

| CHAP.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | PAGE |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------|
| XL. HYDROCEPHALUS . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             | 599  |
| Definition, 599; morbid anatomy, 600; causes, 601; symptoms, 604; prognosis and treatment, 607; external hydrocephalus, 609                                                                                                                                                                                                    |      |
| XLI. INTRA-CRANIAL TUMOUR . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     | 611  |
| Varieties of tumour, 610; localisation and symptoms, 612; diagnosis, 613; "hypertrophy of the pons," 613; prognosis and treatment, 615                                                                                                                                                                                         |      |
| XLII. HYPERTROPHY OF THE BRAIN—CEREBRAL HÆMORRHAGE—THROMBOSIS OF SINUSES . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 617  |
| Nature of hypertrophy of the brain, 617; meningeal hæmorrhage, 618; hæmorrhage into the substance of the brain, 620; prognosis and treatment, 620; thrombosis of sinuses, exhaustive and inflammatory, 621                                                                                                                     |      |
| XLIII. INFANTILE PARALYSIS—SUNSTROKE . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                          | 623  |
| Ætiology of infantile paralysis, 623; symptoms, 624; morbid anatomy and pathology, 626; specific nature, 630; diagnosis, 634; prognosis, 637; treatment, 638; sunstroke, 640                                                                                                                                                   |      |
| XLIV. MYELITIS—NEURITIS—FACIAL PARALYSIS . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 642  |
| Myelitis, 642; compression of the cord, compression-myelitis, 642; symptoms, prognosis, treatment, 643; plantar reflex in children, 643; neuritis, 644; facial paralysis, 644; due to middle-ear disease, 645                                                                                                                  |      |
| XLV. CEREBRAL PALSIES . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                         | 646  |
| Hemiplegia, infantile hemiplegia, 646; symptoms, 647; pathology and morbid anatomy, 649; diagnosis, 653; spastic diplegia and paraplegia, 654; ætiology, 655; symptoms, 655; morbid anatomy, 660; prognosis, 661; treatment, 661                                                                                               |      |
| XLVI. MUSCULAR ATROPHY AND PSEUDO-HYPERTROPHY . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                 | 663  |
| Pseudo-hypertrophic paralysis, 663; symptoms, 663; morbid anatomy and diagnosis, 667; prognosis, 668; juvenile type of muscular atrophy (Erb's), 668; facio-scapulo-humeral type (Landouzy-Déjerine), 669; peroneal atrophy (Tooth), 669; progressive muscular atrophy, 669; facial hemiatrophy, 671; Sprengel's shoulder, 671 |      |
| XLVII. ATAXIC CONDITIONS . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      | 672  |
| Friedreich's disease, hereditary ataxy, 672; morbid anatomy, prognosis and treatment, 674; acute ataxia, 675; congenital ataxy, 675; diagnosis of conditions causing ataxy, 677                                                                                                                                                |      |
| XLVIII. HEAD-NODDING—NYSTAGMUS . . . . .                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                | 679  |
| Spasmus nutans, head-nodding with nystagmus, 679; prognosis and ætiology, 680; treatment, 681; congenital noddling, 682; eclampsia nutans, 682; head-rolling, 683; head-banging, 683; nystagmus, 683                                                                                                                           |      |