

LET the young men and the young women of our country resolve upon reading and studying such things as will benefit them in every way mentally and morally. Let them read good books, standard books on history and natural science, general literature, religion, etc., and be sure they will find their account in it in the saving of time, in the strengthening the intellect, in the cultivation of the moral perceptions, in the fitting them for useful and happy lives, while it shall please God to spare them to their country and friends, and in enabling them to prepare for an unfeigned existence of peace and joy in the world to come.—Dr. J. A. SPENCER.
