

Insanity In Summer

BROUGHT ON BY NERVOUS AND MENTAL TROUBLES.

Paines Celery Compound the Great Tower of Safety.

Nervous diseases when aggravated by mental disturbances produce more cases of insanity in the hot weather than at any other season of the year.

Nervous sufferers have a dread of hot weather. Finding themselves deeper in the pit of misery than they were in the spring and early summer, they are in utter despair.

There is hope and rescue for you, reader, if you are one of the sufferers. You are in need of Paine's Celery Compound, that great builder of the nervous system.

Sleeves are Drooping. Sleeves droop at the shoulders and gradually lessen until they are fairly tight at the wrist, and this cuts off the last resource pocketless women had for disposing of the essential handkerchief.

Gratifying Intelligence. Word Received of the Complete Recovery of Mrs. John Dowry.

Buying a College. "Western colleges come cheap," says a Connecticut paper in commenting on the gift of $20,000 from Francis A. Palmer.

They had a funny incident at Yale College one day. Professor Silliman was going to experiment with laughing gas when he overheard a student say that under its influence no one was responsible for what he said, and he would take advantage of this and tell Professor Silliman what he thought of him.

"Integrity, My Boy." Charles Sumner was very fond of his page in the Senate, and often kept him with him in his rooms. One day he asked suddenly: "Harry, do you know what makes a great man?"

"Integrity, my boy! Honesty, courage! But integrity, not to be bought or sold! Do what you believe to be right. Like Daniel, of whom the princes said: 'We find no occasion against this man Daniel.' They found no flaws in his accounts, no loose ends of business, and no slips of the golden truth."

Johnnie called his mother, stop using that bad language. Why, replied the boy, Shakespeare said just what I said. Well, replied the mother, grog-in-farinated, you should stop going with him—he's no fit companion for you.

Henry George asks some questions that shed light on this subject.

The question of compensation to brewers and liquor dealers, in the event that prohibition is adopted, is often broached. To help the reader to form his own conclusion we cite the following queries by Henry George—

1. Should we not compensate those who have suffered by the wrong rather than those who have profited by this wrong? 2. In the abolition of special privileges shall the state give a compensation that would be equivalent to a perpetual continuation of the same privilege?

3. Shall the state compensate for disappointing the expectations of those who have counted on its continuing to do wrong? Shall the state compensate for refusing to do wrong in future?

4. If an elevated electric service at double speed and double convenience takes the traffic from the dirty lumbering steam trains, or the electric carriages abolish backs and coaches, shall the state compensate the railroads and the hackman, and the state coachman for his loss of business?

5. Does the state compensate for capital lost by the abolishment of protection duties? 6. Did the state compensate the silversmith of Ephesus for the loss sustained from Paul's preaching?

7. If I have been accustomed to spend my earnings in a gambling house or rumshop till the proprietor has come to count on me as a source of regular profit, am I morally bound to compensate him if I stop? Or if an innocent purchaser has bought the business on the expectation that I would continue, does that bind me to compensate him?

The Cider Question. The Temperance Cause for May devotes considerable space to the cider question, and gives the testimony of men in different countries all going to show the mischievous influences of the cider mill.

We wage no war against the orchard. The apple is easily our leading fruit, and will be for a century. It is healthy, and has no substitute, raw or cooked. There are many legitimate uses for the juice of apples. Baked down into a thin syrup, say one-fourth its volume, it does not ferment, and is extremely useful for pies and sauce. Reduced to a jelly, nothing can be finer for a relish. The poorer fruit may be fed freely to stock. Many farmers claim that the fruit, properly administered, makes excellent milk or beef, and needs no more skill in feeding than cotton seed. It is an open question whether the decayed apples are not of considerable value as a fertilizer, particularly in sandy soil. At most the only defect—singlet in male from cider.—Porsvold.

"Integrity, My Boy." Charles Sumner was very fond of his page in the Senate, and often kept him with him in his rooms. One day he asked suddenly: "Harry, do you know what makes a great man?"

"Integrity, my boy! Honesty, courage! But integrity, not to be bought or sold! Do what you believe to be right. Like Daniel, of whom the princes said: 'We find no occasion against this man Daniel.' They found no flaws in his accounts, no loose ends of business, and no slips of the golden truth."

A big part of the license fees has to be paid by poor women at the wash tub.—Prohibition News.

If men will engage in this destructive traffic, if they will stoop to degrade their reason and reap the wages of iniquity, let them no longer have the law-book as a pillow, nor quiet conscience with the quietude of a court license.—Hon. Theodore Tilton.

Johnnie called his mother, stop using that bad language. Why, replied the boy, Shakespeare said just what I said. Well, replied the mother, grog-in-farinated, you should stop going with him—he's no fit companion for you.

