King's Colt Unplaced. The race for the Two Thousand Guineas was run on Wednesday over the Rowley Mile at Newmarket. Sixteen horses ran and the winner was Sir Joel's bay colt Pommern. L. Neumann's "Tournament" was second, and Lord Carnarvon's "The Viceroy" third.

ATHLETIC Penna Star Will Specialize. Howard Berry, a University of Pennsylvania lad, who recently electrified the athletic world with his prowess in the collegiate pentathlon at Franklin Field, and who is being heralded as the rightful successor of "Jim" Thorpe as the greatest all-around man, is to have a different future carved for him if Dr. George W. Orton, track and field coach of the Red and Blue, has anything to say about it.

STAR Screening Five Reels of Thrilling Adventures FIVE REEL "THE CURSE OF GREED" SPECIAL FEATURE. A FIVE-REEL PRODUCTION OF EXTRAORDINARY MERIT. That this picture is a highly meritorious production in all its details, cannot be denied. A mere slip of a boy essays the leading role and sustains it throughout the five reels amazingly. He is called upon to do many strenuous stunts that thrill and hold you in breathless suspense. Beautiful scenes embellish the whole. A cabaret scene, embracing over two hundred people, including clever professional artists, is one of the features, but the court scene will be hard to surpass in quality and the number of people involved. The utmost intensity is prevalent in this offering, and photographically it is perfect.

BRITISH NEWSPAPER MEN'S MESSAGE TO THEIR COLLEAGUES OF ALLIES

(London Morning Post). The following message from British journalists to their colleagues of the allied nations was unanimously adopted at the annual conference of the National Union of Journalists, held yesterday at Sheffield, on the motion of the president, F. E. Hamer, seconded by the vice-president, F. Williams.

"The National Union of Journalists, assembled for its annual conference at Sheffield on April 2, 1915, desires, in the name of the journalists of Great Britain, to send a message of greeting to their colleagues of the allied nations.

"The National Union notes, with satisfaction the growing friendship and good understanding between the Russian and British empires. In the past the nations of western Europe have known too little of the wealth of Russia's material resources and the qualities of her literature, civilization, and art. As a result of the present alliance, the National Union looks forward to a fuller interchange of national sympathies and ideas and to a fruitful growth of intercourse between the commercial and industrial interests of the two empires.

"To our neighbors of France, long distinguished for their services to the cause of art, industry, and for their defence of their country against aggression and treachery, by the cooperation of French and British arms—expressing at once the friendship of two free peoples and their community of interests and political sympathies—the blessings of security and peace may soon be restored to every part of France.

"In the heroic efforts of Belgium and Serbia to defend their territory and national rights the National Union honors two more conspicuous examples of the world's indeliblest to nationalistic spirit. It expresses, in particular, to the Belgian people its sorrow at the despoiling of their noble cities and beautiful monuments of the past, and its prayer for an early and complete restoration of Belgian liberty and Belgian fortunes.

"The National Union appreciates the co-operation of Japan in freeing the seas and the nations of the Far East from the peril of an aggressive and unscrupulous ally. It trusts that the friendship between the two island races may long endure.

"In sending these words of greeting the National Union expresses the hope of all whom it represents that the present alliance in arms for the vindication of international honor and the defence of civilization against the ambitions of a few unscrupulous men may be succeeded by a concert of nations for the future peace and good government of the world."

NURSING IN SIBERIA

An English lady who was working as a nurse with the Red Cross in France has gone to Siberia, where she says there is so much more need of nurses than there is. She is going to the front, where there is most to be done. Her medical cases are being treated. There are thousands of wounded soldiers, but it is really rather good to get into the hospital ready to do any work that is needed. It seems to me that I would have worked harder physically. everything from floor to ceiling, iron mattresses, bedsteads, &c. filled sacks with hay and straw for mattresses, in doing so getting absolutely devoured by fleas. We struggled with endless packing-cases, which arrived at all hours of the day or night in strings of ox-carts. We felt about in the dark carrying splintering candles, and shipping pieces off our fingers in our efforts to open packing-cases. Luckily one of our doctors is a very good carpenter, and has fitted up the dispensary very well with shelves, &c., and we really have got everything looking quite nice. The matron has secured a local cook, who is not so bad, but all we have such fearfully large appetites, and the Serbians live on next to nothing, so usually there is a good deal of murmuring among the men as to the short rations they are kept on.

Typus and Insects. I and another nurse are now installed at the Greek hospital in charge of a Greek doctor and a medical student, both down with typhus, poor things. Side on night and I on day duty. They had not a single trained nurse in the hospital, and only four doctors for 400 patients. The only way the infection spreads is through lice, and then it has to be one that has bitten a typhus patient, so, provided you are careful not to get the creature on you, there is no reason for catching it. It is when you get a whole crowd of dirty patients that it is so difficult to keep them clean and to prevent the insects getting on to other people. There is a Greek doctor in charge, who, mercifully, speaks a Russian idiom, and two other Serbian doctors appear at moments, and I have to struggle with them. I have to struggle with the German orderly, and bitterly regret not having worked more industriously with Franklin. Inevitably they are a Russian orderly, who only speaks atrocious German, and I have to struggle to translate the doctor's orders for medicines, the few he has, and I have to get through thoroughly added.

A Pitiful Sight. I shall never forget a hospital on the Greek and Serbian frontier we went over 1,400 cases, with two nurses and two doctors, the men all lying about on mattresses, one dead, seven or eight dying half of them absolutely filthy, and looking like sick animals. It was not the fault of the staff; it had just simply got beyond them. Two of the nurses and one doctor were down with typhus, chiefly because they had been overworked; they simply could not take proper care of themselves or their patients. It seems to me that I would have worked harder physically. We scrubbed

Two Salem theatres have red-lights near the stage, placed there at the request of the Call Firemen's Association. These lights are switched on only when there is a bell alarm, and this constitutes a notification to any call firemen who may be present that their services are required at the fire house. Snakes are said to be so short-sighted that they are unable to see more than one-quarter of their own length.
