

Searching for King Solomon's Mines.

A company of prosaic, matter-of-fact English capitalists, acting possibly on the strength of an axiom that truth is stranger than fiction, is starting an expedition to Africa in search for King Solomon's Mines. They have been stirred to this, as they readily admit, by certain ascertained facts in connection with Rider Haggard's romance. Although there have been previous searches for the mines of Ophir from which the servants of Hiram and King Solomon brought much gold and precious stones, the company fervently hopes, and firmly believes that the result of the expedition will be to prove veridical to Mr Haggard's particularly lurid brand of fiction. William C. Wynkoop a mining expert of Colorado and editor of Mining Industry, has been engaged to lead the expedition to prospect for the mines. He started from Denver on his way to London to complete arrangements, and he expects to be away three months or more. There is absolutely nothing but traditions and legends to help in locating the mines of Ophir, but following the shady guides the party will strike inland from a point well down on the eastern coast of the Dark Continent.

Plant of the Plump Woman.

"I do wish that the people who design dresses, or rather those who make the fashion pictures, would not always draw impossible women." The speaker was a little lady of plump figure, who is very particular about her costume and does not like to appear any plumper than necessary. "If you will look in any fashion magazine or publication with a woman's page in it you will find that every female represented in it is a long, slim lady with an impossible waist and impossible limbs. That is, if you will excuse me, the ladies are as long as the legs. Now I never saw any such women in life. Costumes that look well on the picture would not do for me at all, short people and stout people are never taken into consideration by the fashion originators at all. It's a shame, for there are a great many more of us than there are of those queer formed women you see all the while in the fashion plates." Investigation will show that the plump lady was right.—New York Herald.

Wanted to be Polite.

The street car was well filled when they got on. There was just one seat left, and it required some crowding to show that that was there. But the two young men needed a seat; they had been inebriated and were a bit uncertain as to whether they could hang on to a strap. Consequently one of them crowded into the vacant seat and the other sat in his lap.

"They both went to sleep," they roared, as it slackened up and then increased its speed, but the top one seemed to lose his balance enough to awaken him. Then a corpulent woman entered. She glanced around the car, but every man was busy with a paper with the exception of the two who were asleep. She happened to catch a strap directly in front of them as the cars started and look around again, but no one seemed to see her.

"It's funny," she said pointedly as a sudden jerk of the car nearly made her drop a bundle she carried, "that there's no gentleman in this 'ere car." That awoke the man sitting on his friend's knees. He rubbed his eyes, made a quick survey of the car, jumped up and said: "Madam, take my seat!" Then every one laughed except the woman to whom the courtesy had been extended and the man who was asleep. The one who had extended the courtesy laughed himself as soon as he realized the situation.

How Tobacco is Prepared.

A letter came to me which shows that grown folks read your part of the paper as well as their own. A lady writes to me that her husband who is a tobacco grower says of the way tobacco is prepared, and he did not believe it. He has a twenty-five dollar dress that he could not prove it. I said I would rather have him quit using tobacco if I proved it." To prove it I wrote to one of the ladies who told me about the process, and asked her to tell me more about it. She was born in North Carolina and has lived in the tobacco region all her life, so know all about how it was prepared. She is a lovely Christian lady, a school teacher, and tells the exact truth about things. Here is what she writes me. I think it proves the fact stated. Do you not think so?

DEAR CAPTAIN MARY.—The tobacco factories of Winston and Durham, the largest in the state, I have visited personally, and have seen the negroes trampling the sprinkled tobacco leaves with their naked feet, and as the temperature has to be kept high to work the tobacco successfully, of course perspiration is profuse. I enquired of a prominent manufacturer who was showing me through his factory, if no machine could do the work, and he said the bare-footed negro was the best pressure on the leaves that had ever yet been found. It is no secret process, and all visitors are allowed to see it which is.....While in Durham in July, attending the W. C. T. U. state convention, I had to pass going to and from my boarding place, a large warehouse, and smelling rum very strongly every time I passed. This house I enquired of my host what was kept in it, and he said, "Oh, it is only a tobacco warehouse, where they are soaking leaves in rum."

ZOLLIE MONTAGUE. I hope this gentleman will conclude to give up his tobacco; if he needs any stronger proof of how it is prepared, let him visit the great factories at Durham, North Carolina.

Captain Mary.

A Very Sly Fox.