Scrap for Odd Moments.

"There are two ways of looking at it by said the cross-eyed man.

"That artist's baby died from trying to emulate his father." "How was that?" "Well, why do you wait?"

"You protest that you love me, Emily, but am still waiting for my first kiss." "Well, why do you wait?"

Aide (charging furiously up)—General, the enemy has captured the Commandant. Fly with the other.

She—What a little mouth your young lady friend has! It doesn't look big enough to hold her tongue. He—It doesn't.

Equally safe for young or old, Ayer's Sarsaparilla cleanses the blood from all impurities.

Dusty Rhodes—They say that doing nothing is the hardest kind of work. Weary Rhodes—Well, I don't always know as a great worker, Dusty.

Griggs—Strange thing, Mirandy; every time you draw a breath somebody dies. Mirandy—Well, how can you get it to stop breathing on that account?

Mr. Watts—I don't see why wealth was invented any way. Mrs. Watts—It was invented for the weather there are a good many men who would never turn their eyes heavenward at all.

Minards Liniment Cures Diphtheria. "Can you tell me, professor, if this snuff jewelry is genuine?" "Oh, that's easily determined. Soak it in alcohol twenty-four hours. If it glistens, it will then have disappeared."

Stone-street—What are Benedict and Scorchor howling at each other about? Benedict—Well, he's just got a lady and Scorchor a new bicycle. Pook is conding the merits of his acquisition in the other.

"My mouth is all in a pucker since I ate those olives," she said, as she turned her sparkling eyes full upon him. And he was not at all like the young man who could not grasp the suggestion of the situation.

Minards Liniment Cures Colds, etc. Mama (silly, holding up a nearly empty jar)—Rachel, have you been using my preserves again? Rachel (distractedly combing her doll's hair)—Mamma, didn't grandma teach you when you was a little girl same 'r you have me, not to be so 'gnititive?

"The chief end of man seems to be to get something for nothing," said a young man who was striving to outwit his best girl's father. "Too true," mused the old gentleman. "For instance, you're trying to get my daughter for yourself."

Minards Liniment Cures Distemper. A Yankee sportsman, after being out on the moors for upwards of five hours, called attention to a hawk that was perched on a tree, and exclaimed in a tone of mingled wrath and disgust—"I guess the birds here are imitation wild!" "No, no," replied the sportsman, "they're all right. I've just shot a brace of them." "I'm sure you have," replied Tom, "it's a pail."

"Those people next door lead a sort of hand-to-mouth existence, don't they?" said the president of the Helping Hand to the worthy Poor Sewing and Mending Society. "No," responded the good dame so dressed, "they're awful poor, but I guess they know how to handle forks properly."

Hall's Hair Renewer renders the hair lustrous and silken, gives it an even color, and enables women to put it up in a great variety of styles.

In Gardner, Me., a woman who one day last week arranged her toilet very carefully and nicely to receive company after her company had departed was beset by a visitor who said that she had entertained in a dress waist and petticoat. So was so very particular about minor details, that she had forgotten the essential skirt.

To make your business pay, good health is a prime factor. To secure good health, the blood should be kept pure and vigorous by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is a blood purifier and sluggish, there can be neither health, strength, nor ambition.

Hempeck—Is this the office of Quigley Quick Gun? Patent Medicine Man—Yes. "Gimme six bottles for my wife." "Tried all other medicines without success, eh?" "No, sir, ain't sick at all. But I see in your advertisement where a woman wrote, after taking six bottles, 'I'm different woman, and I have hopes.'"

"Miss Brown told me that you put her such a charming compliment the other evening," said Miss Coddington to her husband, "something about her being pretty. The poor girl was so pleased that she told me so. I'm sure you'd know by this time that I'm never untruthful," said Mrs. Coddington reproachfully. "I said she was just as pretty as she could be, and so she was."

St. Martin, Que., May 10, 1895. C.C. RICHARDS & Co. GENTLEMEN.—Last November my child stuck a nail in his knee causing inflammation so severe that I was advised to take him to Montreal and have the limb amputated to save his life.

I don't see how you men can be so untruthful! "I should think you'd know by this time that I'm never untruthful," said Mrs. Coddington reproachfully. "I said she was just as pretty as she could be, and so she was."

Lady Visitor (at office of eminent physician)—I have called, doctor to see if there is any cure for sleep-walking, and here had the habit for years, and I don't think it has become worse.

Dr. Higginson—It can be cured, madame. Take this prescription which I have filled at Cold, Steele & Co's. Cold Steele & Co's? Why that is a drug store; it is a hardware store.

Yes, madame. The prescription call for a paper of licks. Does? Ten tablespoonfuls scattered over the feet before retiring.
