FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Opening Day Furnished a Spectacle That Delighted the Galleries. Washington, Dec. 2.-The opening day of the first session of the 57th Congress in the House of Representatives furnished a pectacle that delighted the crowded galeries. The machinery of the House is umbrous, and is set in motion by a laborious pricess, but the spectators to-day evilently did not consider it tedious as they lung to their places thru the entire proeedings, which lasted four and one-half cours, probably half the time being con-sumed in the monotonous calling of the sumed in the monotonous calling of the roll.

The organization of the House was accomplished according to time-honored precedents. Speaker Henderson was sworn in by General Bingham, the "Father of the House," and atter delivering a very graceful speech in recognition of the honor bestowed upon him he in turn administered the oath to the members-elect. The usual committees were appointed to inform the President and the Senate that the House was organized and ready to do business. A committee of three, consisting of Messrs. Payne, Bingham and Richardson, was appointed to join a similar committee of the Senate and waft upon the President and inform him that the Congress was ready to receive any communication he might have to make. The rules of the last House were adopted after a slight jar and then the biennial seat-drawing occurred.

This latter ceremony was robbed of much of its interest to-day by the fact that under the new arrangement of seats there are more than enough to ze round. and of its interest to-day by the fact that under the new arrangement of seats there are more than enough to go round, and those whose names are drawn last do not suffer as they did on former occasions. The flower show, which is the great feature of the opening day, was not as imposing as usual. More flowers than ever lefore were sent to members, but after the seat drawing the House adjourned before a third of them were brought into the hall.

The next toast, to "The Army, Navy and Volunteers," was suitably responded to by Captain Ross of the Gaelic Society of Toronto Junction, and Captain Browne of the Highland Light Infantry.

At this juncture a handsomely illuminated resolution of congratulation on his attaining that coveted honor, the Victoria Cross, was presented to Major Churchill Cockburn. The chairman made the presentation amid the greatest enthusiasm.

Major Cockburn briefly and fittingly acknowledged the honor.

About 3 o'clock a horse attached to a light wagon and driven by Moses Sigel, a Jewish rag merchant, who lives at 50 Chestnut-st., took fright on Queen-street, near the corner of Mutual-street. The horse became frightened by the breeching strap becoming detached, striking him on the legs. With a wild dash, the horse started across the street and plunged thru the large plate-glass window of Kelly Bros.' grocery store, at the corner of Queen and Mutual-streets. Swept Thru the Window Swept Thru the Window.

In doing so, the little Ryan and Smith girls, who were playing in front of the store, were struck by the horse, and carried clear thru the window.

Mr. Kelly and several others who were in the store ran to the assistance of the little girls, and, with great dlicuity, got them out from under the horse's feet. Reta Smith was able to go to her home, but the little Ryan girl had to be carried to her home. Dr. Wallace was called in and attended to her injuries.

The damage done to the store and window amount to about $100. The horse and wagon escaped serious injury. Police Sergt. Geddes and Police Constable Phillips were soon on the sceuc, and were busy keeping back the large crowd that quickly gathered.
