Mrs. Catherine Knox. Thursday, Sept. 23. A telegram received by Miss McCaffrey, 88 Protection street, West St. John, brought sad news, for it told of the death of her sister, Mrs. Catherine (Kate) Knox, widow of J. Sylvester Knox, in East Boston, on last Saturday. There had been no indication of illness and it is believed death came suddenly. The news came as a great shock and will be learned with deep regret by many friends here. Mrs. Knox was a daughter of the late Captain John and Mrs. Catherine McCaffrey, of Sand Point, and a member of one of the best known families on the western side of the harbor. She was a woman of gentle manner and kindly heart, and numbered many warm friends both here and in the home of her adoption. Besides a widow he leaves a daughter, Mary, and four sons, James, William and Walter at home and Frank in Boston. He leaves the loss of a beloved father. C. cemetery of Bellefleur.

Leonard K. Moody. The death occurred on Monday at Lepreau of one who was well known in the district, Leonard K. Moody. He was a carpenter by trade and greatly liked by all. He leaves a wife and two small children to mourn, besides his mother and two sisters, Mrs. R. J. Quentley Musquash, and Mrs. Calma West St. John. The funeral has been arranged for this afternoon at 2:30 at Lepreau.

McEachern, which occurred yesterday morning at his parents' residence in Thorne avenue, after a lengthy illness. For some time previous to his illness he was in the service of the I. C. R. He was an active member of the Tabernacle church and was interested in all its work. He had been connected with the I. C. R. for some time as chief telegrapher of St. John District Lodge, I. O. McEachern, who was twenty-three years of age, was popular with a large circle of friends. Though he had been ill for several months, his death was not expected when it came. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McEachern, survive, with four brothers, Archie and John, of Boston; Donald, of Presque Isle, and Henry of this city, his twin brother, and one sister, Mrs. E. N. Stockford. Rev. J. D. Wetmore, of Chance Harbor, former pastor of Tabernacle church, came to the city to see the young man, and was with him when he died. Mr. McEachern's family will have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement. The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Sarah Eastwood. At the home of her stepdaughter, Mrs. Hanford Kingston, Maryland Hill, on Saturday, Mrs. Sarah Eastwood, widow of William Eastwood, passed away. For at least forty years he had been in the provision business in Indian-town, conducting a successful store in Main street, and enjoying the esteem and confidence of all with whom he had dealings. About a year and a half ago he retired from active business and had been residing much of the time since then in the country. His wife, who is not in the best of health herself, survives, with one daughter, Mrs. Fleetwood, wife of E. J. Fleetwood, manager of Ames, Holdes, McCready Co., Ltd., here. "BUD" TIPPETTS GIVEN AROUSING WELCOME

"Maimed for Life But Do Not Mind as It is for Good Cause," He Tells Reporter -- Fairville Honors Hero Wounded at Langemarck -- Brings News of St. John Men.

"Bud" Tippetts has done his bit. His arrival in his home town of Fairville last evening, after a splendid career in the service of his country, was marked by a welcome unsurpassed in the history of the town across the river. "Bud" was the man of the hour. Modestly he exchanged grip for grip as a seemingly endless procession of friends thronged Main street in front of his home and showered him with congratulations on his work in the empire's cause.

The welcome Fairville extended to her son on his return from the war, was a memorable one for worthy had he proved himself. As the motor party which escorted Private Tippetts to the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Tippetts, turned into Main street, whistles shrieked, bells rang and a swelling note of welcome sounded from the throngs along the sidewalks.

A roar of greetings, prolonged and hearty, lifted from the crowds as the cars moved by and cheer on cheer volleyed for a considerable period after the motorcade had stopped at the Tippetts residence. "Bud" was given a royal hand and was overcome by the reception tendered him by his fellowtownsmen.

Bronzed and apparently fit, he bashfully acknowledged word and cheer and when able to make himself heard in the din, spoke briefly in response to repeated calls for a speech. "I am maimed for life but I do not mind it as it was received in a good cause," he said in response to a question as to his physical condition. "Private Tippetts arrived from Quebec at 6:10 last evening and was met at the depot by a large crowd. A reception committee, composed of Mayor Frink, Commissioner Wigmore, his sisters and brothers, his former school teacher, Mary O'Brien, several other representatives from Fairville, accorded him formal welcome. He was then escorted to Fairville by a motor party.

