

original photo (which appeared in the Spring 1995 Quarterly) was taken. Coincidentally, the St. Roch, which had also become famous for having been the first vessel to ever navigate the legendary Northwest Passage, in both directions, was on her final voyage, from Halifax to Vancouver, before being decommissioned.

HMS Labrador, at Montego Bay.

A DREAM COME TRUE

Last month's "Police Life" reported on that unusual occurrence — citizens arriving at a police station to report a robbery and to hand over the perpetrator.

From Scotland comes the story of the 18-year-old man who fronted the charge counter at the Inverness Police Station at 2 a.m. to confess to three unsolved break-ins. Such was his conscience that he waited the nine hours it took before anyone could take his statement. In court, the man's lawyer described him as a policeman's dream.

Reprinted from POLICE LIFE, June 1992