So much has been said and written upon an actual necessity for the press to watch with argus eyes the progress made by the different mines, claims and prospects. The Keewatin, Lake Winnipeg and Hay Island companies have from their first formation pushed the development of their works with the capital of the promoters alone, and asked no person to invest a single dollar until the richness of the cre and test of quantity had fully justified all their expectations This was done at a large outlay which the promoters have not begrudged. Having placed their mines in a position to defy the scrutiny of all mining engineers, and offer quid pro quo for investors, these companies commenced to place their stock upon the market, and met with ready demand. This was a business way of proceeding, and their shares, of course, sold for nearly par. Assuming from repeated reports that the Keewatin district was really a first-class one, English capitalists desiring to invest in the new Eldorado instituted a series of enquiries which finally opened negotiations with the Lake Winnipeg company, and the largest which has yet taken place was the result, the investment being one of 10,000 shares of this favorite stock, which is not to be used in a brokerage business, but as a perused in a brokerage business, but as a permanent investment. In the deal of this stock Lake Winnipeg has now advanced $1 per share, and very firm at that. This comes from mining in a commercial and not a speculative sense. Can the same be said of all the other mines? From the Rat Portage Progress the following is clipped, not with any desire to affect the mine spoken of, but to caution investors to lock well before placing their money in any mine until their investment is sure to repay: "At the George Heenan mine a gang of eight men have been busy all week erecting the new camp and offices, which, when finished, will be the most extensive, substanished, will be the most extensive, substantial and best equipped on the lake. This company is sparing no expenses in developing, but the utmost economy is being exering, but the utmost economy is being cased in the expenditure. A heavy shipcised in the expenditure. A heavy shipment of tools and hardware passed through the post this week, and another follows, after which provisions will be laid in for the close season. It is the manager's intention to be well below the water line within a month from this date. The working shaft is now down eight feet, and is being sunk 9 x 7." Again, from the same source, we clip the following: "The timber is being taken out for the Canada Mining company's buildings, the dimensions of which are as follows: Storebouse, 12 x 18; boarding-house, 18 x 24; office, 16 x 24; shaft-house, 16 x 20." Now all miners know that is now down eight feet, and is being sunk 9 x 7." Again, from the same source, we clip the following: "The timber is being taken out for the Canada Mining company's buildings, the dimensions of which are as follows: Storehouse, 12 x 18; boardinghouse, 18 x 24; office, 16 x 20." Now all miners know that buildings of this size are the most insignificant affairs that can be found in any mining district, and only equals the size of the shaft, 29 x 7, and 8 feet deep. But this is not the objective point. Store houses, (offices which are more than half the size of store house and boarding house combined), as well as boarding houses can be enlarged. But have the George Heenan company any right to their claim? The facts are given as below. Mr. Joseph Thompson took up the claim from grass roots and erected a house for working the mine; he sunk a smell shaft but had to suspend operations through lack of funds, grass roots and erected a nouse for working the mine; he sunk a small shaft but had to suspend operations through lack of funds. The present managing director, it is claimed, jumped the claim and organized a company to continue the operating of the mines, without Mr. Thompson's knowledge. This company put its stock at a par value of $200 and which is now offered for nominally nothing. Mr. Thompson, finding this out, and backed by men of means, has commenced suit against the company intending to throw the mine into chancery. This kind of legal business it is sincerely hoped will not be indulged in by many of the mining companies, as much of the success of the Keewatin section depends upon harmony, freedom from wild cats, and a gritty pushing of the mining interests of Manitoba.

Lottery—Prosecutions
From the Orange Sentinel. It would seem as if the authorities, o those on whose behalf the astute county crown attorney of York, Mr. Fenton, is acting, have determined to make fish of one part of the community and flesh of another in the suppression of schemes for raising the Keewatin district that it now becomes money, which they claim come under the act referring to lotteries. The promoters of the so-called masonic lottery, held in London, were permitted to advertise their scheme, sell tickets, hold a drawing, and in fact to accomplish the ends for which it was set on foot, before they were interfered with. In the case of the so-called Orange Gift Concert at Ottawe, the promoters, ticket-sellers, and newspapers which it is claimed advertised the scheme, were pounced upon as soon as evidence was forthcoming claimed advertised the scheme, were pounced upon as soon as evidence was forthcoming—or at least as soon as the provincial elections were out of the way. But various lotteries which have from time to time been held under the auspices of the Roman catholic church—and against the promoters of which evidence was quite as easily obtainable as against those of the other schemes referred to—have been left undisturbed, and have quietly raked into the coffers of the church the proceeds of their enterprises.

We are informed that during that recent

We are informed that during that recent catholic church lottery in London, a priest stationed not far from Sarnia called upon an stationed not far from Sarnia called upon an old Irish woman, a resident of the town and a widow, who had in her possession a valuable old Irish watch; a relic of her late husband, Capt. De Rosier, also a miniature ship, and using certain church persuasives, induced her to give up those loved articles, those links which were to her strong, binding memories of the past, to be thrown into this lottery scheme. Now, we have no objection to this matter or the means taken objection to this matter or the means taken to procure prizes for this church lottery— this great charitable and christian move; this great charitable and christian move; but simply narrate the above, which we believe can be fully substantiated at any moment, merely to call attention to the point that there were other lotteries held in London besides the Masonic one; and would simply ask, why this church lottery was passed over unnoticed? Perchance, we are impertinent. If so, we have no apology to offer. All we desire is the broad exercise of that good old British rule—British practice—freedom and fair play to all. We ask no rights, no privileges extended to us tice—freedom and fair play to all. We ask no rights, no privileges extended to us or our order, that cannot be given to all other subjects under our glorious old flag. These we will by all peaceable means endeavor to obtain; but we must have them even if, as of old, we have to resort to sterner means. Our watchword again must be civil and religious liberty and the freedom of the

THOSE LIQUOR LICENSES.

