THE DUTY ON COAL. An Ontario Liberal Demand That It

Toronto Globe.

In the approaching revision of the tariff the government should take a decisive attitude in favor of the removal of the coal duties. For the year ending with June, 1905, on an importation of 4,176,274 tons of soft coal, valued at 8,8002,396, we paid in duty $2,206,283.

As anthracite coal is free, this large contribution may be regarded as a special impost on the manufacturing industries of Canada, an impost falling chiefly on Ontario, but extending to Quebec and Manitoba. The manufacturers may be reluctant to pross, for relief from this fax, as they are seeking general increases in the tariff for their own benefit. But the government is bound by the traditions of the Liberal party as well as by a right view of the economic situation to correct abuses and adjust inequalities by lowering and not by increasing tariff imposts. While a general increase in the duty on manufactured goods would burden agriculture and other self-sustaining industries, and would provoke an outbreak of discontent now considerately withheld, the removal of the coal duties could afford equal or greater advantages to the manufacturing industries, while lessening inwell when he was in the police.
