Meting Out Justice.

Maggie Tobin, an 11 year old girl of LeMarchant Road, summoned Chas Downes for beating her last Saturday. It appears that she was wheeling her baby brother in a carriage along Le Marchant Road when a six year old daughter of Mr. Downes kicked the perambulator. The Tobin girl beat her off, and Downes, who was tarring the roof of his house nearby, came down the ladder, ran after Maggie Tobin and caught and beat her. He told the Judge that he merely flicked her in the face with his fingers but the girl's evidence and that of another witness was to the effect that he kicked her and "clouted" her and pulled her by the hair till she became unconscious. Her father told the court that she had been under the doctor's care ever since. The Judge fined Downes $5 and ordered him also to pay Tobin $2.50 for doctor's bill and medicine.

Two young men were charged with assaulting indecently Mar. Murphy, of Petty Harbor, on Regatta night. The case was taken into the Judge's private room. The hearing was postponed until tomorrow in order to get the evidence of the witness who rescued the young woman and brought her to the East End Fire Station.

A carman named Murren for fash driving a horse and cart around the Vici Village, endangering the lives of the children, was fined $10.00.

Mr. R. H. O'Dwyer was witness against him. As in the Tobin case.

Personal.

Miss Alice Harvey and Miss Edith Parsons, who had been spending vacation with friends at Sydney, arrived to-day's express, having thoroughly enjoyed the trip.

Mr. Eliza Button, of the firm of Burton & Son, New Melbourne, arrived in town, by the Fogola, on Saturday, on business for his firm.

Mrs. Phineas leaves for Japan on Tuesday's express.

Among the passengers by the S. S. Mongolian were Rev. Peter Bryce and his wife returning from a visit to their parents and friends in Scotland. Mr. Bryce is a native of Blantyre, known as the birthplace and home of David Livingstone. His wife, Mrs. Bryce, is a daughter of Hon. H. J. B. Woods P. M. G., and they have stopped on en route to Toronto, their home. It is expected that they will spend a few days with their many friends in St. John's. Rev. Mr. Bryce is in charge of a large Institutional Church in Toronto, the first of its kind in that city, if not in all Canada.

His establishment and success is due largely to the aptitude and ability of Mr. Bryce for that special form of Church work. It has attracted much attention and is liberally supported by the wealthy Methodists of Toronto. A building adapted to the purpose has just been erected at a cost of about $40,000 and it is expected that a larger one will follow as the work expands. The locality formerly called Shacktown is now known as Earlestown, and the transformation of the place, we understand, is fairly indicated by the respective names.

Another Giant Vessel.

White Star Said to be Planning a "Gigantic."

New York, July 26.—After the arrival of the steamship Baltic, of the White Star Line, it was reported unofficially that the company has in view the building of a new vessel as a sister craft to the Titanic and the Olympic.

It is said that the new boat will probably be called the Gigantic, and when she is built, her designers will correct any shortcomings that may be found in the Olympic or the Titanic. It was said that the new steamship would be launched in 1913.

London Promoter Must Pay Back.

Horatio Bottomley, M.P., Loses Appeal—Fleeced Retired Civil Servant.

London, July 31.—Horatio W. Bottomley, the editor, financier, newspaper owner and member of parliament to-day lost his appeal in the Appeal Court from the decision of June 30 by which he was ordered to pay $250,000 to Mrs. Eleanor Curtis, wife of a London barrister. Mrs. Curtis charged Mr. Bottomley with getting money from her father, the late R. E. Master, by misrepresentation in regard to the sale of certain shares.

Mr. Master was a retired civil servant and he became involved in some undertakings promoted by Mr. Bottomley and at the time of his death it was found his large fortune had been depleted by these dealings.

Mr. Bottomley, who is a clever lawyer, has promoted various companies and has been in the law courts several times as a result. He has also promoted several newspapers, among them being the London Financial Times and the weekly publication John Bull.

Would Marry Lady by Cable.

And Naval Officer at Gibraltar is Surprised When He Finds He Can't Do It.

London, August 1.—The registrar of a Dorsetshire town has received a letter from a naval officer at Gibraltar in the following terms:

"I should be glad if you would tell me the best means of being married by cable. What will it cost? Will it be necessary to have a minister and a registrar at both ends? Of course, I should have witnesses at both ends."

