FALSE JOY

Railroad Man Indulged Therein for Two Weeks, knowing not that Sorrow had fallen.

Wm. Carkner, who works on the Lake Erie R. R. and honors MacDonald's boarding house near the C. P. R. station, by sleeping and feeding there, is lamenting the loss of $365 from his grip.

He hadn't bothered examining his grip to see if the necessary lure was still in its hiding place, for over a month. Meanwhile, boarders have come and boarders have gone, but the money has gone for ever. At least it looks that way. Mr. Carkner might have been mourning the loss of his money a couple of weeks sooner, perhaps, had he looked in his grip, but what the eye doesn't know for, things about the heart can't long for, and Mr. Carkner in ignorance that is bliss longed not.

The police have the matter in hand but have little hopes of securing either the money or the thief.

FROM HORSE

Alex. Cross Met a Tragic Death Yesterday in Windsor.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 9.—In a little cottage on McKay avenue, Windsor, a broken-hearted mother paced the floor last night, weeping and thinking of her little son, whom she expected home to tea, but who was lying dead at a city morgue. Her grief was the more poignant, as she had not seen her child since Sunday night. He pleaded then to be allowed to go to Toronto with the Essex Fusiliers, but permission had been refused. Alex. Cross, the unfortunate lad, while riding early last evening behind Charles Drouillard's butcher wagon, on Langlois avenue, near the Tecumseh Road, was thrown into the ditch by his horse suddenly shying. Consequence of the brain caused death in half an hour, the boy being before the arrival of doctors. The coroner decided not to hold an inquest.

"Alex. was employed by Charles Drouillard," said Mrs. John A. Cross, the boy's mother. "He was very fond of horses. He used to come home twice a week, and I last saw him Sunday evening, until I was called to Janina's house to-night. He wished to accompany his brother Walter, corporal in the bugle band, to Toronto, but it could not be arranged for him to go. If he had gone he might still be alive."

Mrs. Cross has just returned from Woodstock, where her father is lying at the point of death. John Cross is employed as engineer on the Great Western in Windsor. Alex. was 16 years of age.

English News Concerning it—Fast Atlantic Service.

London, Oct. 9.—Doubt is thrown in well-informed circles upon the statements published, that the fast Atlantic service negotiations are so far advanced as to permit the issue of invitations for tenders within a fortnight, with Sydney, Cape Breton, as the Canadian terminus. It is known here that one of the North of England shipbuilding firms, hitherto unconcerned with the negotiations, has been making considerable detail enquiry, but nothing definite has been decided upon.

The president of the Board of Agriculture has decided so far not to open the question of the admission of Canadian cattle as to receive a deputation of Scottish agriculturists who desire a removal of the embargo. The Agricultural Journal cover the ministry with warnings of the terrible risks of importing disease, forgetful that the president himself admitted that the embargo cannot be justified on the grounds of disease. It must be justified, if justified at all, on the grounds of a general policy.

A Canadian with a degree of Bachelor of Medicine, from Toronto University, now in England, having spent a year at the front in South Africa as a sergeant in the Canadian artillery, recently offered his services to the War Office, mentioning as qualifications that he was a graduate in medicine from Toronto University, and had seen active service. The War Office politely rejected the offer, on the ground that his medical degree had not been taken in England. A prominent British officer expressed the opinion to-day that the training record of cadets at the Canada Royal Military College was superior to that given by the British military colleges. He declared that the cadets from Canada were exceptionally well grounded.

Murray Ferguson, cornet soloist, Edwin H. and Kitie Deagon, novel sketch artists and song illustrators. The play last evening to an exceptionally large house.

THE BOSTONIANS.

