A Sound Policy.

In reference to our article of yesterday, in which we quoted from a speech delivered by Sir Robert Bond in the House of Assembly twenty-eight years ago on the need of encouraging agricultural development, the Daily News reports this morning that in "thus praising the young aspirant politician of the 80's," we are "condemning the experienced leader of the present." We do not admit the contention, nor do we think the facts warrant the conclusion of the editor of the Daily News that Sir Robert Bond's work for the encouragement of Agriculture shows "thirty years of failure." To our mind the policy which Sir Robert Bond inaugurated in 1908 was a worthy culmination of the advocacy of the young politician of 1882. It showed that he was working on proper and sound lines and on lines whose direction had led to phenomenal success elsewhere. True it is that the foundations of this world-wide acclaimed policy have been ruthlessly destroyed, and practically every stone of the edifice has been torn apart by the Agricultural Huns who obtained charge of public affairs in 1909. But that does not dim the glory of Sir Robert Bond, it tarnishes the reputation for good sense of those who have destroyed it. In 1882 Sir Robert Bond advocated the training of our people to be farmers by settling experienced farmers on the land and affording our people an object lesson of what practical and trained farmers could do with the resources which our country affords.

C. P. Eagan,

He has himself set the example by farming on a large scale himself, and invested large sums of money in experimenting and trying what he could do in a practical way to show the capability of the soil and climate of Newfoundland for agricultural purposes. Sir Robert Bond has done this in his private capacity, and never claimed any merit as a public man for work in this capacity. But how have his political opponents treated his private efforts to promote farming? He has never asked them to encourage or aid him. At least, they might have let his efforts alone, for after all they were matters of a private nature and not of public concern. They have however not done so. For twenty years they have hounded down his private efforts at farming. They have imputed his farming as a fault. There has never been an election campaign for the past twenty years but an attack has been made on his farming at Whitbourne, and this has been done down to the present time, and the latest phase of it was seen in the Chronicle last week. During the last two election campaigns Sir Robert Bond, as a farmer, was subjected to the most brutal attacks both by cartoon and lampoon, and these came from the party posing to the country as the friend of farmers. Fortified by his practical experience in farming in Newfoundland, strengthened by his visits to farms, experimental, model and commercial, abroad, a close student of agricultural advancement elsewhere, the young politician of 1882 brought his matured experience of 1908 to bear upon the problem, and advocated a policy which was embodied in the Act of 1908. This policy, as we have frequently pointed out, has revolutionized farming in Denmark, Ireland and Canada, and is being pursued with success in the States, in England, and on the Continent of Europe. It converted a bankrupt farming country like Denmark into the most successful farming country on the other side of the Atlantic. What reception did his political opponents give to it? Sir Edward Morris expressed approval of it in a lengthy speech. Then when the Assembly closed, his party for political expediency repudiated it and vilified it in the grossest terms. Its members instituted a rival policy, which has proved a veritable failure. They made further inroads on the Placeman's Act and gained power to utilize the money meant to promote Agriculture to provide salaries for certain members of their party in the Legislature. To-day the country recognizes that the Morris policy is a gross failure, and is merely a means of scattering Government money broadcast. Farmers are calling for an Experimental Station, as the Bill of 1908 contemplated. On all hands the Morris policy is condemned and it is seen the Bond policy was on right lines.

Missing Schr. Turns Up.

The anxieties expressed for the schooner Emmie M., Capt. E. Moore, which left Lark Harbor on the 18th inst., fish laden to J. Baird Ltd., have ended in relief. The Emmie M. was expected to reach here in a week but she took around about course, coming through the Belle Isle Straits, hence grave fears were held out for her safe arrival. The Marine and Fisheries Department were acquainted and last night at this morning they were busy telegraphing the different stations on the S. W. Coast for particulars of the Emmie. To-day the Telegram was informed by the owners, who received a message that the craft had arrived at Seidom-Come-By, safely, and all hands well.

Two years ago, it may be remembered, the schr. Arkansas left the same place as the Emmie M., fish laden for the same firm. She was given up as lost with all hands and put into port safely after a three months passage.