Wounded at Langemarck. Private Tippetts was wounded on April 28, at the battle of Langemarck, while taking part in an advance on the German position. In going forward in the face of a fierce rifle fire, he was hit in the left arm in the right leg and was incapacitated. He was later removed to a hospital in England and finally conveyed to Ross-on-Wye where he received treatment which he characterizes as "just like one would be treated at home."

Bud went to France on Feb. 1, as a member of the 14th Royal Montreal, and served three months in the front line. He enlisted in St. John and went to Valcarlos with the 62nd Regiment. French life, he said, called for a considerable amount of hard work; but, on the whole, it was not such a disagreeable task as the ordinary individual might suppose.

Speaking of local men on active service, he said that James G. Emale had been wounded in the battle of Langemarck and was now a prisoner in Germany. That Emale was wounded was certain, as a number of the boys in the unit had seen him fall. G. K. Shields, now corporal; Privates Spellman, O'Brien and McLaughlin were on the firing line when he left England. But told of the death of Langemarck of Hector Cameron, of Lepreau, and of Private Gallagher of this city.

Louis Gorman, Charlie Lennox, Joseph Dryden, Louis Sharkey and John Maher, all of this city, were visited at hospitals, where they are recovering from wounds received in battle.

General regret was expressed in the city last night when it became known that Mrs. Ada M. Cunningham, the victim of the burning accident in Richmond street on Wednesday evening, succumbed to the injuries she then received. The deepest sympathy is being expressed to her husband, William J. Cunningham, who is well known in the city, and who the late Mrs. Cunningham's four brothers, George, Robert, William and Alexander Johnston, and her only sister, Mrs. Jas. Brickley, all of St. John.

Rev. W. G. Lane, pastor of Exmouth street Methodist church, of which the deceased was a member, was at the bedside at the hospital when death took place and he will officiate at the funeral which has been arranged for tomorrow from the late residence, 65 Richmond street, for Fernhill cemetery. Mrs. Cunningham was born in Burton, Stanbury county, and was about 48 years of age. It was stated yesterday that the lamp did not explode but the window of the bedroom in which Mrs. Cunningham, an invalid, was lying, was open and the strong wind blew the window curtains over the lamp. This at once ignited and before her brother George could return to the house after a few minutes' absence, the injuries that the unhappy woman received were such that they terminated fatally a few hours afterwards.

HUNS LOSE 250,000 IN VILNA BATTLES (Continued from page 1.) Dolomites continue with great intensity. On the Carinthian front a detachment of Alpini attempted to break through on Monte Perabla, but was repulsed with losses. "On the Littoral front the activity of our troops has been confined to artillery firing. We gained some successes. Today the conclusion of the fourth month of the Italian war, the enemy undertook no local battle but attacked only in local sectors. All the attacks were rain, and our front is stronger than ever."

Mrs. and Mrs. Will Hayes are visiting Mrs. Hayes' mother, Mrs. Robert Granville.

The inventor of Shrapnel. It is interesting to recall just now (says the Westminster Gazette) that the inventor of shrapnel—Lieutenant-General Henry Shrapnel—gained much of his military experience in Flanders. He served with the Duke of York's regiment there, and shortly after the siege of Dunkirk invented the case shot, "a destructive engine of war used by the Royal Artillery, and known by the name of Shrapnel Shell." So runs the inscription on a large slab at the floor of the church in Bradford-on-Avon, where the general was buried. The inventor's reward was a pension of £1,200 per annum. The Shrapnel story for three generations cloth weavers at Bradford-on-Avon—Scottish-American.

Private Tippetts, in speaking of trench life, told that he was facing the German line for a long period before he saw a German soldier, despite the fact that the trenches were quite close together. Soldiers do not show themselves on the firing line without good reason, he pointed out, as each side is always on the alert for movements by the other. At times, the trenches were cold and wet, but water which collected was always removed as quickly as possible by pumps and by bailing. Repairs and strengthening in the trenches were carried on under cover of darkness and the soldiers worked like beavers in filling bags with mud and sand and piling the bags about where the line was weak. The shell fire was severe most of the time, but the men took it as a matter of course. Asked about the spirit of his unit when first under fire, Bud said that the boys were ready at all times and willing to do the work they had undertaken. After the big reception accorded Bud in St. John and Fairville last evening, he was kept busy after he had gone to his home by a steady procession of callers, who would not be denied a last handshake. Private Tippetts had a word for everyone and, notwithstanding the long journey by train and the excitement of returning to his home town after taking part in a world war, he showed remarkable strength in being able to bear the strain which he was called upon to undergo. He was glad to be home again, he said, and it was quite evident the people of Fairville were wonderfully glad to have him with them.