Comic opera, worthily presented, is always a potent attraction with theatre-goers generally, and the announcement of the appearance here at the Grand on Thursday, Oct. 17th, of the famous Bostonians has already stimulated interest in fashionable and musical circles. This company has been famous since its identification with the operatic successes of the lyricists, and little remains to be added in their praise. It is claimed, however, that all that good taste and money can possibly procure is a feature every season with the tours of this company. Among the noted artists who are announced to appear here are a list of singers, each of whom is a star of the first rank, and whose concerted efforts are a feature of the highest type of comic opera entertainment. Thoroughly re-organized this year, the list includes such well-known favorites as Henry Clay Barnabe, W. H. Macdonald, Albert Parr, Allen Hunkley, George Frothingham, Adele Bafter, Josephine Barlett, Frances Miller, Gertrude Zimmer, W. H. Fitzgerald, Vernon Siles, MacDonald, Dorritt, Chas. J. Swickard and others. A brilliant chorus of fifty voices and a trained orchestra will be in support and their greatest success, "Robin Hood," by De Koven and Smith, will be sung here.

A Photographer Found the Duke of Cornwall a Pleasant Man.

A well-known photographer has written the following interesting account concerning Royalty he has had the honor of photographing:

"The Duke of York is one of the most pleasant and most natural of sitters, and soon makes you feel quite at home, quite at ease. The last time I had the honor of taking his Royal Highness he came himself to my studio. 'I am in a great hurry,' he said, in his usual frank way. 'Do you mind "snapping" me of just as I am? Any position will do, won't it?' If your Royal Highness will allow me to make a suggestion, I replied, 'I would advise you to be taken as you are now—with your hand in your pocket. The position is most natural.' 'A good idea,' said his Royal Highness, briskly. 'Yes, I think I will take your advice. I am going to open a bazaar in half an hour's time, and, as I shall have to put my hand in my pocket all the time I am there, I may as well keep it in now for practice.'

"Two or three years ago I was 'doubly' honored, so to speak, by receiving a visit (only half an hour's notice) from the German Emperor and the Prince of Wales, both together. How full of spirits, and almost 'jolly' I might say, both were! The Kaiser, looking round the walls of my studio, noticed in the most conspicuous place a large photograph of her Majesty the Queen. 'May God bless her!' earnestly, yet quite naturally, said Kaiser Wilhelm. 'The noblest monarch England has ever produced!'

"Yes, yes," said the Prince of Wales, affectionately, 'and the dearest mother the world has ever seen!'

"A somewhat ludicrous incident now occurred. Just after I had taken the Kaiser, owing perhaps to excitement or perturbation on my part, I caught my foot in the camera stand, and over went the 'lola' 'Halloa!' cried the Emperor, laughing heartily: the downfall of the German Kaiser at last! 'Yes, indeed,' said the Prince, helping me, 'quite unexpectantly, to pick up the camera. What a magnificent "head-bang" for a paper! The German Emperor cast to the ground! The Prince of Wales to the rescue!'

"When the venerable King of Sweden was last in England some months ago his Majesty came to my studio in order to be photographed. A perfect linguist; a delicate craftsman; a witty monarch; King Oscar, for fully half an hour made me the happiest of snappers. 'I suppose you have taken nearly every "big" man who has visited these shores of yours, eh?' said his Majesty, as he arranged himself in a business-like way before the 'Kruger, by the way? No, your Majesty; that honor has never fallen to my lot.' I replied, 'Ah! and I the King thoroughly enjoyed the joke; the next time the honor will belong to Lord Roberts, I imagine?'—London Tit Bits.

SHARK SKINS AND SHARK FINS.

In all the equatorial islands of the North and South Pacific shark fishing is a very profitable industry to the natives, and every trading steamer and sailing vessel coming into the ports of Sydney or Auckland brings some tons of fins, tails and skins of sharks. The principal markets for the former are Hong Kong and Singapore, but the "chinese" merchants of the Australasian colonies will always buy sharks fins and tails at from sixpence to elevenpence per pound, the fins bringing the best price or amount of the larger amount of glutinous matter they contain, for which they are highly relished by the richer classes of Chinese as a delicacy. The tails are also appreciated as an article of food in China, and apart from their edible qualities, they have a further value as a base for clear varnishes, etc. It is stated on the authority of a Chinese tea merchant, that the glaze on the paper coverings of tea chests is due to a preparation composed principally of the refuse of the sharks' fins, tails and skins. All the natives of the Gilbert, Kingman, and other equatorial Pacific islands are expert shark fishermen, the wild people of Ocean Island (Panapa) and Pleasant Island (Nauru), two isolated spots almost in the equator being facile principles in the art. Chambers' Journal.