LATEST War News

Whole Division Decimated

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day. From uncensored accounts of fighting at Kirk Killiseh, just reaching here from Constantinople, by way of Kosenjo, Roumania, it appears that in the night of Oct. 21st, a Turkish force was out with the intention of making a surprise attack on the Bulgarian army, converging on Kirk Killiseh. The night was stormy and violent storms of wind and rain followed by a heavy downpour, beating upon the troops drenching them to the skin. Before they started the column was divided into separate parts, advancing along a road in parallel formation. At dawn the advance guard of the Turkish troops came into contact with Bulgarians and a severe engagement ensued. The Bulgarians were discovered to be in overwhelming strength, merely a light vanguard had been expected, owing to darkness or possibly some error in the route followed or to some confusion of instructions, one of the Turkish columns mistook another body of Turkish troops for Bulgarians and delivered a violent attack, causing heavy losses. The Turks were soon compelled to give way before the Bulgarian advance. Cavalry attempted to charge but were severely punished. The Bulgarians fired upon the retreating cavalry. The cavalry horses started a panic among the Turkish infantry, who precipitately bolted, although the reserves finally succeeded in stemming the torrent of their flight. Details of the casualties are unavailable but it is alleged one Turkish division was virtually decimated.

HELGRADE, To-day.

Servian troops have taken the town, Mitrovica, on the railroad north of Uskup, and Verisoritz has also fallen into their hands, according to a despatch from the Servian base at the frontier. Fifteen quick-firing cannons, four thousand rifles and a mass of ammunition were abandoned by the Turkish troops during the retreat. All the neighboring small towns also surrendering to the Servians. It is asserted here that the Turkish troops evacuated Uskup in such haste that they killed one another in fighting for places in the wagons and railroad carriages. The Servians captured 98 field guns, 15 howitzers and a lot of railroad rolling stock. The Servian army pursued the Turks and overtook them on the plains beyond the city. The Serbs inflicted another defeat on Turkish forces at Verisoritz, where the Arnaut tribesmen lost fifteen guns, four thousand rifles, while one thousand of them were captured.

He told that he had been paid a visit by a member of another craft the same evening. The police were going to arrest this man as a suspect but on approaching the pier where the schooner was lying found that the vessel had sailed away.

"What," asks the Atchison Globe, "is the secret of Billy Burke's tremendous popularity?" The secret of Miss Burke's popularity is that she is good looking.

If you are a close observer you have doubtless noticed that the bearded lady in the sideshow has a good deal of competition outside the profession.

"I notice," said Eph Wiley yesterday, "that Mrs. Darius Kimmund has stopped criticising society."

"Yes," Buck Kilby replied, "society has begun to invite Mrs. Kimmund to its parties."

The fact that Chief Justice White was a Confederate soldier has created no commotion. But there was a time when one could have primed a riot with it.

There still are a number of sterling citizens who believe the proper place to wear evening clothes is in a photograph.

Mr. Carnegie's picture also suggest that one with a neck as short as his must find it a great trial to wear a collar.

A boy begins to notice the girls about the time he begins voluntarily to wash his neck and ears.

What finally became of the little man who was referred to as a "banty?"

There still are, we are not overly pleased to observe, attorneys who consider the cross examination of a woman until she cries, successful feat.

Occasionally, the woman get in free. But the men always have to pay.

Tribute to a Newsboy.

Who gave up his life for another.

Billy Rugh, the Gary, Indiana, newsboy, who gave his life for another, was given a funeral on Tuesday last, what was never known before. The boy saved the life of a young girl, who was seriously burned, by giving her the skin from his crumpled leg. The surgeons were compelled to cut off the leg, as it was nearly stripped of skin. This the boy bore bravely, saying he was glad to make the sacrifice. Shortly after the operation he died. Kings and statesmen beloved by nations have been paid greater homage in pagentry and grandeur, but his was a spontaneous tribute from the hearts of men and women in honour of a hero. Fifteen thousand persons, singing "Nearer, My God to Thee," crowded about his casket on a street corner in Gary, Indiana. By their various number they had blocked a mile long funeral cortege and prevented the holding of a church service. Strong men of many races, working in steel mills that were closed in Hugh's honour, wept as they formed in line with their employers and walked slowly past the casket of the dead newsboy. Their wives and children were with them, and many stretched forth their hands in an effort to express their reverence by offering money for the erection of a monument.
