JACKMAN THE TAILOR, The Mail Order House.

Tim Shannahan on After the Fair.

SHANNAHAN AND TUCKER HAVE A CHAT.

Lonely stands the Rink—both Rinks in fact. The gorgeous display is dimmed and the surging, restless crowd of spectators have gone about their business.

The man from Harbor Grace who had charge of the grand display of boots and shoes from that city is again gazing out on the waters of Conception Bay and wondering was it all a dream. The ducks and drakes, the noisy rooster, and the fattened goose, have again reached the quietness of the country home; horses and ponies have lost their ribbon and are again growled at because they refused to "get over" in their stalls, and the cabbage and turnips which fetched no prize are aired recklessly in a corner awaiting to be trotted forth on the market, at the time approaching Christmas, when vegetables will command a "decent" price.

The silver tongued orator, who held sway on the day of the opening, saunters along Water Street and thinks if he had another chance he'd do a lot better; and the busy housewife mourns the loss of a silver brooch in the crush. The policeman who acted a little too busy at the Rink is again on his solitary beat, and has made up his mind to act more leniently in future.

"This is the lingo of Tucker; this is part of his speech that he delivered to us last night.

Sometimes I almost hate Tucker. He seems to be getting too smart. Do you know there's such a thing as a man getting too smart. We all like to be considered it, and we all hate to be made feel that our companions are walking ahead of us.

"This is human nature, pure and simple, and the next thing we'll know is that Tucker will be gone 'on his own hook.' Responsibility, though, is a heavy thing to carry, and Tucker is welcome to take the load. I'll do my best to keep him as my first officer, but if he gets 'swelled head' he'll be given all the line he needs.

"That's a fine oration, Tucker," says Delaney, "but there is room for an addition. The crowd is dispersed, and the 'make a fuss' politician sits in his easy chair, smokes his cigar and peers into the grate. He wonders if the money has been well spent, and he can see shiny paragraphs dealing with the Exhibition in his next manifesto."

But away above it all in importance is the great mass of people, the purchasing public. What effect is the Exhibition going to have on them? Are they going to ask for local made goods in future, or are they not? Surely the show must have convinced them that they can do as well by buying our local goods as they can if they fired their cash at the man who talked up outside productions. Tucker says we'll have to keep the movement on the swing by advertising. Let no man be ashamed or afraid to say his goods are the goods made in the country, and let every one of us men and women create an interest, a whole-souled interest, in everything local by talking it up and putting forth every effort to boost the sales.

"Here," says Mrs. Tucker, handing over a stool, "take a sit down for yourself, Tim, over by the door, where 'tis nice and cool, and give me a chance to have half a say on this subject. 'Tisn't any use of us getting overheated on the home made article business one week and then getting cool on it. Our people must be made acquainted with our own goods. Why I was up to a house-to-day where a woman was washing, and alongside the wash tub was a cake of soap and a packet of washing powder. I looked at them and discovered that they were both made outside the country. Said I, 'Weren't you down to the Exhibition last week?'"

"I was," says she. "Why do you ask me that?"

"Well," says I, "you went down there, looked at all you saw, and you listened to the sincere addresses of the gentlemen with the English made clothes on. You heard on every side 'buy the local made article,' and now here before me lies soap and powder of alien production. Shame on you, said I, 'I'll tell the Premier about you, and he won't sleep a wink for a week when he hears of it.'

"Hold on," says she, "don't get too excited. Let me have a word or two. Now, I go over to a shop for soap and powder. Very well. The shopkeeper hands me out the articles. How am I to know whether they're local or not? He can tell me they're local and I can't dispute it. One thing is sure, if they want us to buy their goods they'll have to get the shopkeeper interested, and the shopkeeper will have to be able to sell it to us as cheap as the imported, or we'll go for the imported every time. We're patriotic around here, just as long as we lose no money by it; but if it costs us one red ha'penny to be fond of our own goods, we let some one else get fond and we stick to the same old goods that we stuck to before."

