THREE BIG BATTLES WERE KEPT SECRET

Servia, Bulgaria and Greece May Become Embroiled Very Shortly.

THOUSANDS OF TROOPS

Servians Are Reported To Have 200,000 Men Ready To Fight Bulgaria.

London, April 28.—The Daily Telegraph's Bucharest correspondent says that owing to the absence of war correspondents, and because of official denials and the strict censorship, at least three important battles have been fought in the past week between the Balkan allies, without anybody in the outside world being aware of the fact, with the exception of the troops actually engaged, the general staffs, the monarchs and the war ministers concerned.

The engagements have been kept a profound secret, and whenever and wherever references to them in the public press have leaked out an official denial has invariably followed.

The position, he says, could hardly be more serious. It is firmly believed that at the moment peace is signed between the allies and Turkey a fresh war will immediately commence between Servia and Bulgaria and Greece and Bulgaria. On April 19 a Bulgarian division attacked the Servian infantry brigade garrisoning two villages twenty miles northeast of Monastir. After several hours' fighting, the Servians retired from the village, but during the night they were reinforced and took the offensive. For two days they pursued the Bulgarians back, pursuing them 25 miles. The losses on both sides were heavy. In the vicinity of Nigrita, Serres, and Salonika fighting has been in progress between the Bulgarians and a Greek division.

The Bulgarians are known to have concentrated 140,000 to 150,000 men in the district around Serres and Kavalla. The Greeks have concentrated almost as many troops between Salonika and Serres. The Servians are concentrating an army of nearly 200,000 around Velestino to the northeast of Monastir. The first Bulgarian army now being marched towards Monastir. In the opinion of the few people who are in the know, a fierce war is absolutely inevitable. There will be no formal declaration of war but the armies will just begin fighting.

King Constantine will go direct to Salonika the moment the conflagration begins.

RAIN STOPPED FARM WORK

Seeding Around Wyoming Was Pretty Well Advanced Before Showers Came.

FINISH WORK THIS WEEK

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Wyoming, April 29.—Seeding operations that were progressing under ideal conditions the last ten days were brought to a standstill by the timing of the rain on Saturday. Seldom have the farmers found the land till to such advantage, and a large acreage was seeded during the past week.

Should the weather clear soon even yet April will see the spring grain all in with few exceptions.

Saturday afternoon was a busy day in town, so many farmers who were too busy on the land to do marketing and other business took advantage of the wet day, when stores and blacksmiths were kept hustling to fill their orders.

Rural residents are loud in expressions of satisfaction with the rural mail delivery. It is claimed to be a great convenience at any time but particularly so when every house is pressed into farm work and the reaching postoffice a difficult matter.

FARM WORK WELL ON AROUND WARDSVILLE

Most of the Seeding Was Done Before the Rain Came.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Wardsville, April 29.—The fine weather of the past week enabled farmers in this district to accomplish the completion of a great deal of their spring work.

The first spraying of fruit and nearly all the seeding was completed before Saturday's rain. Wheat and grass give every indication of a splendid crop.

Mr. Lawrence Harvey is setting out his orchard of 1,000 trees. He is planting apple and peach trees alternately, and will have a bearing orchard. This added to his 500 trees already bearing will soon demand his whole attention. There appears to be prospects of a good crop of fruit, especially of peaches and plums.

Mr. Clayton Sheppard and family, of Detroit, have moved to his orchard farm for the summer. He has a young orchard of fifty acres.

An interesting service was held in the Methodist Church Sunday morning, when baptismal and reception services were performed by Rev. B. Snell.

Miss Flo Jardine has returned to Toronto after spending several weeks at the bedside of her father, who is recovering from his recent severe illness.

Whooping-cough is epidemic in this village. The disease is a serious one to very young infants, as pneumonia is very apt to follow it.

Mrs. Stong took very suddenly and acutely ill with heart trouble yesterday, and for a time it was feared she would die. She is now much improved.

In the last few years the increase alone in the consumption of "Salada" tea amounted to 2,314,025 pounds, or 200 carloads of tea.

Even after this enormous increase "Salada" has had a further increase in the first 14 weeks of this year of a little over a quarter of a million pounds, equal to 21 carloads.

