

The Committee on Union with the Presbyterian Synod reported as follows :—

"The Committee, in presenting their report, have to intimate, that since the meeting of November last the papers of the respective Committees have passed through the hands of each member of your Committee, for mature examination and remark. That your Committee have agreed in finding that nothing further required to be advanced upon the subject matter of these documents, inasmuch as the exceptionable statements in the paper of the Committee of the Presbyterian Church are all fully and satisfactorily met in those of your Committee. And of the correctness of the views advanced by your Committee in said documents, and approved by the Synod at its last meeting, your Committee are only more fully convinced by the most careful examination.

Report of the Committee on Union.

"Your Committee have only to add further, that no intercourse of any kind has taken place between the Committees since November last.

WM. PROUDFOOT,

Convener of Committee."

The Synod enjoined the Committee to send a copy of the above Report to the Committee of the Presbyterian Synod.

The Synod now entered into a conversation respecting the Theological Institute.

Conversation respecting the Theological Institute.

Resolved,—That having heard with much satisfaction, the very favorable condition of the Institution under the care of Mr. Proudfoot, and believing the extension of it to be essential to its continued prosperity, and to the interests of our Mission, do agree to convey to the Secretary for Foreign Missions, our deep regret that the Synod has not yet been able to obtain for us the aid of an additional
