A Kick From Austria. VIENNA, May 11.-The Austrian Government has formally protested against the action of the Russian authorities in expelaction of the Russian authorities in eaper-ling from Russian-Poland Herr Roxwadow-ski, a member of the Austrian Reichstag, and an owner of land in Russian-Poland, on which he was living when ordered to leave the country by the Russian officials.

Governor-General of Canada. LONDON, May 11.-It is officially stated that the Earl of Aberdeen has been appointed Governor-General of Canada in place of the Earl of Derby, formerly Baron Stanley of Preston, who is about to retire from the office of Governor-General to which he was appointed in 1888.

ODESSA, May 11.—The Jewish inhabitants of Caucasia have been ordered to remove from their present homes to within the southwestern pale. About one-third of the Jewish population of Libau, the Baltic seaport, will be expelled within the coming six months, greatly to the detriment of the town, in which they form an influential part of the commercial community.

Drought Diminishes Italy's Grain

ROME, May 11 .- Reports to the Government from the prefects of the various districts throughout Italy show that the tricts throughout Italy show that the drought has caused such damage to the grain crops that Italy will be compelled to import this year 113,500,000 bushels of grain in excess of the ordinary amount imported. As the duty is 5 lire on a quintal, the receipts on this account will probably cover the deficit in the Italian budget.

The Emperor's Disturbing Speech. BERLIN, May 11.—The Kaiser's address on his officers on the Templfer feld continues to be the leading subject of discussion everywhere. The Pope and the Pilgrims.

Rome, May 11 .- The facts in regard to reception of German pilgrims by the Pope, which brought out a remonstrance from the Prussian Government, are these: On Tuesday last the Pope gave a formal reception to 500 German Catholic pilgrims. These pilgrims were conducted by Dr. Steinle, the bishop of Eichstadt, in Bavaria, and they presented an address in Latin, which was read to his Holiness. The Pope replied in the Latin language. He culogized the services of the German Catholic press in the cause of the church, and reterred to the pilgrimages which had come to Rome from every quarter of the world as a proof of a reawakening among the people everywhere in spite of irreligious propagandaism. His Holiness above all praised those Catholics who were fighting to restore the independence of the Holy See, and he again proclaimed the necessity of that independence for the sake of the church. The Pope concluded by exhorting the faithful to labor for the amelioration of the condition of the working classes in the spirit of the Papal encyclical upon the subject. It was probably the reference to the former temporal power of the Papacy that gave offense at Berlim because likely to give offense at the Quirinal.

Joseph Chamberlain commented upon the scarcity of amendments proposed by supporters of the Government. He supposed they recognized the fact that the bill was only a sham one, and therefore proposed amendments only pour faire rie. He himself was anxious to know what were the intentions of the Government concerning Ulster. Was there any plan that Ulster should be excluded from the operation of the bill? He believed that such exclusion ought to be provided for, and he should regard Ulster men as doing wrong if they should reject any arrangement to except them from Home Rule according to the bill. They would be all the better able to defend the rights of the minority in the rest of Ireland if they should minority in the rest of Ireland if they should the better able to defend the rights of the minority in the rest of Ireland if they should have a Government of their own than if they should be merely part of the minority in the Dublin Parliament. In conclusion Mr. Chamberlain reverted to the subject of the abstention of the Liberals from offering amendments, and asked why the Irish members had so suddenly become dumb.

Mr. Gladstone denied the truth of Mr. Chamberlain's insinuations that the supporters of the Government had closed their ears to the argument. The Government, he said, had already given the fullest explanation of the bill, and wished a fair and open discussion. They would not be driven, however, into obstructive and useless debates. When such debates were forced by the Opposition the Government would be silent. The members of the majority would speak as their own judgment dictated, and not with a view of furthering the devices of the Opposition. (Cheers.) In retaining that liberty of choice they would best perform their duty to the country. (Prolonged cheers.)

The chairman ignored Mr. Morley's motion, and put Mr. Balfour's motion, which was lost by a vote of 304 to 260. Cheers and laughter followed the announcement of the result of the division.

The British Side. PARIS, May 11 .- Attorney-General Sir Charles Russell, of counsel for Great Britain before the Bering Sea tribunal of Britain before the Bering Sea tribunal of arbitration, in his address in behalf of the British case, began by bestowing generous praise upon the arguments of Messrs. Carter and Coudert, of counsel for the United States, as full of intellectual allurements. Nevertheless, Sir Charles went on to say, he thought that Mr. Carter's line of argument had taken him into the misty clouds of metaphysical and ethical discussion, which had no bearing upon the case. He had also built strongholds which were legally indefensible. Sir Charles remarked on the change of front in upon the case. He had also online strong-holds which were legally indefensible. Sir Charles remarked on the change of front in various parts of the American argument. Seals, Sir Charles declared, were like game, which the land owner had the right to kill, although only when on his land. The animum revertendi conferred property in wild animals only when the wild animals were induced by artificial means such as feeding them to return to a particular place. Neither international nor municipal law would confer property in seals, were law would confer property in seals, were the dispute between persons instead of nations.

