

especially to certain improvements which were required in the building and grounds. He concluded by complimenting, in very handsome terms, Dr. Ogden for his gratuitous service in the Home.

The Report was then adopted, after which Mr. Robarts, on behalf of the Treasurer of the Society, read the accounts for the past year, which showed the prosperity the Society enjoyed.

Rev. T. S. Kennedy moved that the Report, together with the Accounts, should be printed for circulation. He felt persuaded that if this Report were circulated throughout the country, many who had little knowledge of the Institution would be induced to contribute towards its funds. He was much pleased to observe that the proceedings of the meeting had been opened with prayer, and that the inmates of the Home were instructed in religious subjects. They had great cause to be thankful to Dr. Lett for the course which he had pursued in gaining this end.

Rev. Mr. Armstrong had great pleasure in attending former meetings of the Society, and was happy to find the success of the Institution so marked. He thought that thanks should be given to those ladies who had worked so hard in the cause, and who were unwearied in their endeavors to raise funds for sustaining the objects of the Society. He would say unto them, go on and prosper; be as "a father unto the fatherless, and verily thou shalt be a son of the living God." He would move that the thanks of the meeting are due and are hereby tendered to the Lady Managers of the "Protestant Orphans' Home," for their unwearied zeal and great efficiency in conducting the affairs of the Institution.

The Hon. and Rev. Mr. Hodge, in a few remarks, seconded the motion, which was unanimously carried.
