

wisdom about a subject. I am giving a course of Lowe's lectures at Boston on the British anti-slavery movement (from the time of Wilberforce through that of Kingstone to the present day). The contingency of the abolition of Slavery in the Empire will be celebrated next summer. Write a resumé of his rather fine story to the King for you - with perhaps, some reflections on our present task in Africa?

My lectures at Toronto will be (purisimally) on the New British Empire. I am to be paid a fee of 75 dollars for each lecture, & the money will be welcome in view of our terrible income-tax. But I can quite understand that everyone is hard up these days, & I will willingly lecture at McGill without a fee if some is the slightest difficulty about it.

My address between March 6 & April 8 will be Lowell House, Harvard University, 50 Holyoke St. Cambridge, Mass.

With all good wishes for the New Year, Yours sincerely
R. Compland