Sir Charles Russell commented on what sion everywhere. It is stated that the Kaiser did not inform Chancelor Caprivi of his intention to deliver the address, and the Chancellor is therefore free from any responsibility for the imperial utterance. The Radical newspapers declare that it is impossible for the published text to be accurate, and they call upon the Chancellor to issue a correct version.

Kossuth Thinks Gladstone Will Fail.

London, May 11.—The Pall Mall Gazette (Tory) publishes an interview with the venerable Hungarian patriot, Louis Kossuth, in regard to Irish home rule, Kossuth says: "As to Mr. Gladistone's second scheme for Irish home rule, I know very little about it or the real principles underlying it. I believe, however, that Mr. Gladstone will never arrive at his goal. The Irish question presents the same obstacles as squaring a circle. It is a perfect utopia this wish of Mr. Gladstone to Gladst

He it was impossible that the it was impossible that there could be property rights in the seals in Bering Sea, and supported his contention with quotations from the American jurists and in particular from Prof. Woolsey's writings on international law. Sir Charles claimed that Great Britain represented in this controversy the rights of nations.

the seizures had been made on the high seas without previous diplomatic expostulation. Mr. Bayard, when Secretary of State, had never tried to justify the seizures on the ground that the United States had property in the seals.

Here followed a sharp exchange of contradictions between Senator Morgan, American arbitrator, Sir Charles Russell and E. J. Phelps.

Sir Charles declared the interruptions were uncalled for. He then went on to review the diplomatic correspondence between Great Britain and the United States on the subject of the Bering Sea.

The altercations which followed Sir Charles Russell's assertion that Mr. Bayard never tried to justify the Bering Sea seizures on the ground that the United States had property in the seals were so not that it threatened to jeopardize the whole arbitration.

that it threatened to jeopardize the whole arbitration.

Senator Morgen and Mr. Phelps declined to quarantee that the United States would accord damages for seizures even if the tribunal decided against them.

Lord Hannen exclaimed: "Then our whole arbitration is useless and the whole question will be reopened."

Finally the difficulty was adjusted temporarily that the discussion of the questions of liability be postponed.

When the stout iron hull of her Britannie Majesty's good ship Blake sinks below the eastern horizon this morning and the hearts of oak aboard are casting wistful glances toward the faint line on the horizon which represents to them the last of friends none the less dear for being newly made, the sorrow of their parting will be lessened and their kindly feeling increased by the presence of a handsome remembrance of their nonlarity and that of their ship.

In a week's competition among the Recorder's army of readers as to which was the favorite among the foreign war ships in the Columbian naval parade the Blake won the first place over her nearest rival, the German Kaiserin Augusta, having mearly two-thirds of the total vote. The editor of the Recorder accordingly ordered a magnificent illuminated testimonial, setting forth the above facts, to grace the a magnineers intiminated testimonial, set-ting forth the above facts, to grace the cabin of the Blake's commander, Captain W. The Irrn Duties.

To the Editor of the ADVERTISER:
Those who read the papers could not fail to notice that, during the week, some gentlemen from Port Arthur waited on the ministerial teriff inquiry deputation in Toronto, and requested that the iron duties be not reduced! How many more selfish specimens are we to hear of as waiting on the Tory minister for favore? The proposition made by the western men resolves itself into the equivalent of the following: "Tax the whole people till we get rich, what do we care even though commerce declines and our grain and cattle shippers pay nore freight to Europe in consequence. more freight to Europe in consequence. Montreal is nothing to us. We are going to look to ourselves and the nation may cease look to ourselves and the nation may cease to progress so far as we are concerned."

You are aware, Mr. Editor, that the most crushing of the outrageous specific duties is on iron, being to-day 58 to 72 per cent. on British values. I know there are higher rates on some items but as iron is the prime necessity, it is atrocious that the tax on it should be maintained at such a height, after it has been pointed out, not only how it oppresses the community but cripples most seriously the occan commerce we look to it oppresses the community but oripples most seriously the ocean commerce we look to as the making our nation. It is notorious that the fiscal system of protection is edging out our old importing firms, and in Toronto several metal houses have ceased to exist, or have become embarrassed, all through this hot-house pampering of great monopolists. My last observations are, when are we going to treat the mother country with common decency? Meantime, the Government policy, in vogue in Canada, simply works all the injury possible to Britain, and is doing ourselves immense harm. The Finance Minister calls the United Kingdom "our best customer" forsooth! Would a merchant treat a best United Kingdom "our best customer" forscoth! Would a merchant treat a best buyer so?
