SHEARING SHEEP BY MACHINE. Western Ranchmen Dispensing With

Hand Work. Hand Work.

N. Y. Sun: The great sheep camp of the United States is now in the Northwest. The ahearing of the twenty or more million sheep that produce wool, like the garnering of wheat and other big crops, requires the employment for a more or less shortened period of a large number of men. The local labor supply is entirely insufficient and were it not for the existence of a partly organized body of nomads, who start in at the south and work their way north as the season broadens, great difficulty would be met with.

Many of these shearers are easterners, New York furnishing quite a number. Before reaching Montana or Wyoming they have relieved many thousands of sheep of their fleeces. They begin down in Texas or partless.

sheep of their fleeces. They begin down in Texas or perhaps Arizona and work north, taking in Kansas, Nebraska, Utan, Wyoming and the Dakotas before they land in Montana.

Many of them also come from the West. This gang starts in in California, and after shearing its way through Oregon, Washington and Idah recches Montana to aid in garnering on common ground the greatest crop of wool in any section.

These men are well paid and most of them end the season with from $500 to $800 in their pockets. All are experts, Most of them still use the wrist thong and hand shears, but in the last few years shearing by machinery has come in vogue and is rapidly superseding all other methods.

The better hand shearers average 100 sheep a day, and there are a few who

The better hand shearers average 100 sheep a day, and there are a few who have a record of 200 in twelve hours. It is hard work. A man must stand with legs stiff for hours, he must lean over until he can almost reach his toes and he must all the time be holding down a struggling, frightened animal.

These hand workers are paid at the rate of seven or eight cents for each fleece tied up and delivered to the sacker. The grading is done in advance of the shearing, so that subsequent trouble is avoided.

After the shearing has been accomble is accorded.

After the shearing has been accomble is sucked in long bale-like burlap forms and turned over to the freighters. Montana is not griditoned with railroads, and it is a long drive from many of the ranches to the rail-way depot or wool market. Two and to sometimes three heavily laden wagons are coupled together and with eight or len horses attached the outfit starts across the hills. It is hard, slow going, and if the rain comes and the roads get gummy the freighters often have to go into camp and wait for the sun to pave the way. Sometimes wool has to be hauled in this fashion for 125 miles. In the last four or five years the shearing machine has pushed to the shearing machine has pushed to the shearing machine has pushed to the vised a shear which can be worked either by hand or mechanical power, and which has proven a tremendous conomy. The machine is declared by sheep men to be as far ahead of the old hand shears as the self-binder is in advance of the old-fashioned cradle. R. M. Marquis, a Montana young man, holds the world's record both for hand and for machine at a Martinsdale, Mont, he sheared 360 seven pound (to the fleece) wethers in 14 hours 46 minutes, taking off 2,650 chiding the fall work, he sheared 17,013 sheep.

The man's work is almost as mechanical as that of the machine he uses. He starts in by grabbing the animal by the right him leg with his left hand, turning it easily over on its back. He then puls it into an upright position, with its hindquarters on the ground and the bedy resting between his legs. He begins by parting the wool at the forward end of the brisket and starts the clippers going. Bent over at an angle of 70 or 80 degrees, he keeps firm hold of the sheep with his knees, turning the animal as though it were in a vice and keeping the skin stretched tight. When half way through he has attained the position of having partly stepped back, while the sheep is flat on it side. It is no trick for him to finish the animal in two minutes, and he has turned out as many as twenty-eight in an hour.

Besides the advantage in time and labor cost the machine does not hack or cut the sheep, and it is possible to get from a half to a pound and a half more wool off each animal. The staple is langer and this means a better price. Usually it is not desirable to send hand sheared sheep to the market until a week after the clip, as it takes that long to feed them into presentable shape. This is avoided by the use of the mechanical contrivance, which leaves the animal evenly clipped and free from cuts.

The hand power machine is in almost universal use among the smaller flock masters who cannot afford a power plant or are unable to get the services of experienced shearing experts, who keep date and route books myeably like his.

universal use among the smaller flock masters who cannot afford a power plant or are unable to get the services of experienced shearing experts, who keep date and route books much like the average theatrical company manager. The usual model consists of a large wheel, fastened to an upright beam in the barn. On the face of this wheel teeth are generated on an automatic machine that insures absolute accuracy. This gear is enclosed in a stationray frame and drives a hardened steel cut pinion, to which is connected a universal joint flexible shaft. The pinion shaft is fitted with a small turned balance wheel, which, running at a high speed, gives steadiness to the machine at all times. The shears, which greatly resemble at the end a pair of barbers' clippers, fit on to the end of this jointed shaft, and this is operated much like the power devices in dentists' shops for the drilling or cleaning of teeth. With a boy to turn the big wheel by a convenient handle and a man to operate the shears it is not much of a trick to denude the sheen.

The power plant machine is growing in favor. Makers of various devices in the last year on their own initiative and power plants at points in the sheep belt.

The result has been that big sheep men pounds of wool with a machine. This record will likely stand for a long time. Marquis has been at the business for about eight years and has often shorn 200 sheep a day and over by hand, and on the machine has several times gone above 300. NOVELISTS' WIFE MISSING

Mrs. Robert W. Chambers' Horse Returned Without Her.

Gloversville, N. Y., Aug. 10.—An alarming story reached Gloversville at an early hour this morning concerning Mrs. Robert W. Chambers, wife of the noted author. Mr. Chambers' summer home is located at Broadalbin, and he is, as usual, spending the summer there with his family. According to reports Mrs. Chambers, who is devoted to horse-Mrs. Chambers, who is devoted to horse-back riding, went out early last evening mounted on a spirited horse. About an hour or an hour and a half later the un-mounted horse appeared at the Cham-bers' stable and at 11 o'clock last night no trace of Mrs. Chambers had been found, although it was stated that large posses of men were searching every pos-sible place where she might have been thrown and injured.

SEXES SEPARATED.

No Low-Necked Dresses Allowed at Mass at Sistine Chapel.

Rome, Aug. 9.—In recognition of the sixth anniversary of the coronation of Pius X., solemn mass in the Sistine Chapel this morning was attended by 16 cardinals and members of the Diplomatic Corps, The Pope in his sacerdotal robes sat at the right of the altar on a throne covered with rich crimson velvet. The Abbe Deom Lorenzo Perosi conducted the choir, which sang one of Palestraina's masses, after which the Pope delivered the Apostolic Benediction.

It was noticeable that on this occasion the sexes were rigorously separated even in that part of the chapel reserved for persons specially invited to attend the ceremony. This was due to stringent orders issued by the Pope. In accordance with the same orders no lownecked dresses were allowed. Aug. 9.-In recognition necked dresses were allowed.