A reply was sent to the officer to the effect that the proposal was not possible, but the would-be-bridegroom has just written again, expressing his surprise at the inconvenience he is put to, "just to get married."

Prince of Wales Now a Midshipman.

London, July 31.—The Prince of Wales began his duties as midshipman to-day on board H. M. battleship Hindustan, which is now lying at Portsmouth. The Hindustan is of the Key class, which, with the exception of the Nelson and the Agamemnon, is the most powerful type of the pre-dreadnought fighting ship.

The royal midshipman will be treated exactly the same as any other youngster aboard, except that he will have his own cabin. He will receive 21 pence a day.

Forty Turtles From West Indies

The Royal Mail steam packet Atlanta, in from West Indies port Monday, brought 40 big sea turtles, the first to be landed in New York for nearly two years. They were kept on the board's deck under charge of the ship's yeoman, whose duty it was to turn them over when they were tired of being in one position, and wipe their eyes with a swab at eight bells every morning. The turtles were landed all alive. When turtles die at sea they are put in the refrigerator and landed under the name of "angle" to the trade, but it is said they make just as good soup.—N. Y. Minard's Liment Co. Limited, Gentlemen.—In June, 98, I had my hand and wrist bitten and badly mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days and the tooth cuts refused to heal until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LIMENT, which I began using.

The effect was magical: in five hours the pain had ceased and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever.

Fitzwilliam Heir.

With the pomp and ceremony of feudal days, Viscount Milton, the eldest heir of Earl and Countess Fitzwilliam, was, on Saturday, Feb. 11, christened at Wentworth Woodhouse, Yorkshire, perhaps the most magnificent mansion in the whole of England, and the ceremony acquired an added interest from the fact that it was the first time for nearly three-quarters of a century that a direct heir had been born to the reigning head of the family.

Outside in the great park hospitalities were dispensed on a lavish scale to the seven thousand guests who had been bidden to the christening. There were fireworks, football matches, and entertainments galore for the multitude of guests, including all the old English sports. Thousands of people gathered round the giant spit where an ox was roasting, and countless glasses were raised to the health of the baby heir.

Only the immediate relatives and friends of the family were present in the little private chapel, and the baby who was the occasion of all the festivities without was carried into the chapel wearing the historic scarf of the Fitzwilliams. According to tradition, this scarf was presented by William the Conqueror to Sir Wm. Fitzwilliam for valor at the battle of Hastings.

The Lure of Cards.

How Society Women Gamble in Dear Old "Luncheon."

A few years ago Father Bernard Vaughan preached a course of sermons on the mania for bridge which was invading smart society. As a matter of fact, bridge is only one of the many forms of gambling in which the up to date society woman indulges. Her field of operations includes the Stock Exchange and the Turf, as well as the bridge clubs and the tables at Monte Carlo and Dieppe.

The following is a fair sample of how a member of the "smart" gambling set spends her day. In the morning, after a careful perusal of the sporting news in the daily paper, she telephones to her bookmaker backing what she considers the likely winners for the day. This finished, she either gets through to her stockbroker or else motors into the city for a personal interview with him. Nowadays, many society women have a very shrewd business instinct. It was the great ladies of Mayfair and Belgrave who were the first to reap a profit from the rubber boom of last year.

After lunch, our fair gambler turns in to her card club, where she will play bridge, or its latest development—auction bridge—till dinner time. After dinner, more bridge or baccarat, usually at home or at a friend's house.

What is known as the "card instinct" seems to be more strongly developed in women than in men. At any rate, the proficiency at bridge of many prominent ladies of society is astonishing. At the present moment, the best bridge player in London is the wife of a well known Guardian.

This lady is generally supposed to make $6,500 a year at bridge, and this result is due entirely to skill.

A curious feature of the gambling spirit in society is the way bridge tournaments have taken the place of bazaars. At these tournaments entrance money and a percentage of the stakes is devoted to some charitable object. A fund organized by the Lord Mayor last spring largely profited by one of these tournaments.

