The Aims of the O. H. A.

Clubs oftentimes fail to appreciate the fact that the O. H.

is not an executive, but a banding together of organizations for the good of hockey, to play the game clean, fair, and above board. They forget that they are one of the component parts of an association forming a defensive and offensive alliance with their neighbors for clean, amateur sport; that they have no war with the O. H. A. executive, but that body is but a reflex of what their opinion ought to be, sees or imagines it sees at every time scheming and crookedness and favoritism. You elect your executive and should watching-do it-but put in an executive you can trust.

have confidence in it. You believe your neighbors need ciation, it seems to me I should in passing say a word of the men you would get the best results from in electing to office, and I will first say I think it is against the best interests of the association to place too young men into office; you should avoid electing an active hockey player, because as a rule he has an axe to grind. For the same reason you should not elect a manager of a club, for he as a rule can never see beyond the confines of his own yard, and its special interests, but rather pick out your men and put them in office, men you can rely upon and men you can depend will
