The story of the tragedy is interesting. His child was sick and the Indian agent on the One Arrow reserve did not pay any attention to the pleas of Almighty Voice for assistance. The Indian then killed one of the government cattle. A warrant was sworn out, but he left and was working eastward when Sergt. Colbrook, of the R.N.W.M.P., overtook him near Melfort. He told Colbrook to keep back or he would shoot but Colbrook kept advancing and Almighty Voice shot him in the hreast. For long time he was a fugitive until May 1897, the Mounted Police again pair of scissors and had them in her got word that he was on the One mouth.