Still There was a Profit.

"And, now, doctor," said the patient, as he prepared to depart with the mixture, the lotion and the pills, "what have I to pay?"

"Oh, say 7s. 6d.," replied the doctor.

"Make it even, doctor."

"Well, well, we won't quarrel about trifles."

The patient laid a sixpence on the table and, with a polite "Good morning," was making for the door, when the doctor called after him:

"Stop! stop! what's this?"

"It's all right, doctor," blandly replied the patient. "You said you would make it even, and everyone knows that six is even and seven odd."

"Get you gone, you scoundrel!" roared the irate medical man. "I've fourpence out of you, after all!"—Tit-Bits.

English Co-operation.

The English Co-operative Congress has been holding its annual meeting at Middlesbrough. As most people know, this movement began at Rochdale in 1843 (twenty-eight workmen in that town subscribing a pound apiece in order to buy their household needs wholesale instead of retail). The society, with this modest beginning, has bloomed into 1,494 distributing societies, having a membership of 1,709,371, with a share capital amounting to over a hundred million dollars, doing a trade of $250,000,000 and handing back to the membership profits to the extent of $38,000,000 annually. It is a remarkable instance of the growth of what may be called an economic movement.

ALL GRADES OF Wool Underwear

"Allah," said the old Arab proverb, "adds to a man's life the days he spends in hunting."

A true modern version would be that a man lengthens his chances of life by changing his underwear to suit every great change of temperature. Too heavy underclothing is enervating; too thin garments next the skin are the cause of many an autumn ailment.

We are now showing over twenty sorts of all-wool and union knitwear for men, not to mention the ever seasonable Deimel linen goods and the heavy winter cottons. This count includes men's goods only, but when it comes to boy's underclothing—just bring the boy and see.

Prices range as low or as high as you will care to go. A word to-day about men's garments at a dollar and thereabouts.

All-wool suits in fancy green-stripe. Shirts have satin bound neck and satin bound skirt. Trousers finished drawers with white satin waistband, pearl buttons, ribbed ankle. Sizes 36 to 40 at per garment

Very warm gray mottled wool with blue banded cuffs, skirt and ankle. The shirts are cashmere bound and drawers satreen trimmed. Sizes 36 to 40, all one price

RANSOM FUND

Subscription in Aid of Miss Stone not Increasing Rapidly.

Boston, October 9.—Additions to the Miss Stone ransom fund have practically ceased. Only two small checks were received to-day. The fund aggregates nearly $36,000.

Washington, October 9.—This afternoon a cablegram was received by the state department from Consul General Dickinson, at Constantinople, saying that Miss Stone had been located in the mountains on the Turkish frontier, and that on Saturday last she was alive and well.

The time allowed by Miss Stone's kidnappers expired yesterday, yet she is still alive and unharmed. It is known now officially that her captors have granted a short extension of time—how much is not stated—and the officials feel that if the responses to the appeals of Miss Stone's friends do not cease or diminish there is yet reasonable hope for getting the money in season to save her life. The danger in the situation lies in the abatement of popular interest which was so generously manifested during the first few days following the issuance of the appeal.

Children Cry for CASTORIA

IN THE PAST

Officer Groves was indulging in Retro-spective Meditation this Morning.

"Her Bright Smile haunts me still," is the love song that Officer Groves was merrily carolling this morning, as he sat in Judge Houston's office and permitted his memory to carry him back two days.

The policeman was recalling a raid that the officers recently indulged in when Annie Jenkins, Mabel Harris and Annie Williams were gathered in. They were found as sleeping beauties, but yesterday at the police court they were missing beauties.

"I met Annie on the street Tuesday," said Officer Groves, "and she smiled up at me and blushed as she went by. I knew something was in the wind, and I wasn't surprised when the ready three didn't appear yesterday. Their furniture was shipped yesterday and they have left a few friends and a few bills behind. I haven't forgot her smile, that's what makes me sing."

"They were only here about a year, but they made friends fast. They say there is luck in odd numbers, but this time they were up against hard luck. Pulled twice by the police in five weeks. No wonder they thought it was time to be up and going, with a heart for better fate."
