Where the World's Furs are Sold.

"Into College Hill Sale-Room, Queen Street, and the adjoining warehouse of Messrs. Lampson," says the Times, "are poured the spoils of the hunters and trappers of every region of the earth, from the Arctic Circle to Cape Horn and Australia. In room after room they are piled in crates or hanging in masses from stands, awaiting the inspection of the buyers, who at side desks are handling the bundles of a score which represent large lots to be sold at the auction. It is the task of Messrs. Lampson's sorters to arrange the lots according to their quality, and out of each to choose a score of sample skins which shall faithfully represent the general quality of the whole.

A World of Fur Buyers.

"To London the Russian comes to buy the best Siberian sables, and the American to fetch home the furs of his own continent, which, viewed from this corner of London, would seem notably the Land of Foxes. Silver, Arctic, blue, red, cross foxes—one hardly supposed the round world contained such a multitude. Yet even the silver fox, the supremely valuable, contrives not to be extinct, for Reynard, whatever his colour, is still Reynard, and sleeps with one eye open.

"Here hang side by side two skins destined to fetch, one £500, the other £470, in the open market. They are a brownish black, the large bushy brushes tipped with white. The one which fetches the lower price seems the handsomer of the two, but it has a few white hairs in it, and the value of the skin depends on the absence of these. Such little foxes must spoil many vineyards, for by the time this £500 skin reaches its destined wearer it will be worth £300; and it would take two skins to make a stole. The colour fades in the wearing, so that this costly fur will very shortly be worth only a third of its present value. Vanity! thy name is really man. For, truth to tell, it is only in a country where the magnificence of his women's clothes flatters a man's self-esteem that colossal sums will be spent on them. An Englishman may often be vain of his horse's coat, but he is seldom vain of his wife's clothes. Accordingly, Paris takes both these skins. It is there that the finest furs usually go. The Russians, fur-lovers for practical reasons, also compete for them with the French.

"There, seated in three blocks or standing at the edge of the congregation, are buyers from many lands—France, Russia, Germany, Spain, Norway, America. But the flat-iron of cosmopolitanism, if only in the hand of the taylor has been passed over the surface of the civilized world, and there is little of that picturesque diversity of exterior which would have been seen here thirty years ago.

In the Sale Room.

"This sale-room seems singularly devoid of excitement, even when the great furreries of the continents are disputing some noble spoil. The gesture of the bidder is difficult to detect, for he wishes to keep his purchases a secret from competitors. But all the while $800,000 skins and very large sums of money are changing hands; and outside the sale-room the cases of skins are pouring in, and pouring out, and a crowd of sorters, packers, workmen of all sorts, are swarming at their labours. This is London, a very small corner of London—a little world, yet the heart of a wide world, and containing enough in itself to stir the imagination of the dullard and to give the wild-cat politician pause."

HIS FACE BURNED.—While a man was slacking roach lime in the basement of Mr. T. J. Wall's residence Friday last, while Mr. Wall was trying to save one of his children from falling into it, the lime splashed in his face, burning it severely. He narrowly escaped getting the stuff in his eyes.

Rosebery's Appeal.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, April 16. Lord Rosebery to-day makes a newspaper appeal to the Unionist leaders to drop the tariff issue in the coming election and to appeal to the country as defenders of the constitution. If victorious he suggests that they could at once set about for a real reform of the Second Chamber, and when that is completed appeal to the country on the Tariff Policy. The Times says Lord Rosebery's idea has its advantages.

I consider MINARD'S LINIMENT the BEST Liniment in use.

I got my foot badly jammed lately. I bathed it well with MINARD'S LINIMENT, and it was as well as ever next day.

Yours very truly,

The Labor Party Win.

Special to Evening Telegram.

MELBOURNE, April 17. The triumph of the Labor Party in the General Election has produced a profound sensation. While apparently there is no great difference between the programmes of the parties, there is a big divergence in principle. The Laborites are strong for concentration of power in the Federal Government, while the Fusionists desired to strengthen the authority of the States by a graduated land tax. Industrial legislation on advanced lines is inevitable in the first session of the new Parliament. The new protection as a policy giving the benefits of the tariff to those manufacturers only who pay higher wages will be watched with interest. The complete returns were: Labor, 45; Fusionists, 27; Independent, 1; Independent Liberals, 2. At the dissolution the Fusionists numbered 44 and Labor and Independent Liberals 31.

Halley's Comet Seen At Placentia.

Special to Evening Telegram.

PLACENTIA, To-Day. Halley's Comet was seen here first time this morning at 3.50 o'clock, rising over south-east horizon. Its light brilliant, cometary and of corona form. Its reflection on the waters of picturesque Arm was very beautiful. It was visible about one hour after which it was lost in heavy bank cloud. Our watchers who climbed the steep sides of Duffy at above early hour to view this interesting stranger say they were more than rewarded by a sight of grandeur and the brilliancy of the celestial visitor.

At Gower St. Church.

Rev. Dr. Campbell who is here from Canada in the interest of the Bible Society, preached at Gower Street Church yesterday morning, on the text from Isaiah, "How beautiful upon the mountains is the face of him that bringeth good tidings." The sermon was a beautiful one and the attention of the hearers was held to the close. No attempt was made at oratorical effort. The effect of the discourse being its simplicity and poetic tenderness. The consoling gospel of peace and salvation stirred all hearts and appealed to the congregation by its beauty. It is a sermon that will not be forgotten for a long time. Only a master mind with a poetic temperament could do such justice to the text. At night Dr. Campbell spoke again at the Missionary meeting. He alluded to the great responsibility of the Church in Canada, Japan and China. There were 16 million people under the sphere of Methodist influence in the Orient and in North America, the present was God's last opportunity to the world for building up a great Christian Nation. The audience was large, Mr. King presided at the organ and the singing was excellent.

