosity to hear what the malefactors will say and to see how they will act. The three persons to be executed are already there.

Three crosses in a row-an upright piece and two transverse pieces, one on the top, on which the hands are nailed, and one at the middle, on which the victim sat. Three trees just planted, yet bearing fruit-the one at the right bearing poison and the one at the left bitter aloes, the one in the middle apples of love. Norway pine and tropical orange and Lebanon cedar would not of love. make so strange a grove as this orchard of Calvary. Stand and give a look at the three crosses.

Just look at the cross on the right Its victim dies scoffing. More awful than his physical anguish is his scorn, and hatred of him on the middle cross. This wretched man turns half cross. This wretched man turns hall around on the spikes to hiss at the One in the middle. If the scoffer could get one hand loose and he were within Yeach, he would smite the middle sufferer in the face. He hates him with a perfect hatred. I think he wishes he were down on the moment that he might spear him. He thy kingdom!' "

Ecce Deus! I feel it thoroughly—through every muscle of the body, and pillow of the malefactor, soaked in blood, becomes like the crimson holstery of a king's couch. When the body became still and the surgions every muscle of the body, and through every faculty of my mind, and through every energy of my feeling the pulse said one to anoth-er, "He is dead," the last mark of soul. Bitter herbs are sometimes it yielded bitter aloes. Come now to the middle cross and shake down afraid. Bitter herbs are sometimes a tonic for the body, and the bitter aloes that grow on this tree shall give strength and life to thy soul. This left hand cross is a repenting cross. He says: "I am a guilty wretch. I deserve this. There is no need of my cursing. That will not stop the pain. There is no need of blaspheming Christ, for he has done me no wrong. And yet I cannot die so. The tortures of my body are undone by the tortures of my soul. The past is a scene of misdoing, the present a crucifixion, the future an everlasting undoing. Come back, thou hiding midday sun! Kiss my cheek with one bright ray of com-fort. What, no help from beneath? Then I must turn to my companion in sorrow, the turn to my companion in sorrow, the out these words: An, you pool wretch! I knew you were an impos-tor! You pretended to be a God, and yet you let these legions master you!" It was in some such hate that Voltaire in his death hour, be-cause he thought he saw Christ in his bedroom got up on his elbow and cried out, "Crush that wretch!" What had the middle cross done to arouse up this right hand cross? Nothing. Oh, the enmity of the nat-ural beart arguingt Christ! The world likes a sentimental Christ in the nat-world likes a sentimental Christ or a philanthropic Christ, but a Christ who comes, to snatch men away from their single comes and the sentimental christ their sins-away with him! On his right hand cross to-day I see typified the unbelief of the world. Men say: "Back with him from the heart! I will not let him take my sins. If he will die, let him die for himself, not for me." There has always been a for me." There has always been a war between this right hand cross and the middle cross, and wherever there is an unbelieving heart there the fight goes on. Oh, if when that dying malefactor perished the faith-lessness of man had perished, then that tree which yields poison would have budded and blossomed with life for all the world!

Look up into that disturbed coun-tenance of the sufferer and see what a ghastly thing it is to reject Christ. Behold in that awful face, in that pitiful look, in that unblessed death hour, the stings of the sinner's de-parture. What a plunge into darkness! Standing high upon the cross on the top of the hill, so that all the world may look at him, he says, "Here I go out of a miserable life into a wretcjed eternity!" One! Two! Three! Listen to the crash of the fall, all ye ages! So Hobbes, dying after he had 70 years in which to prepare for eternity, said, "Were I master of all the world, I would give it all to live one day longer." Sir Francis Newport, hovering over the brink, cried out: "Wretch that I am, whither shall I fly from this breast? What will become of me? Oh, that I were to lie upon the fire that never is quenched a thousand years to purchase the favor of God and to be reconciled to him again! Oh, eternity! Oh, eternity! Who can discover the abyss of eternity?

Who can paraphrase these words, 'Forever and forever?' " That right hand cross, with its long bean, overshadows all the earth. It is planted in the heart of the race. When will the time come when the spirit of God shall, with its ax, hew down that right hand cross until it shall fall at the foot of that middle cross, and unbelief, the railing malefactor of the world, shall perish from all our hearts? Away from me, thou spirit of un-belief! I hate thee! With this sword of God I thrust thee back and belief! thrust thee through. Down to hell; down, most accursed monster of the earth, and talk to those thou hast already damned! Talk no longer to these sons of God, these heirs of heaven. That gate is locked. You go to it with a bunch of keys. You try philosophy. That will not open it. A large door generally has a ponderous key. I take the cross and place the foot of it in the lock, and by the two arms of the cross I time he take the iter of Gilead."
