Why Is The Catholic Church So Opposed To Divorce

It should rather be asked why mis-mated do not consider the are not the Protestant churches rights of the children. It is true that many individuals must suffer a hardship by being denied the privilege of remarry ing after separation, but laws are made for the general good. Every law will work a hardship some people. If people foreknew that the marriage they were about to enter was to endure for life, they would not only be more cautious about the step, but would try harder to live harmoniously In countries where there exist no divorce law wedded couples live more harmoniously than they do in this country.

If the Almighty has called most people to the married state, it is plain they will find happiness therein if only they will pray for direction in their choice and, by honorable courtship, merit a blessing on their union.

The Catholic Church regard marriage as a Sacrament; St Paul calls it by that name (Eph Our habits make us. We are creatures of habit. Whether we are a success ora V. 32.) Marriage is sacred, not Author, and because Christ honored a marriage by His first appearance in public life, but also

Workers In Spain

Catholic miners and workers rom the Provinces of Leon, Santandar and Valencia, in Spain, hronged the streets of the episopal city of Valladolid, where the Syndicate of Catholic Workers and Spanish Miners held its annual conference. The confernces were held in the headquarers of the Catholic Social Guild of Valladolid, and a circular letter, giving the list of subjects diaussed, shows that the Syndicate is wide awake to the needs of the workers, and means to press for securing for them the due recognition of their rights under the laws of Spain.
