that the committee rise and report progress unless better discipline was maintained. The offenders were on the government benches. Gentlemen who had no interest in the question under consideration were conversing in a tone which was almost as loud as that in which Mr. Borden was speaking. The offenders included a num-ber of ministers of the crown, and taking it all in all the spectacle was not one which did justice to the Canadian commons. In making his pro-test Mr. Borden explained that he was not over particular in such matters. However, it cannot be expected that a member of the house of commons can speak effectively amid noises which would do credit to a bear garden, and it would be well for the offending members to modulate their voices while in the chamber.

The debate on the present gerrymander does not improve the position of the government. So many inconsistencies prevail in the treatment of different constituencies that one does not have to be a keen politician to appreciate the advantages which the government are taking to themselves under the color of meting out fair play to the opposition. The leader of the opposition has not only denounced the whole measure as applied to the pro-vince of Ontario, but he appealed to the right hon. leader of the house to nest as to his motives in drafting the bill. Mr. Borden suggested that any pretense of giving the opposition fair play in the matter should be abandoned, as it would be far better for both sides of the house to be frank and confess that they were moved by political motives in making the redisfribution. In the building of this church he was supported by Mrs. discharged at Port Elizabeth or East London, and such of them as failed to Robert Brown, to whose devotion and help the successful completion of the eturn to the colony surrendered all heir right to promised grants of land." unication was from the undertaking is in large measure due. This communication was from the prime minister's quarters at Cape

In June, 1902, the old veteran had further word from the war office, Lon-don, stating that Field Marshal Lord Roberts expressed his regret that in view of the decision of the secretary of state for the colonies it was not pos sible to assist him in any way.

The last letter the old man was from the war office, written in the same strain. It was terse and said: "It is impossible to investigate you claim after the time that has elapsed since the period to which it refers." So Michael has about given up hope. He worked and fought for his country when he was young, but he is of no use now, and his country does not want to be bothered with such as he.
