"I only know what you yourself have said bout him," said Lucia, demurely, "Good girl I always take your father's advice about young men and you'll not be mistaken in human nature. Which cut of the reast chicken shall I send up to your room?" "On, I'll try to come down, as it's only Phil; maybe I can coax Margie to help me dress."

Phil; maybe I can coax Margie to help medress.

Lucia slipped slowly from the room, but went up the stairs like a whirlwind. The merchant sat down at the piano and made as dreadful a succession of noises as the muchafflicted instrument had ever endured. He had to do something.

A quarter of an hour later Lucia floated down stairs in a robe of pale blue, her face is fresh and bright as dawn.

"Sunrise at sunset!" exclaimed her father.

"Well, girls are possessed to upset the natural order of things, I suppose. But, my dear daughter, you've put the rouge on too thick; don't you think so?"

"Father!" exclaimed the girl, and the flush of her cheeks spread to her brow.

"Edgar," said Mrs. Tramlay, who came in a moment or two after, "see how foolish you were to think Lucia ill. I never saw her looking better."

"Yes," said the merchant, dryly; "I told her the doctor was coming. That's often chough to cure the aliments of some children, you know." Then the merchant devoted ten minutes of business tact to the sask of explaining to his wife the reasons of Philip's return to New York; he also call the same that the same that the same that the same to build the first and handsomest house on the new property Mrs. Tramlay would naturally be the fashionable cader of whatever section or sub-section of occlety might select the place as a summer tome. Pinil was not so happy as he should have een while on his way to the Tramlays'. He condered how he should be able to greet a construction that he would cause him. He had a firm conviction that he would feel awkward and act accordingly, and his remembrance of various men whom he had seen behaving awkwardly in the presence of young ladies made him quite crtain that Lucia and Margie would laugh thim when his back was turned. He did to realize that in meeting, as well as in institution once person. Neither did he take not consideration the tact which some had seen beautiful that he was sure was sober and at, Lucia approached him with a pleasant mile and exclaimed, as heartily and unflectedly as if she were a Haynton girl. How do you do, Phil? I'm ever so glad see you back again."

Away went all sense of soberness, hesitation and doubt; the young man's soul lepped to his face, and he held so long the little and offered him that Lucia, perhaps remembering some impulsive demonstrations that graceful member, withdrew it before any attempt to release it had begun. Then the girl began a rapid series of questions about Hayn farm and it occupants, and Phil made cheery replies, and Tramlay, after gazing at the couple from the back parlor, retired to his library to indulge unfustrated in as much vigorous and affirmative head shaking as the situation seemed to instife.

but Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy costs less than one doctor's visit. Catarrh is a loathsome, dangerous disease, and the time has come when to suffer from it is a disgrace. No person of culture and refinement cares to inflict upon his friends his offensive breath, disgusting hawking and spitting and disagreeable efforts to breathe freely and clear the throat and nose—hence the cultured and refined use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. And no wise and prudent man cares to run the risk of leaving his family without a protector, by letting his 'slight catarrh" run into serious or fatal throat and lung troubles, hence the wise and prudent use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. The proprietors of this remedy are so confident of its curative properties, that they have made a standing offer of a reward of $500 for a case they cannot cure.

Untoil Alisery—What a Well-Known Commercial Traveler Suffered, and How He Was Cured,—Gentlemen,—About five years ago I began to be troubled with dyspepsia, and for three years suffered untoil misery, from this terrible complaint. I was at that time traveling for Messrs. Walter Woods & Co., Hamilton, and was treated by some of the best physicians in the country, but all to no purpose. I continued to grow worse, one day I was in duced to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vederable Discoverx, and to my great surprise and joy, I soen began to improve. I continued using this medicine, and when the third bottle was finished I found I was entirely cured; and as a year has elapsed since then, I feel confident that the cure is complete and permanent. To all afflicted with this distressing complaint. I heartily recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vederable Discovers, believing that the persistent use of it will cure any case of dyspepsia. (Signed.) T. S. Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. Oscoon,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

Dr. J. F. KINCHELOS,

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the most is of Castoria have won us to look with merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