Many stories told of the crafty fox are doubtless incidents of the imagination but a recent writer tells an anecdote which, though taxing belief, he says is vouchsafed for by the Boston Courier. Some fishermen on the west coast of Ireland were in the habit of going to a small island, a few hundred yards from the mainland, and in quest of bait. The island was inhabited by large numbers of rabbits, and could be reached at low tide by wading, the water there being only a few inches deep. One morning they went in their boat quite early, it being high tide, and on landing saw a dead fox on the beach. The fur of the animal was all begrimed and he seemed to have been drowned. One of the men remarking that his skin was worth something, pitched him in the boat. Proceeding their boat they returned to the mainland, and the man who had possessed himself of the fox seized him by the tail and flung him on the shore. As soon as the animal struck the beach he picked himself up with considerable agility for a dead fox and shot off like a flash up among the cliffs, while the men stood staring at each other in mute astonishment. The men concluded he had crossed over to the island during the night, when the tide was low, in search of rabbits, and finding in the morning that he was cut off from the mainland, committed suicide, with the expectation of thereby procuring a passage to the shore in a boat, an expectation which was fully realized.

Of Special Interest.

The object of this article is to call attention to Dr. J. C. Williams' East India Liniment. It is the best ever used. Of course they all say that, but we do more. We back up our claim. You buy a bottle from your druggist or dealer for 25 cents (not a very large investment is it?). Use it for any ailment for which it is recommended, some of which are: Coughs, colds, influenza, cholera, diarrhoea, pain in stomach or bowels, neuralgia, etc. It does not work to your entire satisfaction go back and get your money. This remedy has been used wherever this wonderful remedy has been introduced, and not one bottle has been returned, but on the contrary hundreds of testimonials prove that East India Liniment will do all that we claim for it, and more. We could fill this paper with them but have only room for a very few.

A. G. Great, Conductor F. R. H. Millerton, says: I am pleased to state that I have used Dr. J. C. Williams' East India Liniment myself and in my family with the most satisfactory results.

Mrs. H. M. McLeod, of Carleton Place, Ontario, cured of rheumatism by half a bottle of Dr. J. C. Williams' East India Liniment. "The Young of Carleton, cured of a bad case of rheumatism of ten years standing by a bottle and a half."

H. G. McMurtry, of Margareville, N. S., writes: "I was suffering from a very severe attack of Cholera, and after trying nearly all the remedies in the market without avail, I used Dr. J. C. Williams' East India Liniment and was cured at once. I consider it the best Liniment in the market."

Whooping Cough.

Common thyme, which was recommended for whooping cough three or four ago by Dr. S. B. Johnson, is regarded by Dr. Nevine, who writes a paper on the subject in a Finnish medical journal, as almost worthy the title of a specific. During an epidemic of whooping cough he had ample opportunities of observing its effects, and he came to the conclusion that if it is given early and constantly it invariably cuts short the disease in a fortnight, symptoms generally vanishing in two or three days. They are not reliable to return if the thyme is not regularly taken for at least two weeks. Regarding the dose, he advises that a larger quantity than Dr. Johnson prescribed be taken. He gives five once and a half to six ounces per diem, combined with a little marsh mallow syrup. He never saw any undesirable effect produced except slight diarrhoea. It is important that the drug should be used quite fresh.

A Hard Corner.

The age of 50 is a hard corner for a woman to turn, and 55 is still harder. She feels that she is fast leaving her youth behind her. But there is no reason why a woman should be faded and pale at 35 or even 45. The chief cause of the early fading of American women is found in the fact that many of them suffer from some form of female weakness or disease, which robs the face of its bloom, draws dark circles about the eyes, brings early wrinkles and sallowness, and stamps the face and figure with signs of ill-health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all the troubles which bring back the lost bloom, and remove pains and ailments which make women grow old before their time. Guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or price ($1.00) refunded.

Call the Herds.

Many a farmer misses it wofully by wintering animals that it would be greatly to his advantage to sell at once, or fatten and send to the butcher. A recent writer refers to the matter in the sensible style: "That cow is getting a little old or is not a good milker, or that she uses her legs to much, and the steer that is not promising, and the sheep that is not as good as the others, and the inferior animals of every sort, will not pay more than at our future time. The pasture has put them in good condition, and the pasture will now fail and the animals will lose a little unless they have feed too expensive for inferior animals. Of course you will lose if you winter these animals. The only way to make them profitable is to sell them at once, before the pasture becomes scant, and invest the proceeds in Brindley animals."