SIR JUHN MACDONALD MOVES FOR

stitutionality of the Premier's Course

-The Privy Council's Decision Misin

OTTAWA, March 16 .- The long-looked. for debate on the government liquor license policy took place in the commons to day. It will be remembered that the speech from the throne contained a paragraph to the effect that the judgment of the privy council, delivered last June on the appeal of Russell v. the Queen, goes to show that in order to prevent the unrestrained sale of intoxicating liquors, and for that purpose to But various late the granting of shop, saloon and tavern licenses, legislation by the dominion parliament will be necessary. The premier this afternoon moved that this paragraph be referred to a select committee of sevenby bill or otherwise. The opposition felt

> Mr. Casgrain opened fire by conter that the motion was out of order, inasmuch as it dealt with a question of trade, which should first be considered in committee of the whole.

> The speaker thought the resolution concained no proposal in the shape of a bill or measure, but simply referred the matter to committee, who could deal with it as they pleased, and he therefore ruled it in order. The motion was about to pass, when Mr. Blake, in a tone of surprise, asked if the government had nothing to say in explanation of their conduct. Forced to his feet. Macdonald said that on account of the diversity in the law, habits and circumstances in the different provinces, he thought it best to refer the question to a committee who would inquire into and report on the subject, out of which a measure might be evolved not identical assimilate the provincial laws. This was in every province, but still calculated to assimilate the provincial laws. This was a neat way of shirking the responsibility, but the leader of the opposition was prepared for the reply.

Mr. Blake spoke for two hours with an interruption for recess, and commanded the attention of both sides of the house. He rebuked the government for their delay and oscillation in the matter, and reminded the house of Sin John's promise at York ville during the June campaign to restore the power of issuing the licenses to the municipalities, of his subsequent approval of the stand taken by Mr. Meredith at the conservative convention at Toronto in September, and of his inconsistent replies to the licensed victuallers and prohibitory alliance deputations. He contended that since June last the government had plenty of time and last the beauty that Homer gave to this heaventy tall divinity. She has color and expression in abundance, and nearly always material, but hardly even form. There are twenty fairer girls in Toronto; there is not one so fascinating, She should have been called the charmer, more than the beauty:

Her acting accinating hore intermittent remains in districts vIII., vIII. country, which expected something after and x. as one of the six most prevalent disso many distinct pledges. While by no and x. as one of the six most prevalent diseases, its degree of prevalence has everywhere very markedly fallen.

Amongst zymotic diseases there is none which shows any upward tendency except measles, and this has very noticeably increased. Last week showed it to have made a great advance, while this week has seen it still increase until instead of being 45 it smounts to 5.15 per cent. of all diseases. This fact is largely due, however, to its epidemic appearance in one or two localities. Diphtheria, noticed last week as having decreased in prevalence, still remains at a comparatively low point in degree of prevalence. Scarlatina, although recorded as occurring here and there in the province, has this week fallen from amongst the twenty most prevalent diseases. Smallpox, to which attention was drawn last week, has fortunately, to all appearance, been localized, as no further instances of its outbreak have been recorded.

All will notice with pledges. While by no means agreeing with the government as to the judgment in the Russell case, Mr. Blake contended that the government as to the judgment in the Russell case, Mr. Blake contended that the government tilike the Toronto People; they have the matter to a committee. The whole force of his speech was directed against the unconstitutionalism of the procedure. He quoted British precedents, both liberal and conservative, to show that in these kind of cases it invariably devolved upon the government to propose remedial legislation, and not to throw the responsibility on a committee, whose only duty it was to report upon facts. He opposed the motion on principle, denounced it as an infringement upon parliamentary and motion on principle, denounced it as an infringement upon parliamentary and motion on principle, denounced it as an infringement upon parliamentary and motion on principle, denounced it as an infringement upon parliamentary and motion on principle, denounced it as an infringement upon parliamentary and motion on principle provided to be also take the naug it as an infringement upon parliamentary procedure, and said the cabinet wished to health officer. It is to be hoped that this appointment is but one of many which will be made by municipalities during the coming year, and that the good effects of such in the Russell case, he argued that it was in the Russell case, he argued that it was misinterpreted by the speech from the throne, and that it merely dealt with prohibitory legislation, and did not interfere with the rights of the provincial legislatures to regulate the liquor traffic and was a logical and conclusive demonstration was manifested in the sport. The first of the inconsistency and unconstitutionality event was a match between Champion Edward Hanlan and John Wilson of the Wilson house, York street. Edward claims to have never drawn a grn above a tran wilson house, fork street. Edward claims to have never drawn a gun above a trap before, while Mr. Wilson is an old hand. The match between Wilson with a 21 birds with a 21 continuous training to have the street way from the speech. He kept entirely away from the before, while Mr. Wilson is an old hand. The match between Wilson and the chamitim was 10 birds with a 21 yards rise. Wilson made 6 out of 7 shots and Hanlan 1 out of 7, leaving 3 birds which at.

It was felt that Sir John had made a weak tilled 10 birds out of a possible 11, having missed the 6th bird. Mr. H. Humphrey and Mr. Ward followed with an equal 9, Bob Harris with 8, G. Smith 6, J. A. Sir John Macdonald then named the special committee, but the opposition members of it, viz., Messrs. Blake, G. W. Rose.
Laurier, Casgrain, Isaac Burpee, and Robertson (Shelburne) declined to serve, and after some discussion as to points of order the premier gave notice to appoint six of his appointers in their place.
