

VARIETIES.

A Room in Damascus. The floor is of two levels: the first or lowest, into which you enter, contains a fountain with several spouts of water, is paved with marble, has racks for pipes, recesses in the walls for nargiles, cups, &c., and other conveniences for the household. Here the slaves await the will of their masters, and here you put off the slippers, before you ascend to the second level, where the mats are spread and the family sitting. Over this fountain is suspended, from the highest part of the ceiling, a chandelier, with a great many little glass-lamps, whose various lights, mingling with the waters, and reflected from them, produce a very beautiful effect. The second level is twelve or eighteen inches higher than the first, and is the place appropriated to the family; it is often separated from the lower part by a little railing of wood or stone. Mats are spread upon the earthen-floor, and round the walls mattresses three feet or three feet and a half broad, are spread out for the accommodation of the family, or upon low wooden frames four or six inches in height. The ceilings are lofty and ornate; beautiful carving, interspersed with numerous little looking-glasses, relieves and gratifies the eye, and very often the circular centre-piece is composed of massive embossement, in which a gigantic serpent, displaying its beautiful folds and glancing eyes, seems ready to spring upon you. Let the sun now shed his golden beams through the upper windows, which are of beautiful stained glass; let the golden letters in panels upon the walls appear in their beauty; let hundreds of little looking-glasses above and around you reflect and multiply every object and movement; place a number of richly-clothed Turks, with long beards and flowing robes, upon the divan, amidst soft mattresses and velvet cushions, with long pipes in their mouths; add to all this, the unceasing murmur of falling waters, and you have a scene really beautiful, and truly Oriental.—Graham's Jordan and the Rhine.

THE ART OF HEALTH.—Walking is the best possible exercise. Habituate yourself to walk very far. The Europeans value themselves on having subdued the horse to the use of man, but I doubt whether we have not lost more, than we have gained by this animal; for no one thing has occasioned so much degeneracy of the human body. An Indian goes on foot nearly as far in a day, as an enfeebled white does on his horse, and will tire the best horses.

ALL THINGS CREATED WITH A PURPOSE.—In the days of Mohammed, there lived an Arab who had a very pretty wife. The Devil tempted himself into so accurate a likeness of her husband, that she could not, for the life of her, tell which of the two was her real husband. Both claimed her,—i. e., her real husband, and the Devil in his likeness. The case excited much interest in the neighborhood, but no solution of the difficulty could be obtained. At length, the case was brought to the Prophet for solution.

Mohammed, after a little reflection, held up a small earthen pot in his hand, with a spout in it like a teapot, and said to them both, "now, whichever is the real husband, will enter into this vessel by the spout, and thus establish his claim to the woman."

The Devil, as having more capacity in that way than the sturdy Arab of real flesh and bones, entered at once into the pot, as suggested. The moment he entered, Mohammed closed the top of the spout and kept him shut in.

But, by the time Mohammed had kept his "excellency" shut up for a few days in that earthen pot, it was ascertained, that the world was getting wrong in its machinery. Mohammed extorted from him a solemn promise, that he would never trouble the "fair sex" any more, but confine himself to what he could do amongst the "male sex."—Mohammed Tradition.
