When You Punish a Child

It is very necessary when disciplining a child to be sure that one teaches just what one intends to teach. Any punishment that does not aim to teach the child some definite thing is wrong. When a mother is very busy—and what mother isn't these days?—it is very easy to become impatient and magnify childish misdemeanors. Then, too, there is the danger of punishing to relieve the mother's own feelings, and that, you all know, is absolutely unjust. It does not seem fair to strike a child. Yet at times it is a necessary form of discipline. If the child is too young to reason. If we punish by whipping only up to the time when the reason developed, we would not whip after the child is four or five years old. That is about the time some people begin, and that is when, I think, it is cruel. When a child is old enough to know right and wrong and is able to judge between them, there are many forms of punishment available to the wise parent.

The faults of a child are so closely associated with his virtues that one requires great caution in dealing with them. Often mothers fall completely to teach a lesson by punishment, because they confuse children until the reason for the punishment is lost sight of. Suppose, for instance, Jack deliberately tears a paper into little pieces and throws them on the floor. His mother asks him to pick them up. He refuses. His mother commands him to pick them up, and he again refuses. Then his mother punishes, and again commands and he again refuses. This will be repeated probably until the baby, given in. Both baby and mother are miserable. The one, utterly confused; the other, wondering where lies her mistake. In the first place, Jack was disobedient and deserved punishment for disobedience. Then if the mother had picked up the paper herself, her lesson would have been well given. But instead she punished again, this time for stubbornness. Stubbornness, by the way, is not a thing to be whipped out of a child. We all need every bit of determination we have; and that is what stubbornness is—obstinacy, misdirected. The thing to do is to direct a child to determine wisely, and show him that he will suffer if he determines unwisely. A strong will, well directed and controlled, is one of the most majestic of human qualities. It will never become majestic by overpowering—but by instructing.

FOR GOOD LITTLE BOYS AND GIRLS

Not Long Now Until They Will Get Just What They Are Wanting.

Remember how grandma used to tell us at this season of the year that we'd be sure to get just what we would want for Christmas if we'd be the first to present to her what we don't always get just what we want. We know that we stand a much better chance of getting what we need if we are good. 'An' jest 'fore Christmas we're as good as we can be.

If you want to get one of The World's Christmas presents you'd better be quick now. You'll want more than one, for who can think of a more appropriate and useful gift than an illustrated Bible? Take the $5 volume for only one certificate and a small expense bonus amount and you've got a real $5 present for somebody. It's a hand-printed Bible to send by mail, for unlike so many breakable gifts, it requires but little wrapping, and it is packed in a carton with a slip label on it. The value shows for itself. It is bound in genuine limp leather, stamped in gold, printed on thin Bible paper, with large readable type; in all, a most magnificent volume. It is simply an ideal gift for Christmas or any other occasion. If you can think of anybody that would not prize such a gift it must necessarily be one that cannot read, write or speak. Do you happen to know such a person?

To Keep Skin Healthy, Youthful, Wrinkleless

Now that the social season is here, be especially careful to keep your skin in fine condition. You know — conspicuous complexion defects appear under the bright light of the drawing or ball room. Also how very evident are some make-up when similarly illuminated. I have pleated discolored cosmetics entirely, using a process which gives far better results, and which leaves no trace on the skin. At night I smear on a thin coat of ordinary mercurized wax, washing it off next morning. This gradually absorbs the dermalized particles of surface skin; just as gradually the more youthful skin beneath comes forth, providing a complexion as clear, smooth and delicately tinted as a young girl's. Get an ounce of mercurized wax at your druggist's and try this remarkable treatment.

Remember, too, that wrinkles, even the finest, are not easily concealed in a willfully-dried room. You can quickly obliterate these hateful marks by bathing your face in a solution of powdered exfolite, 1 oz., dissolved in which basin. Wipe. And your face won't look sticky, as after trying pastes—Aunt Sally in Woman's Realm.