"That's very true for that woman," says Delaney. "Oh, if women were only allowed to speechify at election times, what a prosperous and happy people we would be."

At this Tucker law hawed, and the cat went out.

G. C. Kennedy and the Policeman.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Would you kindly give to the public the benefit of this note in connection with the police uniform. The clothes they wear in inclement weather is not suitable for a natural man to walk the streets with, for when the rain falls it falls heavy, and is likely to wet, and the poor policeman must take refuge in hall doors or corners for shelter to avoid catching a chill. They are not provided for in the clothing line. In the first place each man should have one pair long rubber boots up to the thigh, with long oil coat and oil hat, so as to avoid being wet doing duty. The policeman is a man who suffers hardship night and day to protect the lives of the general public and his labour is not appreciated. By all means protect the policeman, for he protects you. I am not laying any blame to anyone in particular. I will comment further on this subject if the clothes are not provided for the policeman.

Thanking you for space,
I remain,
G. C. KENNEDY.

May Be Total Wreck.

John B. Foot's schooner, Cora, of Grand Bank, Geo. Hickman, master, left there Sunday evening for Sydney for a coal cargo, and at 10 o'clock Monday night as she entered the harbor she ran on Petrie's Ledge in a S. E. gale. Next day, Tuesday, the Canadian cruiser Canada and some of the tugs tried to tow her off, but owing to stormy weather could not do so. Tuesday evening when the Portia was at Grand Bank she news received from her was that she would likely become a total wreck. She is a vessel of 75 tons, 8 years old, and is insured in the Grand Bank scheme.

The First Taste

Learned to Drink Coffee When a Baby.

If parents realized the fact that coffee contains a drug—caffeine—which is especially harmful to children, they would doubtless hesitate before giving the babies coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's arms and first began to nibble things at the table, mother used to give me sips of coffee. As my parents used coffee exclusively at meals I never knew there was anything to drink but coffee and water."

"And so I contracted the coffee habit early. I remember when quite young the continual use of coffee so affected my parents that they tried roasting wheat and barely, then ground it in the coffee-mill, as a substitute for coffee.

"But it did not taste right and they went back to coffee again. That was long before Postum was ever heard of. I continued to use coffee until I was 27, and when I got into office work, I began to have nervous spells. Especially after breakfast I was so nervous I could scarcely attend to my correspondence.

"At night, after having coffee for supper, I could hardly sleep, and on rising in the morning would feel weak and nervous.

"A friend persuaded me to try Postum. My wife and I did not like it at first, but later when boiled good and strong it was fine. Now we would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever tasted.

"I can now get good sleep, am free from nervousness and headaches. I recommend Postum to all coffee drinkers.

Colonel Gaskin Welcomed to the City.

Colonel Gaskin, of the Salvation Army, who arrived here by the express yesterday, was given a warm reception at the Citadel, New Gower Street. A large gathering assembled, including the officers from the out-ports. Col. Rees opened the meeting with a hymn and prayer. The band having played a fine selection, Mrs. Rees, Bandsman Cummings, Ensign Sainsbury, Capt. Stafford, Capt. Holmes and Cave all spoke in turn, and expressed the pleasure that it afforded them to welcome Col. Gaskin. At the close of the speeches medals were presented to Julie Clarke and Lizzie Taylor, who won the highest marks in the C. H. E. exams. Col. Gaskin concluded the meeting with a lengthy and eloquent address relative to the business of the Congress. Commissioner Coombs, who is ill, will not be able to visit Newfoundland this year.

Brought to Hospital.

The man Nolan, of St. Bride's, who had his hand almost blown off Sunday week, as reported in the Telegram, came in by last night's train to enter Hospital. The gun which did the damage was being examined by a friend of the injured man, who passed in front of it when it was accidentally discharged. He narrowly escaped getting the whole charge in his body and being killed. Dr. J. B. Lynch attended the sufferer. It is thought the hand will have to be amputated.