Most gamblers are superstitious, ladies especially so. There is a certain countess, well known in the bridge world, who has a method of her own for testing her luck before-hand. Every morning, after breakfast, she plays a couple of games of patience. If the cards come out well, she regards it as a good omen, and goes to the bridge club early. If the cards are perverse, she accepts the warning, and abstains from bridge that day.

Patience, by the way, is often made a medium for big gambling, especially that form of it known as "montana." In a certain ladies' club it is no uncommon sight to see two members gambling heavily at "montana." One plays the cards, and the other bets her a certain sum against the cards coming out. In this way $50 or $75 often changes hands in a single afternoon.

As long as they are in England, society women do their gambling in private. But all this secrecy is thrown off as soon as the Channel is crossed. At Monte Carlo in the winter, and at Dieppe and Dinard in the summer, any casual visitor to the Casinos at these places can watch some of the most exclusive of society dames playing baccarat or chemin de fer with Tom, Dick and Harry.

They are there for the purpose of gambling, and so long as they win, it is no concern of theirs from whom their winnings come, or to whom their losses go, for the matter of that. Many of them gamble in the most reckless fashion; but with hardly an exception, they are most unemotional players.

There is no greater offence than to grumble when one loses or to chortle when one wins.

David Lloyd-George War Speech, July 21.

London newspapers arriving in Montreal on Saturday give a greater length than the earlier cable accounts the speech of Chancellor Lloyd George, delivered at the Mansion House, July 21, which played so strong a part in the recent discussion over the Franco-German Moroccan question. In his speech Mr. Lloyd George spent some time over the revenue of the country and spoke with enthusiasm of the era of trade revival and general prosperity which England is now enjoying. He said there was no immediate prospect of a recession in the tide.

The world, he said, was growing richer; its store was increasing. No country in the world had as great an interest in the prosperity of other countries as we had. We were the bankers of the world, the carriers of the world, the brokers of the world. We sold more of our manufactures to the world than any other country. We had a paramount interest in the general prosperity of all countries in the world. Anything that conduces to the world's prosperity was to our interest; anything that impaired it was chiefly our loss. There was only one circumstance that could possibly interfere at this moment with the continued flow of that stream of prosperity, whose fertilizing influence was spreading over the whole world, and that circumstance would be anything that would disturb international peace.

"Peace," Mr. Lloyd George continued, "is the first condition of continued prosperity. Fortunately, there is no reason to fear that such a catastrophe as war is imminent, although there are, of course, constant questions that arise between Governments which produce discussion, and sometimes irritation. But the common sense of nations has of late years generally in the end intervened to secure a peaceable solution. Personally I am a sincere advocate of all means which would lead to the settlement of international disputes such as those which civilization has so successfully set up for the adjustment of differences between individuals, and I rejoice from my heart at the present time at the prospect of a happy issue to Sir Edward Grey's negotiations with the United States of America for the removal of disputes which may occur in future between ourselves and our kinsmen across the Atlantic to some more merciful, rational and just arbitration than that of the sword."

"But I am also bound to say that I believe it is essential in the highest interests, not merely of this country, but of the world, that Britain should at all hazards maintain her place and her prestige amongst the great Powers. (Applause.)"

Her potent influence has, many a time in the past, and may yet be in the future, invaluable to the cause of human liberty. It has more than once in the past redeemed Continental nations—who are sometimes apt to forget that service—from overwhelming disaster, and even national extinction. "I would make great sacrifices to preserve peace. I conceive that nothing would justify a disturbance of international goodwill, except questions of the gravest national moment."

"But if a situation were to be forced upon us in which peace could only be preserved by the surrender of the great and beneficent position of Britain has won by centuries of heroism and achievement, by allowing Britain to be treated where her interests were vitally affected, as if she were of no account in the cabinet of nations, then I say emphatically that peace at that price would be a humiliation, intolerable for a great country like ourselves to endure. (Applause.)"

"National honor is no party question. (Hear, hear.) The security of our great international trade is no party question. The peace of the world is much more than a party question. If all nations what the consequences, and it is to be understood that nations understand one another more thoroughly, discuss calmly and nothing will happen next year which will not have been settled in this place. (Applause.)"
