QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS. Veterinary.

BARBED-WIRE WOUND.—Two-year-old colt got badly cut between fetlock and hoof with barbed wire. The cut extends all across the limb; is ragged, and deep. I think the joint oil is running.
My veterinarian dressed it, and applied a bandage; but she tore bandage off with her teeth, and he said to leave it off.

D. R.

Ans.—No doubt the veterinarian in attendance understands the case, and I would advise you to do as he advises.
If, as you suspect, the joint oil is escaping, it is not probable she will live.
The wound needs to be kept clean by washing with warm water at least twice daily, then dressed with a five-per-cent solution of carbolic acid, or other disinfectant. The wound would heal more quickly if the patient were quiet in the stable.

COW POX—HARD MILKER.—1. Give treatment for cow pox. 2. Cow is so hard to milk that a teat syphon has to be used.

F. H.

Ans.—1. As the disease is contagious, no contact by milkers' hands, or otherwise, should be allowed between the udders of the diseased and healthy. Dress the affected cows' teats two or three times daily with the following ointment: Boric acid, four drams; carbolic acid, twenty drops; vaseline, two ounces. 2.
No successful method of dilating the orifices of the milk ducts to make milking easy has been discovered. Some claim to have had good results from inserting, after milking, a nice, smooth hardwood plug, constricted slightly in the center to prevent it from falling out or passing up wholly into the teat.
This is left in between milkings.
My experience with such has not been satisfactory. A cutting operation is also unsatisfactory, and I think it wise to fit all such milkers as yours for the block.

CAPPED HOCK—TUMOR OR ABSCESS.
—1. Last winter a yearling colt backed swiftly against the wall, which caused a capped hock. The puff is soft. 2. Last summer a lump, neither hard nor soft, appeared on my mare's shoulder. It is still there. Working her hard this spring had no effect on it.

W. A. R.

Ans.—1. If there is considerable fluid in the sac, an operation by a veterinarian is necessary. It is not safe for an amateur to cut in this region. If the fluid be in small quantities, repeated blistering, in the ordinary way, with half a dram cantharides, one and a half drams biniodide of mercury, mixed with two ounces vaseline, will produce absorption. 2. This is either a tumor or an abscess. If the latter, it should be lanced, and the cavity flushed out daily with a five-per-cent. solution of carbolic acid until healed. If the former, it must be carefully dissected out, the skin stitched, except at the bottom, and then treated the same as for abscess. External applications are useless.

V.

SHOULDER-SLIP OR SWEENEY.—1.
Three-year-old colt, used to double plow in three-horse team, has gone lame in front. The shoulder joint seems to move outwards when he steps or puts weight on the leg. 2. Heifer got fast in the bush; she is reduced to a skeleton; is stiff, and does not eat well.

F. M.

Ans.—1. This is sweeny or shoulder-slip. The slipping motion of the shoulder that you mention gives it the latter name. In order to restore the animal to full usefulness, you will have to give him at least six months rest, and blister the point of the shoulder and also over the shoulder blade once monthly with the following: One and a half drams each biniodide of mercury and cantharides, mixed with two ounces vaseline.
Clip the hair off, and rub the blister well in. Tie so that he cannot bite the parts.
In twenty-four hours rub well again, and in twenty-four hours longer wash off and apply sweet oil. Let him out on level pasture, and oil every day until the scale comes off. Repeat blister every month, as long as necessary. 2. The heifer requires careful nursing rather than medicinal treatment. Put her in a comfortable box stall; feed on grass, bran, chopped oats, etc., in small quantities and often. If she will not eat, drench her with boiled flaxseed, and give one dram each gentian, ginger, nuxvomica, in a pint of cold water, as a drench three times daily.