The Regulus Enquiry.

Yesterday afternoon the Marine Court of Enquiry continued its sittings in connection with the Regulus disaster. Mr. R. G. Rendell, who was on the John Greene, which had the ship in tow, was examined, as was also Capt. Strong, manager of the Tug Company. At this afternoon's session the lightkeeper at Cape Spear and people of the shore on which the ship was lost will give their testimony.

Portia's Stormy Trip.

The s.s. Portia, Capt. T. Fitzpatrick, arrived here from western ports at 5 p.m. yesterday after one of the most disagreeable trips in the experience of the captain. The ship left here on Friday, October 28th, and had very disagreeable weather until Saturday evening, when she arrived at Placentia. She remained there until 2 a.m. Sunday, and from that till Gaultois was reached, at 5 p.m. Monday, she had fairly good weather. Owing to a S. E. storm the ship had to remain there over night, and leaving at 5 a.m. next day had a continuous run to Bonne Bay, where she arrived on Thursday, the 3rd November, at 3 a.m. Thick fog compelled the ship to lay up that night. It rained hard with an east wind. She left there at 4 p.m. Friday for Bay of Islands. The ship reached Cape Ray at midnight and encountered a southerly wind and dense fog and she did not make Port aux Basques until 4 a.m. At 9 a.m. she arrived at Rose Blanche on the morning of the 5th inst. in a dense fog and remained there until 5 Sunday morning, and at noon that day she was off Burgeo in a dense fog. When it lifted momentarily the ship managed to enter and leave port, and arrived at Ramea at 5 p.m. Sunday. Here the ship had to again lay up at night, and leaving Monday morning she arrived at Hermitage at dusk. Owing to another S. E. storm the Portia was compelled to stay there till 4 next morning. Thence to Placentia she had it fair until Wednesday, when from 8 a.m. till noon she had a gale of S. E. wind, heavy rain and dense fog. She arrived at Placentia at 1 p.m. The ship brought a small freight and these passengers: Messrs. Cornick, Summers, Edens, Leary, Morry, Dr. Freebairn; Mesdames Avery, Moehan, Power, Devine, Miss Walsh and 74 steerage.

GONE LOGGING FOR THE WINTER.

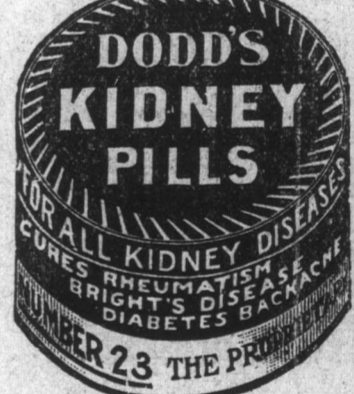

Ten men went out to Norris Arm last evening to work in the logging camps with the Central Forest Co., of Norris Arm, all the winter. They get $20 a month and found.

STORM DETAINS VESSEL.

By the Portia we learn that the schooner Emma E. White, owned by Job Bros., with coal from Sydney to Placentia, has been detained at Gaultois for a long while past owing to head winds.

Herring Catchers Arrive on West Coast.

By the Portia we learn that the herring which were at Bonne Bay when the ship was there on her last trip have struck off. When the ship was there this trip three vessels owned by the Gerton-Pew Co., of Gloucester, were there. They were at Burgeo for squid and went thence to Bonne Bay for herring but found that it had struck off, and later came to Bay of Islands where herring were reported at North Arm. Capt. Joseph Bonin, of the schooner Fanny Smith, has charge of operations and has a freeing apparatus on the vessel. One of the other vessels has a load of salt on board, and the other a cargo of ice. The three vessels are working together. When the Portia arrived there Friday morning last there was a big school of herring in North Arm, and the fishermen were making big hauls. They could be seen hauling their nets from the ship's deck. There is good fishing at Middle Arm also, but except the three American schrs. alluded to all the other vessels there are local. It is thought there will be a good winter herring fishery at Bay of Islands this season.