LEADING LADY AND MAN ARE CAPABLE

But Acute Is the Melancholy of "Quaker Girl" Chorus Ladies.

Discovered! The safe way to criticize a musical comedy. Just say, "It compares favorably with other productions of the same kind." And let it go at that. Then you suit those who like it and those who don't like it. There are those who liked it and those who didn't like it among the ticket-buyers who occupied chairs at the Grand for "The Quaker Girl" Monday night. Ten men that would be qualified, for no one could have been unresponsive to the delightful music nor to the charm and winsomeness of Natalie Alt, who took the name part. Especially in her most demure moments, for instance, in her first song, she was a delight, a pearl set among paste diamonds.

Mr. Victor Morley received unbroken applause throughout the performance. He essays a difficult role, and leaves himself open to comparison with Clifton Crawford, as Londoners remembered him in "The Three Twins." His lines are of the lightest order, but he makes the most of them, and those who saw Crawford in the production say that Morley gets as much or more out of it. He has a winning manner and had he not been working with a handicap in the shape of a severe cold, his work would have left little to be desired. Without being acrobatic, he is a clever dancer, and he seems to have a complete appreciation of his opportunities. He and Miss Alt shone in a company that was rather mediocre, though there were a few character parts.

When one had inquired and discovered that the production was perfectly erred, and realized that the period of mourning for the late Henry B. Harris, whose estate produced this "girl," and who unfortunately went down with the Titanic, had expired, it was puzzling to diagnose the acute melancholy that seemed to possess the chorus. Could the mothers of the girls all have lived in Omaha when the cyclone arrived? Had somebody foreclosed the mortgage back in "De Kady Junction"? Or was it just blue Monday? Whatever the cause the intensity of their grief could not be denied. Perhaps they were yearning for their children.

Picture the despair of thirty odd mothers (or grandmothers) doomed to trip gaily through a frivolous round of one-night stops, while their children must go through college or work in a laundry. The ladies of the chorus are usually chosen for vocal ability or volubility. But apparently, the kind of figure for which the ladies of last night were chosen was a low figure. Big Millie, on the off side, looked as though she would, and could eat the audience. But Millie had an advantage over most of her sisters. She couldn't have been a day over forty-nine.

"Alice in Wonderland."

It is good for the old to be new and then reminded of the days of their youth when the plain facts of life took shape in their young imagination as grotesque and wonderful mysteries. An opportunity to revel once more in the bright past will be given the people of London, when "Alice in Wonderland," the scintillating, gorgeous and beautiful operetta will be presented at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, matinee and night.

The Big Musical Gaity, "Little Boy Blue."

Henry W. Savage's picturesque operetta, "Little Boy Blue," comes to the Grand Opera House next Monday evening. There can be no doubt of the dainty offering, and "Little Boy Blue" is surely in for a long and prosperous career on its present "coast to coast" round of joyous gaiety.

While Scotch atmosphere is not lacking in the operetta it is rather a Frenchified idea of the subject that has a direct appeal to all classes of playgoers. Musically the operetta is all that could be desired, and the splendid aggregation of singers have the advantage of assistance from a special orchestra of grand opera proportions, which is carried with the company.

There is one number in particular that sets the audience to swaying in unison. It is a more than pleasing duet entitled "Love Never Dies," which is sung by Miss Kathleen Clifford and Mr. Franklyn Farnum.

Robert B. Mantell.

Robert Bruce Mantell, the distinguished Shakespearean actor, who comes to the Grand Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday matinee, May 6 and 7, in repertoire, was born in Irvine, Scotland, Feb. 7, 1854, but was educated at Belfast, Ireland. He made his first appearance on the stage at the Theatre Royal, Rochdale, Lancashire, Oct. 21, 1876, as the sergeant in "Ar-rah-na-Pogue," under the name of Robert Hudson. Two years later Mr. Mantell came to America, and since then has been identified almost exclusively with the American stage. Remembering his early training in the classics, and anxious to shine in Shakespeare, Mr. Mantell appeared in "Hamlet," in which his success was so pronounced that he began building up a repertoire of Shakespeare. Now and then a modern play has strayed
