David Lloyd-George Outlines Scheme for Raising Necessary Funds for Prosecution of the War

LOAN A SUCCESS

Intending Investors Stand For Hours Outside of Bank of England Waiting For Prospectus of Loan—Canadians Are Ready For Front, Says British Officer.

David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, in the House of Commons yesterday, estimated that the cost of one year of the war for this country would be £450,000,000 ($2,250,000,000), the largest amount England has ever spent on a war and more than twice what was spent in the conflict with South Africa during four years.

The Chancellor proposed, and the House unanimously supported him, that the income-tax should be doubled, but only collected on one-third of the income this year; that an extra halfpenny (one cent) per half-pint should be levied on beer and an extra three-pence (6 cents) per pound on tea.

Already it is evident that the British war loan will be a big success. For hours last evening a crowd of intending investors waited at the Bank of England in the hope of securing early copies of the prospectus, although it was uncertain until the last moment whether its issue would be deferred until to-day.

Everywhere in Great Britain the action of the overseas dominions in sending their best blood to the front for the defence of the Empire has been most keenly appreciated and greatly commented on.

"His Majesty King George, in conversation with me, referred especially to the splendid appearance and qualities of the Canadian soldiers," said British Columbia's Premier.

"Not only do the troops of the first Canadian contingent look like regulars, but they are like regulars and are absolutely ready for the front," was the statement made at the Windsor yesterday by Col. J. C. Gilbert, of one of the British line regiments.

Recruiting for the second Canadian contingent, as far as the infantry is concerned, is now practically completed, but volunteers will continue to be accepted to provide for reinforcements.

NOTES ON PUBLIC UTILITIES

Street railways on this continent are in every way superior to those of Europe, according to the report of the American Federation of Labor Commission on the Municipal Ownership of Street Railways in Europe.

In the continental cities the track mileage is small compared with the United States. This contributes to density of traffic and profitable operation. The same is true of the United Kingdom, whose total street railway trackage is about 3,600 miles, as against 46,470 miles operated in the United States.

Thus the zone fare system contributes to congestion and compels the workers to live in the most uninviting districts. It retards suburban development and adds to the rents of the workers who not only have to suffer the inconvenience of small living quarters, but are denied sunlight and sanitary surroundings as well.

"None of the European systems has a night car service such as we have in our big cities. Nor have they an interurban electric service, that has contributed so much to the development of our rural districts and brought the consumer and producer in close relationship.

GOVERNMENT BOOK STORE

This Department for Dissemination of Information Occupies a Large Building and Turns Out Publications Concerning all Government Activities in Poular Form.

Business men in Canada have frequently complained about the lack of statistical information furnished by our Federal Government. In some cases it is easier to get information regarding Canada through the United States Government bureau than it is from our own authorities at Ottawa.

The Government of the United States of America, in addition to its other almost innumerable bureaus in Washington, D.C., has a Book Store, and a big one, filling the 7-story building on H Street near North Capitol Street, known as the Annex to the Government Printing Office, and overflowing into several stories of the old Printing Office building fronting on North Capitol.

It is not a General Book Store, as it sells the publications of only one publisher. That publisher, however, happens to be the largest of all publishers and the one whose output is the most varied in character and the most practical in use.