Suspicious Characters.

At 2.05 this morning Mr. Jas. Kenny, who resides over his grocery store on Freshwater Road, was awakened from his slumbers by hearing a noise at his front door, and getting hurriedly out of bed he realized that some person was trying to force an entrance into his store, where there was considerable cash after Saturday's sales. Mr. Kenny was well prepared for the intruder had he entered and decided that he would not walk away but would get a rifle in the ambulance. When the prowler noticed a lamp which Mr. Kenny had lit sending its rays through the windows he noiselessly quit the place, but returned in about a half hour and again tried the door and once more quickly vanished. About three weeks ago a man tried to enter the residence of Mr. John Reid on Spencer Street, and that the nocturnal prowler is bent on robbery there is no doubt. A few months ago while absent from the premises Mr. Kenny's store had been entered and considerable cash was stolen from the tills. Should this scamp continue prowling about Freshwater Road he will get a disagreeable surprise.

McMurdo's Store News

MONDAY, April 18.

Labor and time-saving devices are now so much sought after that it is not wonderful that the Safety Razor, which offers such a quick and easy method of shaving, should have jumped into popularity. But now comes Colgate's Rapid Shave Powder, "the powder that shortens the shave," which still further abridges the number of minutes required for a man to "make himself presentable." The time saved by a Safety Razor and Rapid Shave Powder on a single shave is perhaps not very appreciable, but in a year it will be considerable, and be just as much added to the life of a busy man. Safety Razors (12 blades), $1.00; Colgate's R. S. Powder, 30c. tin.—adv.

Violently Resisted Arrest.

That Bay Bulls Petition

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—“Look Out” in the Chronicle has tried to say something in reply to John Cully's statement of facts in connection with the petition from the people of the parishes of Witless Bay and Mobile. He evades every point in my letter but tries to divert attention to Mr. C. O'Brien. Mr. O'Brien may keep his job as far as Cully is concerned. But in the name of common justice he wants the Government, through the proper channels, to attend to the petition. Let the public keep that in view till attended to.

“Look Out” says “Cully” has been trying to “knife him for the past 20 years. Evidently he is after the wrong man. I have never tried to knife; never had any business with him; but I did not feel like letting Mr. Cashin walk roughshod over the people of Bay Bulls without trying to call him to order.

There is nothing in “Look Out's” reply worthy of further attention, so I will not trespass further on your valuable space.

Hoping the people that signed the petition in question will keep it in sight and bring M. P. C. to a sense of his duty.

I remain, for the present,
Truly Yours,
JOHN CULLY.

Bay Bulls, April 15th, 1910.

OBITUARY.

MR. RICHARD SAGE.

Death came almost suddenly on the 7th inst. at Brooklyn, N. Y., to Mr. Richard Sage, son of the late John Sage, of the Terra Nova Constabulary, and brother of our esteemed citizens Charles and William of the firm of Sage & Wallace, of Water Street.

The deceased left here a quarter of a century ago and enjoyed good health. A few months ago he was taken ill from dropsy. Everything was done to alleviate his suffering. He was removed from his home to St. Mary's Hospital, where he breathed his last attended by his two daughters and the visiting Catholic clergyman who gave the last consolation to the dying man, who was conscious to the last moment and died fully reconciled to his fate.

The deceased was born in this city 56 years ago and educated at the Old Orphan Asylum. He served his time as a printer in the Times Office. He became a first-class printer, particularly on tabular work at which he had no superior in this country. Previous to his management of the Colonist, he was foreman with the late Mr. F. W. Bowden. He became foreman in one of the biggest printing establishments in Greater New York, and was also a prominent member of the Big Six Union.

Those printers who knew “Dick” as he was familiarly called, will have no doubt that his “proof” after being read by the Great Proof Reader, will be found to be marked “Clean Proof.”

CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH.

Mrs. Wm. Ball, Bracebridge, Ont., writes: “My three boys had whooping cough and we could get nothing to help them until we used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It arrested the cough at once and they kept on improving until they were cured at the cost of one dollar. This was not a large bill for so dangerous and distressing an ailment.”

Law Moot Saturday.

Saturday afternoon the sessions of the Law Moot were continued in the Supreme Court. The facts for the case to be discussed were as follows: “Barkis was driving along the high road; overhanging the road were branches from a tree on neighbouring land. The road at this particular point was very narrow. One of the branches tore a tarpaulin cover which Barkis had to his car from end to end. Can Barkis maintain an action against (a) the owner, and (b) the occupier of the land.

Mr. D. M. Browning, K.C., occupied the position of Judge, while Messrs. J. A. Winter and F. Summers argued for the plaintiff, with Messrs. C. E. Hunt and L. E. Emerson, for the defendant. The students also entered into the discussion, and also Messrs. J. P. Blackwood and W. J. Higgins. When the argument had concluded the Judge delivered a learned discourse on the law of “Nuisance,” and after reviewing the case before him decided that an action could be taken by plaintiff against both owner and occupier.
