This resulted in a challenge from de Regnier after three days spent in the discussion of conflicting statements as to the precise words used by Mile. Heredia and Mme de Regnier, who had echoed her sister's remarks. The Count de Montesquion immediately accepted the challenge. His seconds were Counts Dion de Montesquion and Barries, and M. de Regnier's were Henri Goussaic and Jean Beraud. The duel was fought in the presence of judges. The combatants attacked each other with the greatest vigor and for ten minutes fought to kill. In the third encounter the Count de Montesquion was severely wounded in the back of the right hand. The surgeons then interfered and refused to allow the combat to

The combatants, then withdrawing, declined even to bow to each other. The affair has made a tremendous talk, and it may prove the first incident in a general boycott, socially, of a number of men who are persistently accused in certain quarters of having displayed the rankest cowardice at the charity bazar fire. M. de Regnier did not take his first lesson in fencing until he had received the challenge. He is a poet and main line or branches, to the following leader in the decadent school of poetry.
