Vestry Clerk.—F. S. Hanford, Esq.

Mr. Willis's Maritime Union figures are visionary. He expects to save $100,000; but $20,00°) of this is to be added to local taxation—a not very profitable saving. New Brunswick might "save", a great many thousands annually by withholding grants for services that might be supported by local taxation. Mr. Willis, in estimating the expense of the natural sequence of language and ideas in the most reckless manner. The Board of Education had better stop right here, and add no work tence. Mr. Rand, if he is the responsible party, should be bottled up, exported, or bribed to discontinue the book business.

Mr. Willis, in estimating the expense of master this history before another work Mr. Willis, in estimating the expense of the united Legislature, fails to make allowance for the salary-grabbing propensities of legislators; and his estimate of the expenses of the new Executive is simply childish. Coming from a school boy it would be only silly; coming from one who has had Mr. Willis's experience it is dishonest. And yet the Maritime Union may be a good thing. We like the idea of union better than the arguments used in support of it.

LEGISLATURE OF NEW BRUNSWICK.

After recess Mr. Willis resumed. He said any one who stops to consider the expense of running three Legislatures, with all the machinery of Government, for three small Provinces, and to contrast it with the expense of running one united body, must feel satisfied in his own mind that a saving would be effected by union. First, there would be a saving of $16,000 to the whole country on the salaries of Governors, as well as a fursalaries of Governors, as well as a fur-ther saving of many thousands of dollars to the three Provinces concerned in keep-ing up establishments which under union will be dispensed with. There will be will be dispensed with. There will be a further saving in Executive management and in Legislative expenses. The Executive, the expenses of the three Provinces range as high as $54,470 - bc-ing $21,650 for Nova Scotia, $21 270 for New Brunswick, and $11,550 for Prince Edward Island. Under the scheme of union, as he would propose it, a saving in this class of expenditure of $18,870 would be effected.

The next saving would be in Legislative expenses. At present the cost is $91,853, being $40,837 for Nova Scotia, $31,192 for New Brunswick, and $19,823 for Prince Edward Island. Under the scheme of Union he proposed to lessen for Prince Edward Island. Under the scheme of Union he proposed to lessen this expense $36,381. By dispensing with the three Houses of Assembly, which comprise 109 members, and three Legislative Councils, and establishing one House of Assembly of 60 members, and one Legislative Council of 20 members, the cost of the former would be $27,849, and of the latter $8,531. This, of course, simply embraces the pay and travelling expenses of members, but there must be added the ordinary expenses of machinery for carrying on these bodies, which figured at $17,070, and added to the sums already given, would make the total cost something in the neighborhood of $53,351. These amounts added to the savings already computed,
