

"THEY FORGAT GOD THEIR SAVIOUR."

What thou hearest may be forgotten, but what thou readest may better be retained.

Forsake not the public worship of God, lest God forsake thee, not only in public, but in private.

In the week-days, when thou risest in the morning, consider—1. Thou must die. 2. Thou mayest die that minute. 3. What will become of thy soul. Pray often. At night consider—1. What sins thou hast committed. 2. How often thou hast prayed. 3. What hast thy mind been bent upon. 4. What hath been thy dealing? 5. What thy conversation? 6. If thou callest to mind the errors of the day, sleep not without a confession to God, and a hope of pardon. Thus, every morning and evening make up thy accounts with Almighty God, and thy reckoning will be less at last.—Bunyan.

"They forgat God their Saviour."

Psa. cvi. 21.

SHALL Christ, my Saviour, be forgot,
Or seldom brought to mind?
Shall all His love and mercy shown
To oblivion be consigned?

When for my sake He left His throne,
And laid His glory by,
Came down to earth in human form,
To suffer, bleed, and die;

When He, with His own precious blood,
Washed all my guilt away,
Shall I of Him unmindful be,
Ingratitude repay?

When He has suffered in my stead,
And cancelled all my debt,
Shall I for aught this world affords,
My Saviour e'er forget?

No; never shall He be forgot,
While life's prolonged to me;
Till I behold Him face to face
He shall remembered be.

Then when before His throne I stand,
Salvation's song I'll sing,
And evermore love and adore
My Saviour and my King.
